GUARDS FIRE ON CONVICTS; TROOPS RULE OHIO PRISON

Today

Canada's National R. R.
Russia's New R. R.
Sodom and Gomorrah.
New Gandhi.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

MR. LAMONT, our secretary of commerce, called up on the telephone yesterday by Sir Henry Thornton, had a pleasant talk.

Mr. Lamont was sitting in Washington. Sir Henry was traveling at high speed through Canada, on the Canadian NATIONAL Railway System.

SIR HENRY sent his regards to President Hoover and the American cabinet. Seventy-one telephone calls were made from that Canadian train as it rolled along on Sunday.

And Sir Henry operates very profitably a government owned railroad that lost money under private management. That must surprise our government.

OUR BEST MINDS, meaning our biggest pocketbooks, dislike Bolshevism, which refused to pay bonds bought by boyish Wall street bankers.

But those best minds like and respect anything that shows business ability.

It interests them to learn that Russia yesterday dedicated a new 1,700 mile railway, penetrating Turkestan and costing $100,000,000.

THE NEW RAILWAY, all-Russian, connects the present Central Asia railway with the great trans-Siberian line.

Apparently the Russians know how to do things in a business and industrial way, whatever their social theories.

ARCHEOLOGISTS, according to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, have discovered ancient Sodom and Gomorrah buried in the ashes of fire that destroyed, and punished wickedness with fire and brimstone. Father Mellon made the discovery.

IN THE ASHES were found skeletons of wicked men and women. Implements discovered show that the city destroyed 20 centuries before Christ was in the bronze age. They had not learned how to use iron or steel.

When fire and brimstone, as you remember, destroyed the wicked cities near the Red Sea, only Lot and his wife escaped. And she, poor thing, was turned into a pillar of salt because she disobeyed orders and looked backward.

In the Middle Ages bishops and others testified that they had actually seen Mrs. Lot, made of solid salt, still unchanged by the rains of 3,000 years. They even furnished extraordinary biological data of periodical events, to prove the sex of the salt statue.

Nobody has seen the statue very recently.

YESTERDAY 8,000 OF Gandhi's revolutionists in India burned an enormous pile of cloth made in foreign countries.

The Indian mahatma thinks he can restore India's ancient glory by persuading his followers to wear only cloth made on hand looms.

HINDU WOMEN sang a song of "sedition" while their husbands made a bonfire of three camel loads of English cloth. While this went on, a British war plane flew overhead, an observer keeping his eye on the crowd of 8,000 "disobedients."

The thoughtful Hindu, looking up at that plane, perhaps realized building airplanes of their own account could do more for the Hindus than burning all the English cloth in India.

IN BUSINESS, the British are reasonable. That is why they have such a big empire and were rich enough to finance the late war, with ten billions of dollars help from this country.

IN 1918 when the war ended, Great Britain thought only of hanging the Kaiser and promised to do it.

This morning you read that Britain has made an agreement with the German Dr. Eckener, allowing him to establish an exclusive Anglo-German air service from Europe to New York.

Britain promises not to compete with the German service and will concentrate on an air line to Canada.

GERMANY AND GREAT BRITAIN will pool their information as to weather and general facilities.

Meanwhile, this country, which owns one side of each ocean, just looks on.

Very wise, the British. They act, while others sleep.

SENATOR WAGNER, of New York, starts a fight to bring back prosperity and solve the unemployment problem, which he says is serious.

He wants the country to "face the true facts." The government can help. A LITTLE, not very much.

Our national wage payroll is over sixty thousand million dollars a year. Incomes of individuals aside from wages, amount to fort thousand million dollars. That gigantic sum depends on public confidence, energy, individual enterprise.

IT IS WISE to face facts. But it is dangerous to talk pessimistically. By telling a man he looks badly you can send him

Five Cents an Hour More for One-Man Car Operators; Vote Split Three Ways

There will be no street car strike in Pittsburgh.

Conductors and motormen of the Pittsburgh Railways Company today agreed to a new wage scale which raises the pay of one-man car operators five cents an hour.

The wages of two-men car operators remain unchanged.

Of the 2,100 employes who voted, 1,864 favored the new scale, 134 favored a second proposition and 95 opposed both.

These were the propositions laid before the men by their union committee after negotiations with Railways officials:

(1) A 5-cent increase for one-man car operators provided they agree to operate such cars at night.

(2) A 2½-cent increase to one-man car operators provided they supply their own tailor service.

Acceptance of the first proposition by an 8-to-1 vote, automatically eliminated the second.

To the question: "Are you opposed to both these propositions?" —95 men voted yes.

SCALE STARTS THURSDAY

The vote was announced this afternoon by P. J. McGrath, secretary of District 5, Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railways Employes.

The day employes had voted last night. The night men cast their ballots today at Moose Temple.

The present wage scale ends Wednesday, April 30, when the new scale goes into effect.

This was the second vote conducted by the union. The first, 10 days ago, contained no wage increase and was overwhelmingly rejected.

Approximately 900 operators will share in this 5-cent rise, which brings the wages of one-man car operators to 80 cents an hour, 10 cents more than the double crews are paid.

Kline Mayoralty Opponent Splits With Organization On Candidate for Governor

Former President of Council James F. Malone, opponent of Mayor Kline in the last mayoralty fight and wheel horse of the Republican party in Pittsburgh politics, announced today for Gifford Pinchot for governor.

Malone's stand will split the Republican organization supporting Francis Shunk Brown here wide open in the state fight.

Mr. Malone previously had told intimates he would vote for Secretary of Labor James J. Davis for United States senator.

MALONE STATEMENT

Mr. Malone's statement follows:

"I intend to support Pinchot and do all I can to make him governor.

"The people of Pennsylvania in this primary have the opportunity to select a governor who will sponsor the cause of all the people and fight every attempt by anyone to throttle the state government. Pinchot in his last administration demonstrated that he can be depended upon to discharge the duties of public office with courage and fidelity to the people's interests.

"He has never been accused of political chicanery or duplicity. He speaks plainly. There is no dodging or hedging. Campaign pledges made by him have become vital parts of his program when in office. Public

Militia Takes Over Command And Restores Order After Pitched Battle Wounds 2

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
Staff Correspondent.

COLUMBUS, O., April 29.—Rifle fire today put an abrupt ending to an attempted general jail break by mutinous convicts at Ohio State Penitentiary. Two hundred shots were fired by prison guards and militia men and two convicts were wounded—one so seriously he may die.

Half an hour after the uprising, the prison was in control of the military. Ohio National Guardsmen, armed with machine guns, automatic rifles, side arms and tear gas bombs, replaced the force of prison guards, while authority of Warden Preston E. Thomas passed into the hands of Col. R. S. Haubrich, World War veteran and holder of the Distinguished Service Cross.

MACHINE GUNS SET

Machine guns were set up and their muzzles trained from all angles on "White City"—the section occupied by the "hard-boiled" element of the 3,900 prisoners in the antiquated and overcrowd prison.

Under the muzzles of the guns, Col. Haubrich walked into the tumultuous cell block and addressed the prisoners. When he emerged, the hard-bitten colonel of infantry made this statement:

"We are going to run this prison from now on. We are going to take these babies to the mess hall to eat and then bring them back and put them in cells."

CONVICTS SUBDUED

And a short time later he made good his statement when the mutineers were lined up between state troops and forced to march in orderly fashion to the mess halls for

Following the shooting, his teacher, Miss Rita Criste, had other students assist the boy to the physician's office. The wound was found to be a surface wound and his condition is declared not serious.

The shooting occurred yesterday afternoon. Police lodged a charge of being a suspicious person against Stewart for carrying a gun.

Pershing, American Army Praised and Defended By Painleve

This is the last of three articles by Paul Painleve answering criticism by Clemenceau and others of the activities of the American Expeditionary Forces.

By PAUL PAINLEVE.
Former Premier of France and War Minister in the Ribot Cabinet when the United States entered the World War.

PARIS, April 29.—Let us turn back the pages of time until March, 1918. Almost a year before, Gen. Pershing acting for President Wilson, made France and Britain a promise. The previous July, Gen. Pershing had promised 200,000 American soldiers delivered in France by early March. It is now March, 1918, and 200,000 Americans have been safely delivered, with 30,000 more than promised. By the end of March, there would be 290,000. Gen Pershing more than kept his word.

Meanwhile the American General Staff was installed at Chaumont, not far behind the battle lines. Two American divisions had taken over the sector before St. Mihiel. Two other divisions and isolated regiments were passing through a stage of training in the front lines of the calmer sections toward the east.

If these Americans had not participated in anything more than a local mopping up of affairs, their presence gave to the French divisions on that part of the front a liberty of movement and maneuver which would be utilized in the later days of March. Another American division was in training behind Chalons, and two others were serving around Chaumont as base and replacement.

Meanwhile, throughout America, her fittest sons are flocking to the colors while a hysteric wave of patriotism sweeps the continent. Elsewhere the two gigantic efforts started simultaneously in France and the United States to enroll, train and equip these American divisions, are now co-ordinated and proceeding smoothly. Necessarily there was some hesitation at first with power fatally scattered, but almost immediately they concentrated in competent hands.

Andre Tardieu, after eight months of the closest contact with Newton Baker in Washington in which he took the most active part in the labor of the military organization of the United States, had

HERRON FAVORS BLUE LAW POLL

Voters in Pittsburgh interested in their city will take part in the poll of sentiment throughout the city on the Pennsylvania Blue Laws to be commenced this week by the Sun-Telegraph, and will return the ballots mailed them, President John S. Herron, of City Council, declared today.

The canvass, the first accurate test of public sentiment in Pittsburgh on this question, will prove enlightening as a guide for the Legislature and Governor in passing upon legislation affecting it, President Herron asserted.

He said:

"The canvass of the electorate of Pittsburgh to learn its sentiment with regard to the Blue Laws of Pennsylvania is a stroke of enterprise by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

"To my knowledge, it is the first time during the existence of this old statute that any attempt has been made to determine with any degree of exact-

'Jake' Malady Strikes 9 Bridge Club Women

WICHITA, Kan., April 29.—(AP.)—"Jake" paralysis, unexplained malady which has severely affected hundreds of persons who drank Jamaica ginger here, today claimed nine more victims, members of a woman's bridge club in the fashionable College Hill residential section.

The women were reported by health authorities to have admitted drinking a small amount of punch which had been "spiked" with alcohol. No Jamaica ginger was used, it was said.

Three of the women are declared paralyzed and in a helpless condition. Three others are unable to use their legs and are confined to their beds. The other victims are walking with the aid of crutches.

lunch. Mounted machine guns surveyed the marching prisoners and kept them in line.

This morning's battle began when a mob of prisoners tried to break into the out guard room from the prison yard and escape by way of the front entrance alongside the warden's office. They were driven back by a fussilade of bullets, only to refor mand make a second charge, which was also repulsed.

The wounded were George Tonoff, shot in the right lung, and in a critical condition, and Jewell Joffa, shot in the right leg.

GUARDS INJURED

Several prison guards sustained minor injuries. Guard Willis Floyd was cut by flying glass when a prisoner threw a stool against a window. Convicts screamed and many of them started to cry when the firing began.

Glass in the guard room door and in small windows of the cell block was shattered by the convicts, who carried such weapons as clubs and bars of iron.

Ordered by the warden to go back to their cells, the convicts continued their rush.

They retreated at the first burst of firing, but a moment later had remassed and made a second rush. Automatic rifles spat bullets into the mob and this time they fell back and took refuge in cells.

GUARD CAPTURED

Shortly after the guards opened fire Col. R. C. Haubrich, commanding the Ohio National Guard troops on duty at the penitentiary, ordered that the shooting be stopped. The convicts had captured Capt. Boyles, a guard, and were holding him prisoner.

National Guard officers, stationed in the guard room, demanded that Boyles be released at once. Practically all the windows in the White City or idle house were shattered by bullets. The convicts were screaming and howling at the top of their lungs. All was disorder within the prison walls.

The convicts released Capt. Boyles, but were holding Guard Capt. Jefferson Henderson in the cell block, who was later released. Four additional companies of guardsmen were ordered to the penitentiary, including a howitzer platoon armed with one-pounders. There are 500 National Guardsmen at the prison.

GOVERNOR ACTS

Gov. Myers Y. Cooper issued an order to Warden Thomas that order must be restored immediately.

The Governor, in his order which went to the warden a short time after the shooting began, said that the civil authority of the warden would be backed up by the Ohio National Guard.

At the same time the order was sent to the warden, Adjt. Gen. A. W. Reynolds, in charge of the National Guard, was ordered to proceed to assist the warden in restoring order

The Governor's order said in part:

"The Governor feels that sufficient consideration has been shown for the extraordinary conditions resulting from the fire and loss of life and the time has now come when the regular routine of the institution must be re-established."

GIRL REMOVED

Miss Amanda Thomas, the warden's daughter, was literally forced to leave the warden's office at the height of disturbance. She had been walking around the administration building this morning with a snub-nosed .38 caliber revolver in her jacket. She is said to be an excellent pistol shot. She left, under protest, accompanied by her mother. They went across the street from the prison to the home of Deputy Warden J. C. Woodard.

Warden Thomas remained in the administration building. He was greatly fatigued from the long hours he had been putting in. His only statement was this:

"The situation is now in the hands of the military. It is out of my hands."

TAXI STRIKERS LOSE CHURCH QUARTERS

Removal to Penn Avenue Tomorrow Announced as Bishop Asks Departure

Headquarters of the striking taxicab drivers will be removed tomorrow to a new location on Penn avenue, Alec T. Siford, executive chairman, announced today.

Siford said:

"Bishop Hugh C. Boyle has asked that we move our headquarters out of St. Patrick's Church property. Our activities are not in keeping with the dignity of the church. The Parmelee Company has placed a police guard at the church. This has caused unnecessary embarrassment to persons attending services. We will consolidate our soup kitchen and headquarters at a new location on Penn avenue."

Telephone service in the headquarters at 1711 Liberty avenue was discontinued yesterday morning, temporarily restored later in the day, then permanently disconnected yesterday afternoon.

Bishop Boyle's request was transmitted to the strikers in a letter from the Rev. James R. Cox, of St. Patrick's Church.

A hearing has been set for Wednesday by the Public Service Commission on the application of the Hiland Taxicab Company, recently organized, for a certificate of convenience.

A dance and vaudeville show will be held tomorrow night at Motor Square Garden for the benefit of the strikers' relief fund.

PARKER EVADED COURT, BORAH CHARGES

Went Beyond Decision of Tribunal in 'Red Jacket' Case, Declares Idahoan.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP.)—Resuming the attack on confirmation of Judge John J. Parker, of North Carolina, to the Supreme Court, Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, accused the nominee in the Senate today of ignoring the Supreme Court in a decision upholding the "yellow dog" contract.

He contended again that Parker, in upholding the injunction restraining the United Mine Workers from soliciting membership even by peaceful persuasion among employes of the Red Jacket Coal company who had signed contracts not to join the union, had gone beyond the decision o; the supreme court.

Senator Borah said the supreme court had shown a more liberal attitude against "yellow dog" contracts in the Tri-City case in 1921 in which it held labor unions had a right to solicit membership by peaceful persuasion.

Borah charged Judge Parker "ignored" the Supreme Court in the Tri-City case. The Idahoan thundered:

"Shall we infer that the court of Judge Parker did not know the effect of the Tri-City decision of the Supreme Court?"

Senator Overman (Dem.), of North Carolina, who is supporting the nominee, interrupted Borah to ask questions to bring out dates in the various legal decisions.

Representative De Priest (Rep.), of Illinois, lone Negro member of Congress, sat on the Republican side of the chamber during the debate. The National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People is protesting Parker's confirmation.

U. S. TO WAR ON CRIME GANGS

Dry Enforcement Shift to Start Hoover Campaign Against Racket Rings

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The government plans to launch a determined campaign against the "big time racketeers" and well-known gangsters very shortly, it was learned in authoritative quarters today.

This contemplated campaign is awaiting partly on the transfer of prohibition enforcement from the Treasury to the Department of Justice, andthis is one of the reasons why President Hoover asked Congress in his special message yesterday to speed up the transfer.

The Department of Justice has been laboring for some months upon a new system of co-operation with state and local officials, the aid of which is to stamp out racketeering and gangland activities, nearly all of which are in some way mixed up with liquor and narcotic business.

Once the law enforcement activities are well centered in the Department of Justice, there will be a system of co-ordination, it was said, that will enable agents to literally "hound" the gang leaders out of business.

CAPONE CASE CITED

The Government has never succeeded in catching up with Al Capone yet, but persistent digging by Department of Justice agents did bring his brother, Ralph, within the toils of the law on income tax matters. The Capone case was cited as an example where co-ordination of effort is needed to obtain results.

The administration is anxious for Congress to provide more Federal prisons because the present prisons are overcrowded and susceptible to outbreaks, such as have occurred in some instances.

In addition to taking over the Leavenworth disciplinary barracks as an addition to the Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary, the government also is utilizing three former army camps in which to place the overflow of Federal prisoners.

The names of the camps have not been announced, but some time ago the Department of Justice asked the War Department to turn over to it one of the camps in Michigan.

In his message to Congress yesterday, President Hoover said there are already 11,985 prisoners in Federal penal institutions which were built to accommodate only 6,946. He said that Federal prisoners in state institutions had increased.

COURT SPEED URGED

The President regards the whole penal institution as becoming desperate and ise anxious that steps be taken to remove causes for any outbreaks among thep risoners.

Regarding court congestion, President Hoover considers that no proposal has been forthcoming from members of Congress which would provide the relief he views as necessary.

Regarding a controverted point raised by opponents of the Law Enforcement Commission's recommendations, the administration takes the position that none of the proposals offered jeopardizes the right of trial by jury.

"Gov. Pinchot is capable, energetic and sincere. He has earned the confidence of the people.

"His long experience in public life has made him pre-eminently qualified to serve again as governor in a manner which guarantees to the people of this state an economic and efficient government dedicated to their interests.

"There never was a time in the history of Pennsylvania when it was more necessary to have a people's governor. The Republican party and the people are fortunate in having Pinchot. He has been tested and found true. His record is founded upon acts, not words; upon achievements, not promises, and this record is the best criterion by which to judge future performance."

to bed. By telling him he looks well you can put him on his feet.

NEW YORK'S POLICE commissioner, Grover Whalen, a first-class police commissioner, tells the Knights of Columbus:

"We need religion in this country perhaps more than anything else."

In dealing with Communism and anarchy, he thinks:

"We need to rely on religion to put down the foes of law and order."

TIMES MAY HAVE changed. The men that wrote the Constitution of the United States and started the government going, therefore, separating religion and church from government, felt that they could rely on themselves and on law to handle their problems.

IF GROVER WHALEN will investigate the religious record of the criminals, he will be surprised to find how many have been very thoroughly trained religiously from their childhood.

The percentage of atheists in the death house is very low.

There is no doubt, however, that we do need more religion, and if it could persuade Communism, anarchy and "the Reds" to reform, that would be pleasing.

The poll is designed to reach every registered voter in the city, and if they have the interests of their city at heart they will give a proper response to this effort of the Sun-Telegraph in its complete and thorough canvass.

"As I understand it, the ballot will give an opportunity for the recording of divergent views on this subject, whether the voter desires to continue, modify or repeal the law.

"It will be enlightening to the officials of Pittsburgh and should prove an unerring index to the Pennsylvania Legislature and Governor in their desire to place the will of the people upon the statute books.

"It is an ambitious and worthy project and the Sun-Telegraph is to be congratulated."

Coolidge Out in Support Of Butler for Senate

BOSTON, April 29.—(AP.)—The Boston Herald today publishes a statement written exclusively for it by former President Calvin Coolidge in praise of the qualifications of former Senator William M. Butler for public office. Butler has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination next fall to succeed Senator Frederick H Gillett.

Coolidge traced the history of his personal friendship and political relations with Butler, concluding with the statement that "he represents the dignity, the candor, the character and the moral fiber of the commonwealth."

Recalling the 1924 campaign, during which Butler was chairman of the Republican National Committee, Coolidge wrote:

"Any campaign looks easy after the event, but when my campaign began it looked anything but easy. In fact it took the hardest kind of work and the most skilfull management to star' it in the right direction. Others can say tha I elected myself, but I know that the political leadership of Mr. Butler was a most important factor in the result.

"I wanted him in my cabinet. Bu' just at this time that stout old champion of Massachusetts, Senator Lodge, full of years, loaded with honors, passed on to immortality, and Mr. Butler was appointed to s' ceed him in the Senate of the United States. It has been said this was the wish of Senator Lodge."

Two More Women Linked In Pact Slaying

LAGUNA BEACH, Cal., April 29.—(INS.)—Additional mystery, involving two women said to be prominent in the artists' colony here, today entered the reopened investigation into the deaths of Mrs. Adele Ritchie Post and Mrs Doris Murray Palmer.

Within a few minutes after Mrs Post, the former musical comedy star, killed herself these two women called at the bungalow, authorities believe.

The visitors were so stunned at finding the two bodies they left hurriedly, it is believed, neglecting to take two pairs of gloves and their handbags which police found after the tragedy was reported.

Questioning of the women may throw a different light on the mystery, sheriff's investigators asserted.

Meanwhile Sheriff Jernigan is seeking to gain possession of a letter which Moresby White, attorney for the two women, says he possesses. The letter, according to White, hints at a "death pact" entered into by the two women.

ODD ASPECTS OBSERVED IN PLANE

Scientists Score Success In Quest for New Data Despite Severe Storm

By LYLE ABBOTT.
International News Service.

HONEY LAKE, Cal., April 29.—The split second's eclipse of the sun was safely recorded today on scores of photographic films and plates and on many hundreds of feet of moving picture film.

In making that record, astronomers from Mt. Wilson, the United State naval observatory, and from Pomona College had literally outwitted the vagrant clouds . the worst spring storms this mountain valley has ever experienced, according to old-timers.

The victory of science and aviation was practically complete, according to Dr. Seth Nicholson, chief of the eclipse party from Pasadena.

The best picture was believed that taken by Dr. Harold Babcock with his queer looking equatorial spectrograph. This picture will show the constitution of the sun's atmosphere.

ECLIPSE BRINGS CHILL

The light diminished gradually as the eclipse started, as the moon slid more nearly over the sun's face, the light dropped with startling speed until a ghostly grayish luminosity, tinted with vague purple fires, enveloped the landscape.

A sudden chill struck and dew formed, but that lasted only an instant.

Spectators described a shivery psychological effect the eclipse had upon them. It was as though a terrifying catastrophe were about to smash the world. This is believed by scientists to be the result of the vast shadow as of impending doom, striking into the earth's atmosphere from the moon, 250,000 miles away.

It will be several days before the pictorial record of the eclipse, made by Mt. Wilson astronomers, is complete, they announced.

STRANGE SHADOW SEEN

A strange phenomenon which Dr. Sinclair Smith, of Mt. Wilson, said was unexplained, was reported by the three occupants of the army observation airplane, piloted over the eclipse camp by Capt. A. W. Stevens. This phenomenon was a pair of half mile wide dense gra. shadows that crossed at least 50 miles of cloud tops beneath the airplane. The shadow of the moon was a deep purple on the cloud tops, Stevens reported.

Smith said, at future eclipses more exact observations will be made to find the cause of these strange shadows.

Flier 18,400 Feet Up Notes Odd Eclipse Shadows

The following graphic description of the solar eclipse was written for International News Service by an officer of the United States Air Corps who made his observations while flying over Honey Lake at a height of 18,400 feet.

By CAPT. A. W. STEVENS

HONEY LAKE, Cal., April 29.—While circling around over Honey Lake at an altitude of 18,400 feet, watching the total sun eclipse, we observed a black shadow approaching us slowly on the upper surface of the clouds, 8,000 feet below us. This shadow was first seen 50 miles from us.

This was not the shadow of the plane, because the plane was circling all the time, and the shadow was perfectly straight.

The shadow was not that of the moon, for we saw the moon shadow also approaching from another direction.

The eclipse shadow was oval in shape, due to the slant with which this shadow struck the cloud surface. The moon shadow was a deep purple in color and about 3,000 feet across. About 20 seconds after totality a second black band appeared.

We know no scientific explanation of these great dark shadows.

MISSING WIFE FOUND SLAIN

SEATTLE, April 29.—(AP.)—A murder mystery confronted authorities here with the finding of the body of Mrs. Audrey E. He was said to have been missing for several weeks.

Authorities said he was wanted on a warrant charging him with a serious offense against an adopted daughter who also was said by the sheriff to be missing and possibly with Lindsay.

Mrs. Lindsay's body was found after neighbors enlisted the aid of the authorities to look for her. The body was sewed up in burlap.

Thousands Watch Opening Of New Soviet Railway

AINABULAK, Kazakstan Soviet Republic, April 29.—(AP.)—Opening ceremonies of the new 1,700-mile Soviet railroad now in progress had all the color of an American rodeo.

It was a momentous day in the Soviet Union and was proclaimed a holiday. Tens of thousands mounted Kazaks, Uzbeks, Khareizians and other nomadic tribes of the Kazakiston plains cheered as William Shatov, former Chicago anarchist and section hand on the Erie Railroad, yesterday drove the spikes connecting the north and south sections of the first Soviet-built railroad.

While Red army airplanes circled overhead in the scorching noonday sun, Comrade Isaev, president of the Kazakistan Republic, conferred the "order of the toiling Red banner" upon Shatov, who was the leading Soviet executive in construction of the road.

Then admirers seized Shatov and bore him on their shoulders before cheering thousands, the band playing the Red Internationale.

Kazakstan, the largest autonomous republic within the Soviet union, is transformed from virtually a barren waste into a region of great potential economic significance by the new railroad.

Bishop's Son Held as Killer; Girl Reveals Romance

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., April 29.—(INS.)—Helen Kirkland Spencer, 21, of St. Louis, a Vassar senior, today revealed that she was the author of the mysterious "Cherie" note found by police when they arrested James M. Maxon, Jr., son of Bishop James M. Maxon, of Tennessee, in connection with the death of a fellow roomer in New York.

Young Maxon, a former Columbia University student, was held without bail in Homicide Court, New York, today on a murder charge.

Davis Paynter, 73, apparently was beaten to death on April 18, following a fight in which Maxon took part.

Maxon's attorney, Martin W. Littleton, who sat in court with the boy and his father, argued for a charge of manslaughter, but Magistrate Corrigan declared that he saw in the badly beaten condition of Paynter's body evidence of a desire to kill.

The "Cherie" note to which Miss Spencer admitted ownership was found in Maxon's room after his arrest. It was an intimate letter addressed to "Jimmy Darling."

"I have known Jimmy a number of years and we are good friends," she said, when interviewed on the Vassar campus.

She admitted that she addressed Maxon as "Jimmy Darling" and signed herself "Cherie" in the letter which police have been tracing.

"I'd do anything in the world to help Jimmy, but there's nothing I know of," she said.

Although Maxon had told friends "she is the one girl in the world I care for," Miss Spencer denied they are engaged.

Painleve Proves Valor of U. S. Arms

now returned to Paris charged with all matters concerning the American intervention.

In America Gen. March who had commanded the artillery at the side of Gen. Pershing and knew by experience the hardships and the conditions of the present warfare, its demands and obligations, consented to abandon the French front to consecrate his great experience and illuminating intelligence to the urgent preparation of the great army of the United States. Instruction of American soldiers under arms pushed forward rapidly with material which even so short a time before as midsummer 1917 was lacking.

Training Pushed
Staff School Opened By Pershing

Thus with plenty of material at the officers' disposal in America the training of those troops once they landed in France, could be greatly shortened. The organization of the superior staffs was one of the most difficult problems because so few of the American officers had practical experience of modern fighting in the field which had now rapidly developed.

Gen. Pershing created a general staff school at Langres which rendered gallant service. But there was one ultimate difficulty very grave in itself to overcome. During the first three months of 1918, the monthly arrivals of Americans barely averaged 45,000 men.

But to keep the promises of 1917, it was necessary to transport and land 250,000 men monthly during the four following months. Any delay would greatly favor Germany's plans and seriously handicap and retard the Allies' proposed great liberating offensive which had been set for July, 1918. Any delay not only endangered its success but also threatened to delay the whole offensive until 1918.

It was easily seen that if this remarkable feat of moving a million men within a few months was to be accomplished it would be necessary to give a rigorous priority to the resources of all the Allies, but particularly the British, for the required warships, commerce, carriers and submarine-chasers, and even to convert captured German steamers, with all collaborating under one general scheme and grandiose enterprise.

This general scheme demanded rigorous steps such as the immediate requisition of all the Allied commercial fleets. It was a difficult task to draft that general plan, for certain pressing needs could not be entirely overlooked. It was necessary above all to move the men first but one could not overlook the necessity of shipping vast qualities of grain to Europe.

New Offensives
German Attacks Planned To Crush Allies

Briefly, in March, 1918, there was another big discussion and plans were made to transport 80,000 men during April and not 250,000 as was necessary. It was then there broke like a thunder clap on March 22, Germany's sudden push towards Amiens across, over and through Britain's submerged Fifth army. The great uninterrupted battle of 1918 started that day.

With 12 years of distance to broaden our vision, let us attempt to present in logical order the steps in this chain of events. Since the growing hopelessness of the Russian army released increasing numbers of soldiers monthly for the Germans, the German leaders pursued stubbornly the same ambition to crush the Allied armies before the American divisions could effectively intervene.

The Germans had patiently and systematically prepared the method of offensive which was eventually introduced anew in the Western Front operations. It was an element long disappeared from trench warfare, namely, surprise. For the long uncomfortable powerful artillery preparations which announced an attack eight days before the zero hour, they substituted a plan of intensive and instantaneous heavy and long range machine guns mixed with artillery and gas tear shells.

Thus, the mass attack of infantry was made possible, aided by machine guns and tanks, without the other side learning anything of the plans. Used for the first time late in October, 1917, it was this method which almost definitely broke the Italian front. With the line bent, the Italians courageously reformed behind the Piave while the prompt arrival of 11 French and British divisions barred to the Austrians and Germans the narrow outlets of the Trentino.

In March, 1918, it was the British who felt and learned the new style of German offensive. Thanks to the complete breakdown on the Russian front and the separate peace of Brest-Litovsk, the March offensive could be carried on with such a mass of effectives that the British Fifth Army, despite its gallantry and refusal to budge, was over-run.

Spur Teamwork
Allies Adopt Supreme Command System

Late in May it was the French army in its turn that was assailed along Le Chemin des Dames and the German crowding attack swung them along within 25 miles of Paris. From March 22 to July 20, 1918, the Germans placed their aces with despairing fury, hoping to win the game before the welding of the American and the Allied armies could be effected.

Facing this great peril the French and British governments on March 26, 1918 finally brought into being, although in an incomplete form at first, the unique command which had been discussed for several months. To appreciate impartially and truthfully the facts which follow, it is important to understand the precise and exact character and powers of the unique command.

Co-operation of the Allied armies was an essential problem which had existed since the start of the war and which until then received only imperfect and occasional solutions. However, on February 26, 1917, the convention called the Calais agreement subordinated the British generalissimo, Sir Douglas Haig, to the orders of the French generalissimo, Nivelle and charged Nivelle with co-ordinating the movements of the two armies.

But it was expressly stipulated that the agreement was valid only for the next offensive after which both commanders immediately were to regain their independence and liberty of action.

Lloyd George felt that the supreme chief should be considered as a soldier of all the Allied governments and not as belonging to one army any more than another. Foch should abandon the functions as chief of staff of the French army where it was possible to find someone to replace him.

However, would the state of mind of the British nation or the British army permit the Allies to resort to the unique command in one movement? It was necessary to proceed step by step, creating first the Inter-Allied General Staff, of which Foch would be named chief and provisionally confide in the future unique chief the command of the bulk of the general Inter-Allied reserves which would eventually be moved around behind the front and be the backstop of the two main armies.

Plan Introduced
Unique Command Policy Started Gradually

These would be held back and easily transported and shoved in to plug the hole at any strategic point where the German thrust hit. That would thus be a sort of unique command even before it was officially created.

We would have the fact before it was really established. We could thus parry the eventual dangers of the situation and at the same time accustom public opinion to the realities of the Supreme Command. It would be installed officially as soon as minds were prepared for it. That would be the second step.

The Inter-Allied Council to which was to be invited the United States, was scheduled to meet in Paris to discuss the project of the convention drafted by the two governments of France and Britain when at Caporetto events prevented us. Lloyd George and I departed immediately for Italy.

It was at Rapallo then where was decided the creation of the famous inter-allied committee, "Committee on War of Versailles" and its permanent General Staff. Foch was to represent France in this General Staff over which he was to preside and received besides the command of the general reserves of the inter-allied divisions in order to maintain the junction of the two armies of France and Britain.

The Allied governments were informed of these decisions, particularly the government in Washington which was asked adhesion as well as pardon for having had to take prompt decisions necessitated by the gravity of the situation.

I insist particularly in the character which Lloyd George attributed expressly to the function of the inter-allied general staff which, invested as a matter of fact in Foch, who would have liked to combine his new function with the function of chief of staff of the French Army.

In the course of the long discussion at Rapallo I authorized him to defend his point of view. The dialogue between him and Lloyd George was lively. The English Premier ended it by saying that the question was the government's affair and should be decided officially. He added:

Gen. Foch will be as much a counsellor to the other governments as to the French government. It is therefore necessary that he keep his judgment entirely independent. Personally I am most regretful if I am unable to think of Foch as counsellor to the British government as well as to the French government."

Such a conception was to gain force the day Foch became supreme chief.

Protocol Outlines Powers Of Commander

Some days after Rapallo, Clemenceau replaced me in the premiership. He maintained the war committee at Versailles, but retained Foch as chief of staff of the French Army, replacing him in the inter-allied general staff with Weygand. Foch thus lost his international character. He begged during four months commond of the general reserve of the Allied divisions, which Lloyd George and I had promised him.

On February 2, 1918, the committee at Versailles took up the question again as a result of his insistence. It invested Foch in the command of the general reserve of Allied divisions which was to be constituted without delay. A detailed protocol defined the powers which Foch as commander-in-chief of the divers armies would exercise over these reserves.

On February 19, Petain agreed to place eight divisions in the Genoa reserve group. General Diaz, commander-in-chief of the Italian Army, offered six divisions. On March 2, Haig declared he was unable to place a single man at the disposal of Foch.

The question was taken up again on March 14 in London when Foch asked Haig for several divisions for the reserve group and Haig refused energetically. Without allowing Foch to reply, Clemenceau agreed with Haig. In the meeting on March 15, Foch protested uselessly against the decision taken.

"On the eve of battle, he (Haig) is unwilling to listen. Yet he already has seen inter-allied battles; he knows what happens when no preliminary accord has been reached. Now, with such a battle in sight, understanding is lacking concerning the employment of the reserves of the various armies."

U. S. in Council
Pershing Takes Part in Organizing Plan

It was not yet a single command, but rather an application of the powers foreseen at Rapallo. Even the Beauvais convention which on April 3 completed that of Doullens, gave Foch only "strategic direction of military operations."

The English extracted even from that the following restrictions:

"Each commander-in-chief will have the right to appeal to his government if in his opinion his army finds itself in danger on account of any instructions received from Foch," as well as that other restriction which each commander exercised fully, namely the tactical conduct of his army.

As for the Americans it was only on May 2, at Abbeville, that they participated in the organization of the Supreme Command. Although his country was not our ally, but simply an associate, Gen. Pershing received an order to attend the war council at Abbeville. It was there that Foch received the title of Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies in France including the American Army. But how many restrictions, such as the above for example, and this:

"The American Army submitting to the direct authority of its chief will fight under its own flag."

It was quite certain after what had preceded that Foch could consider himself invested with international authority and that he did not have the least right to give orders to the Allied Armies in the name of the French government.

It is quite certain on the other hand that these definite but limited powers entitled him to maneuver on the front English and American divisions without infringing on them. Still Haig in May 1918, at one of the most critical hours of the war protested against Foch's employment of the English reserves on the French front.

Criticism Cited
Statements by Clemenceau Examined

If Foch had wanted to exercise on any of the Allied Armies a despotic and brutal command, he could have done so with no result other than the wounding of the soul of two nations fighting by our side.

This understood, let us discuss the criticism addressed by Clemenceau at Pershing. These criticisms comprise three divisions of facts, absolutely different, but which seem to be confounded in the same category. First, the necessity of considerably accelerating from May 1917, the sending of American effectives. Second, the necessity during several weeks of substituting troops on transports for foodstuffs and supplies. Third, the disorder and jamming in the American army.

Let us examine the first accusation. In May and June 1918, the situation was anguishing. Not that France dreamed of surrendering, but Paris was menaced and the losses undergone by the Franco-British armies from the end of March to the end of May endangered the great offensive which was to be launched in July and the war would be prolonged until 1919 under particularly cruel conditions. Public opinion in France necessitated the hastening of Americans. Clemenceau and Foch asked that 130,000 men should arrive in May and 150,000 in June.

Did Pershing, did the American government object? The facts answer eloquently: In May France received on her shores 242,000 Americans; in June 278,000, in July 300,000.

And when on June 1, 1918, the three governments of Britain, France and Italy, doubting the finishing of the war in 1918, requested in the name of Marshal Foch that the Washington government arrange to send a total of 100 divisions to France for 1919, at the rate of 300,000 men monthly, President Wilson replied simply:

"Why limit us to five million men."

U. S. Feat Praised
Difficulty in Forming Big Army Cited

Is the second accusation more solid? It seems that Clemenceau was inspired with the old idea of amalgamation despite Pershing, who responded reasonably to the Allied desires by forging into his division a proportion of infantry and machine gunners. But why rehash it since the figures are still there? Foch asked at the beginning of May in accord with Clemenceau that 120,000 American troops with machine gunners be sent in priority in May, June and July.

There again figures speak. Those wishes were surpassed by the fact that 250,000 troops arrived monthly from May to July.

As for the third accusation, is it necessary that we linger? Simply because the presidential automobile was stopped three hours on the highway by a jam after the victory, was it necessary to address the almost injurious criticisms against the great improvised army which crossed the Atlantic to fight?

Besides, all that was the affair of the general staff and the minute traditions of the general staff are not created by order. Heavier than the French and English divisions in infantry precisely because of necessity, the American division was more difficult to handle and transport and provision, insufficiently experienced and needing battle experience.

But the most painful character of those discussion was that they left the impression that the commander-in-chief of the American armies chicaned and cavilled on the order of the entrance of his soldiers on the battle front. The truth was to the contrary. During the bad days of March, 1918, he had in most noble terms claimed it as an honor that his imperfectly prepared units should be engaged in battle.

"We are here to be killed," said Generals Pershing and Bliss to Foch.

As a unique example of the intimate collaboration with the French army we know that during the war Pershing proposed his divisions in order to enter more quickly into the fight should be filtered and that regiments should be led into fire within the French divisions.

Recognition Given
Aid of America to Allies Declared Great

The names of those French places where American blood flowed generously retain all the memories. Even if the second million Americans present in France only participated partially in the front line battles, even if the third did not cross the Atlantic, even if the armistice interrupted their magnificent enthusiasm, who could measure the weight their very presence bore against the morale of the enemy and the decision of the enemy to lay down their arms?

Let us summarize the debate. The American government found itself faced with the most vast and complicated military problem and less prepared to solve it than any other country ever during the course of the formidable war. The role of its improvised army and its chief were worthy of a great nation which in the service of right, placed all its forces "without restrictions and without reserve."

Secret Diplomacy O. K.'d In British War Book

LONDON, April 29.—(INS.)—New fuel was added today to the eternal controversy over the causes of the World War by publication of the sixth volume of the British government's official war documents.

The title of the volume is "The Anglo-German Tension." It forms part of the comprehensive war library known as "Origins of the World War," whose publication first was authorized by Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald during his first premiership in 1924.

In contrast to the recent open diplomatic exchanges between nations, the volume quotes Viscount Grey of Fallodon, British secretary for foreign affairs at the outbreak of the war, as saying there must be "absolute secrecy" in British diplomatic exchanges.

"Our foreign policy is really anything but Machiavellian," Grey told the Imperial Defense Committee in 1922. "It is most simple and straightforward, but you cannot show your hand openly to the rest of the world which is not showing its hand to you."

The most sensational chapter in the book furnishes additional proof that Britain was prepared to join France against Germany long before 1914. Lord Bertie of Thame, British ambassador to France before the outbreak of the war, is quoted as saying Britain was ready to join France in the event of the latter's invasion of Germany "because attack is very often the best means of defense."

TONIGHT

at 7:30 O'Clock

ART GILES ORCHESTRA

A Victor Recording and R. C. A. Broadcasting Orchestra.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

AMOS AND ANDY, Madame Schumann-Heink, Will Mahoney and DeWolfe Hopper will brighten the Actors' Equity broadcast from New York at midnight, KDKA will be the Pittsburgh outlet.

Katherine Tift-Jones, better known as the impersonator of "Calliope" and other Negro characters on the networks, will perform for Gimbel Brothers in the WCAE studios tonight at 6 and 8 o'clock.

Schumann-Heink

Incidents in the life of Giuseppe Verdi will be interpreted by Julian Oliver and Nathaniel Shilkret's Orchestra in the 9 o'clock broadcast from WCAE. Paul Whiteman will have Catherine Dale Owen, movie actress as his Old Gold Hour guest on WJAS at 9.

Long-awaited Vincent Lopez at last will present his version of "The Darktown Strutters Ball" when the Purol program comes on KDKA at 8 o'clock. Lopez went into Harlem for atmosphere for this number. The maestro will "go West" with "Pony Boy" and "San Antonio."

The "carpenters" who vanished with a KDKA piano some months ago took the keys to the mystery with them, it seems.

Although his program opened with the "Stein Song" there was nothing damp about Senator Joseph R. Grundy's debut before the KDKA microphone last night.

The senator was pleased and personally congratulated Marquis Chisholm, the producer, and "Big Bill" Farren, the announcer.

Ho! Ho!

The radio station at Savoy Hill in England recently instructed the Glasgow station to observe silence during a certain interval in a forthcoming program.

"Righto," said Glasgow, "and shall we use our silence or yours?"

H. D. Wenzel, 4065 Penn avenue—Alfred Shirley is "Sir Walter Raleigh" in the Raleigh Revue.

The finest array of tin cans, glass jars, pieces of sheet iron, door bells, wash boilers and other articles ever discovered in one junk pile was taken into WTAM for "sound effects" recently.

With these articles dangling from his shoulders, Warren Wade, of the dramatic department, was not recognized by the doorman in the building and had to do a lot of explaining before he was allowed to ascend.

The Cleveland station is now serving tea for artists at four every afternoon.

KDKA's soloist at 6:15 tonight—Frederick A. Welty—is a former member of the world famous Dayton Westminster Choir. He is now minister of music at the Homestead Presbyterian Church.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Maj.-Gen. Charles McKinley Saltzman, chairman of the Federal Radio Commission, learned reading, writing and telegraphy at the same time and took charge of a country station, in Iowa, in the absence of the operator, at the age of eleven.

Recover Certificate.

The fate of Rowley Rawson's birth certificate, which has been causing him so much trouble in his attempt to claim his grandfather's title of "Baron Rawson, Earl of Heatherdey," will be finally settled.

Listeners who follow this feature will recall that Rawson first lost half of the certificate. Later he obtained the lost half only to lose the other half. Last week he managed to obtain both halves, but his Aunt Eunice, to whom he gave the two halves for safe keeping, had her bag snatched from her in the dark, and once more the entire certificate was missing.

Tonight Rawson recovers the entire certificate. He will at last be able to prove his identity and press the claim to his title.

"For a long time," John Maxwell stated in a Chicago newspaper, "I have been seeking a natural herbal preparation which would supplement a correct diet and proper hygiene in keeping the body 100 percent fit at all times. I have found that preparation in Herbal Flaxolyn.

"Flaxolyn is the discovery of an American physician, Dr. Harris H. Luntz, who, like myself, has devoted his life to the study of roots, barks and herbs and their application to the needs of the human body.

"Flaxolyn is not only the ideal corrective for constipation, but it is as well the sensible road to stomach health and digestive regularity."

Thousands of people here who formerly suffered nights of sleeplessness and days of stomach distress due to constipation, now feel fit, eat with keen appetites, and sleep serenely since taking Nature's own formula, Dr. Luntz's new Herbal Flaxolyn.

Hundreds of noted doctors and health sanatoriums all over the world have used Flaxolyn in the treatment of such symptoms as dizzy spells, liver disorders, gas, headaches, bad breath, belching, bloating, indigestion, sleepless nights—and have already written in praise of Flaxolyn.

3 BOYS HELD IN AUTO THEFTS

Three boys were held for court at a hearing before Magistrate Thomas Jones today in Morals Court on charges of larceny, robbery and misdemeanor—accused of stealing 12 automobiles, robbing downtown stores of $400 worth of merchandise and robbing the home of Mrs. Louis Batz, of 171 Knox avenue, of a phonograph and jewelry valued at $250.

Detectives say two of them, Joseph Okarma, 16, of 1113 Mary Ann street, and Robert McCann, 16, of 801 Arlington avenue, admitted stealing the autos and merchandise, which was recovered. Nick Sencnik, 17, of 1210 Gorman way, was alleged to have ridden in the stolen automobile. Joseph Steupak, 18, of 18 Enon way, and Nick Keblish, 16, of 77 South Eleventh street, arrested with the others, were discharged.

WILSON HEADS PLANE FIRM

E. E. Wilson, president of the Hamilton Standard Propeller Company of Pittsburgh, has been named president of the Sikorsky Aviation Corporation. It was announced today following a meeting of the board of directors of the corporation in Stratford, Conn., last night. Last year Mr. Wilson resigned as commander in the United States Navy to join the Ioca' firm.

Both the Hamilton company and the Sikorsky corporation are affiliated with the United Aircraft and Transport Corporation. A. C. Dickinson, retiring president of the corporation, was named chairman of the board, succeeding Frederick Rentschler, of New York, president of the United Aircraft and Transport Corporation, whose increasing duties with the parent corporation forced him to resign as chairman of the board of the Sikorsky firm.

INCA TREASURE HUNT FAILS

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP.)—An expedition which left the United States last January to search for hidden Inca treasure in Peru returned home yesterday with one member of the party missing—and without having discovered any of the ancient riches.

The missing member, Alberto Valenzuela Rosell, purported last of the royal line of Inca chieftains, deserted — at their request — the expedition shortly after it arrived in Peru.

Gideon A. Lasley and Robert T. Jackson, both of Detroit, the other two members and backers of the expedition, returned home empty-handed. They said they discovered Rosell was not an Inca, and he was sent to prison after a futile assault on their lives.

They were enthusiastic about the country and said the trip had not been in vain. They plan to return in June.

SHELTERS FOE IN GANG FEUD

CHICAGO, April 29.—(INS.)—Despite the death feud waged by their respective Chicago gangs Frank McErlane is reposing at the Wisconsin North Woods Estate of Joe Saltis, while recuperating from his recent hospital gun battle, it was learned here today.

This disclosure revealed a strange pact of friendship between the two gang leaders, according to authorities. They are really friendly enemies, and their gang's machine gun battles for the spoils of the beer business are merely commercial affairs which are forgotten after business hours, detectives who know the two, concluded.

McErlane's gun battle with three assailants while a patient in German Deaconess Hospital here, has left him a cripple, probably for life.

Drive It from Your System with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Constipation steals the best out of your life. Robs you of strength, vitality, health itself! And many people do not realize that perpetual fatigue, coated tongues, bad breath, are often signs that constipation is in their system.

You must move poisonous wastes out of your system and keep them moving. But there's a right way and a wrong way. Pills, drugs and ordinary cathartics give but temporary relief—and their dose must be constantly increased to be effective.

Flier Lands Mail 12 Hours Ahead Of Bremen

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP.)—An airplane catapulted from the North German Lloyd liner Bremen 350 miles at sea landed four bags of mail today approximately 12 hours before the ship was due to dock.

The plane, resuming ship-to-shore air mail service from the liner inaugurated last year, alighted in the harbor three and one-half hours after it left the deck of the ship. It taxied to the end of the North German Lloyd pier and within five minutes the mail bags, containing about 1,000 letters and postcards, were on the way in a taxicab to the Brooklyn post-office.

YALE WELFARE AIMS STRESSED

CHICAGO, April 29.—(AP.)—James Rowland Angell, president of Yale University, told Chicago alumni at a dinner last night that "American universities have gone as far as they can without doing damage in specialization."

He made this assertion in explaining Yale's "human welfare group," which he described as an association of various departments under an "institute of human relations" formed to work out various problems connected with the study of man.

"There is already too much breaking up of education into water-tight compartments where the professors of one subject resent suggestion from another," he said. "Emphasis now must be placed on a new spirit of co-operation among fields of knowledge. That is what the 'human welfare group' at New Haven is attempting."

Departments contributing to the work include medicine, law, engineering, psychology, sociology, economics and government. Dr. C. E. A. Winslow, professor of public health at Yale, also spoke on the work.

Lady de Frece On Road to Recovery

CANNES, France, April 29.—(AP.)—Sir Walter De Frece has informed the Associated Press correspondent here that Lady De Frece, internationally known on the stage as Vesta Tilley, is convalescent and that he hopes she will be able to return to England within a fortnight.

On March 20 the Associated Press carried a dispatch concerning the removal of Lady De Frece from a nursing home where she had been several weeks under treatment for a temporary derangement due to a nervous breakdown. This dispatch, obtained from what was believed to be a reliable source, erroneously said the transfer was to a hospital for the insane. This correction is gladly made, together with the further report from Sir Walter that his wife is on the road to recovery. She is now at her home in Monaco.

The company is prepared to spend $1,000,000 for equipment, according to Wortman, and has arranged for a garage, a telephone system and necessary forms of insurance.

Wortman is listed as general manager of the company. Other officers are: President, U. J. L. Peoples, architect; vice president, Dr. F. C. Blessing; counsel, Attorney J. S. Simon.

Greets His Pal in Court; Joins Him In Prison

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 29.—(AP.)—Ralph Humphries' farewell to William Siegmund, who had been committed to stand trial for robbing the Royal Bank of Canada last December, cost him his freedom.

Humphries, who had been a spectator in court, walked over to Siegmund and placed his arm across the prisoner's shoulders after the session yesterday.

Ira C. Jones, the crown's chief witness, turned as he was leaving the room and saw Humphries.

"Why, that's the other hold-up man," he exclaimed.

15,000 JAILED BY U. S. DRYS

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(INS.)—Indicating the enormity of the liquor traffic in the United States nearly 6,000 stills were seized and more than 15,000 arrests made by the federal prohibition bureau during the first three months of the year.

March seizures made public today by Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran showed 1,947 stills were confiscated compared to 1,968 in February. Arrests in March were 5,380 compared to 5,386 in February.

While Treasury officials were anticipating the transfer of the enforcement end of prohibition to the Justice Department within a short time, they continued their policy of vigorous operations especially against the bigger units of the bootleg trust.

Seizures showed the continued turn of the bootleggers from industrial alcohol to corn, cane and beet sugar alcohol as the basis for the various brands and types of intoxicants.

WASHINGTONS' GRAVES MOVED

WASHINGTON, April 29 (AP.)—Remains of more than 50 members of the Washington family, buried on the Wakefield Va. estate where the first President was born, were gathered from their graves yesterday and placed in a reconstructed vault as part of the restoration of the historic spot.

The Washington graves, whose bodies were moved because of flood generations all centering on the President, and including Col. John Washington, the first of the family to come to America; Mary Lawrence, Capt. John and Augustine Washington, the great-grandfather, grandfather and father of George.

The restoration was undertaken by the Wakefield National Memorial Association, organized for the purpose of turning the estate over to the government for preservation as a national monument or park. A duplicate of the home in which Geo. Washington was born is to be built upon the original site.

The reinterment was accompanied by services conducted by Bishop Freeman of Washington in the presence of official witnesses.

HOTEL LIQUOR CHARGE FAILS

PHILADELPHIA, April 29 (AP.)—Holding that the government had failed to make out a case, United States Commissioner Howard Long discharged Charles Duffy, Jr., manager, and J. M. Kaiser, assistant manager of the Hotel Walton. They had been charged with illegal possession of liquor and maintaining a common nuisance, based on a raid on the hotel roof garden several weeks ago. Prohibition agents who made the raid said they found flasks and bottles containing liquor.

Despite the dismissal of the defendants, A. P. McPhee, assistant administrator, said he would recommend indictment of Duffy and Kaiser by the federal grand jury. Civil padlock action against the roof garden is pending.

X-Rays Reveal Pearls in Oysters

CHICAGO, April 29 (AP.)—There simply isn't any privacy any more, not even for a hard working pearl producing oyster.

This was revealed by R. S. Landauer, physicist, who spoke at a session of the American Society of Radiological Technicians. X-ray is to blame.

With modern X-ray apparatus one can tell whether an oyster contains a pearl without bothering to open the oyster, Mr. Landauer said.

The hazards of carrying contraband liquor also have been greatly increased by the rapid development of X-ray and even now the government is contemplating the use of X-ray by its prohibition and customs agents to detect contraband bottles and the like, Mr. Landauer declared.

JAPAN HONORS EMPEROR, 29

TOKIO, April 29.—(AP.)—The Japanese Empire observed a national holiday today, the birthday of its sovereign, Hirohito, one hundred twenty-fourth occupant of the august high seat [illegible] descendants of the Sun Goddess is 29-years-old. Government offices and banks were closed and the Rising Sun flag was on display throughout the Mikado's dominions.

The beginning of his thirtieth year finds this slight, bespectacled young man in good health, striving by study and research to fit himself for the job of reigning over an empire of 60,000,000 inhabitants.

During the past year the Emperor has witnessed the formal completion of the reconstruction of his capital, Tokio, and its seaport, Yokohama, after the great disaster of earthquake and fire which devastated them September 1, 1923.

This is the fourth year Japan has celebrated April 29 as the Emperor's birthday, for although he was not formally enthroned until 1928, Hirohito actually began his reign on the death of his father, the Emperor Taisho on Christmas Day, 1926.

MAN LYNCHED AS BOMBER

TAMPA, Fla., April 29 (AP.)—A coroner's jury here brought in a verdict of death from gunshot wounds and strangulation at the hands of persons unknown in the case of John Hodar, 40, whose body was found near Antioch yesterday. The man, of Hungarian birth, was taken by a mob Sunday from a deputy sheriff who had arrested him here in connection with the bombing of one home last week in Plant City and an attempt to bomb another.

Almost simultaneously with the coroner's verdict fingerprint experts of the Tampa Police Department announced that Hodar had handled dynamite which failed to explode at the home of H. D. Williaford in Plant City.

Mrs. J. I. Waller, neighbor of Williaford, suffered injuries which may prove fatal when dynamite wrecked the back porch of her home as she opened the back door last Thursday morning.

AWAIT MORROW POSITION ON PROHIBITION

Drys and Anti-Drys Both Hope Candidate Will Side With Them on Issue

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Dwight W. Morrow, the soft-spoken financier-diplomat whose trail of success in delicate missions has led from Mexico City to London, steps off the Leviathan in New York today straight into one of the greatest tugs of war that any political campaign has seen.

Is he going to be dry or anti-dry in his forthcoming campaign for election to the United States senate?

There is actually more interest in that question in political Washington than there is in the naval treaty which Morrow and his colleagues are bringing back from London.

He has informed friends that he will take a definite stand on the prohibition question, that he will not "pussyfoot" on the issue. The New Jersey primary is but seven weeks away, and a declaration by Morrow cannot be long delayed.

Ex-Sen. Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, heretofore always dry, supported by the Anti-Saloon league, has announced his candidacy in opposition to Morrow and has done an astonishing about-face on the prohibition question. Having voted for the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act, Frelinghuysen recanted and publicly declared prohibition a mistake.

It is expected the Democratic nomination will go to Alexander Simpson, who is militantly anti-prohibition. Hence, whoever wins the Republican nomination in Jersey will have to meet anti-dry opponent in November.

Since Frelinghuysen's declaration, the professional drys like the Anti-Saloon league have been somewhat panicky. Their pressure upon Morrow is going to be tremendous for the next few weeks.

COMEDY WITH AND WITHOUT MUSIC ARE WEEK'S STAGE ATTRACTIONS

'Babes in Toyland' Reborn With Barry Lupino Rocking Cradle

By GEORGE SEIBEL

ONCE UPON a Time there was—

That is the way a review of "Babes in Toyland" ought to begin the last of the series of Victor Herbert revivals, which came to the Alvin Theater last night with the whole family of Mother Goose.

George Seibel

Old Ponce de Leon, looking for the fountain of youth around Palm Beach, might have lost his years more easily by laughing at Barry Lupino, the funniest clown on our musical stage.

And no Peace Commission would want to disarm the Toy Soldiers whose parade at the close of the second act caused the most enthusiastic demonstration in any Pittsburgh theater this season.

Once upon a time Glen MacDonough wrote a book called "Babes in Toyland," and made it into a fairy operetta, and Victor Herbert composed tinkling tunes for it and merry marches—and it made the world glad, especially the little children who are the most important people in the world.

And now the Babes in Toyland" have come to life again merrier and funnier than ever because Barry Lupino has helped in the resurrection, and he is the funniest clown you ever saw.

The way he gets the audience to hiss the oldest of his Joe Millers only intensifies and accentuates the fun.

You can criticise "Hamlet" or "Ghosts," but you can only laugh at "Babes in Toyland" and hum or whistle the tunes.

MOTHER GOOSE'S FAMILY

Children of every age will enjoy this evening with Mother Goose's family. Little Bo Peep, who is played adorably by Margaret Byers, is only one in the crowd. There are Jack and Jill, Miss Muffet and Boy Blue, Curly Locks and Tommy Tucker, Simple Simon and Sally Waters, Bobby Shaftoe and Red Riding Hood, and Contrary Mary, who is sung so piquantingly by Edith Scott.

Mary, as Uncle will remember, was in love with Alan, who is played gallantly by Frank Gallagher, but there is a miserly and wicked stage uncle who wants to marry Mary himself for her fortune, and tries to get rid of Alan and his sister Jane, who is represented by Betty Byron in uproarious fashion.

The scene in which Barry Lupino reads Little Miss Muffet to Betty Byron is funny enough to cry over, and then the scene in which Barry Lupino and Rupert Darrell, as the two Jolly Sailors, engage in a spelling lesson, is sad enough to split your sides.

And you should see the Rag Doll Dance of Barry Lupino—the most artistic orgy of eccentric tumbling and dancing you've seen in a blue moon.

Yes, Barry Lupino has made over "Babes in Toyland" until it is mostly Barry Lupino. To which no one will object, for he is of all acrobatic clowns the most agile and elastic and ingenious. And the two little Lupinos, Barry and Antoinette, follow in his footsteps.

ALL THESE FIERCE BEASTS

Around him is a world of enchanted wonder. All these fierce beasts—lions and bears, spiders and dogs, come to life in the Enchanted Forest and the Toymakers workshop. And a whole regiment of little midgets help in the carnival of the toys. One of them, little June Meier, even carries off the honors in singing "I Can't Do That Sum." Pittsburgh's own Catherine Lu Eyles does some very graceful ballet work.

Then there are gossamer-winged fairies and butterflies, and a grove of Christmas trees, and Santa Claus himself in his chariot, and a big shoe that serves as a ship—and ever so many beautiful and wonderful things—all the toys come to life and all the gray hairs in the audience turn black and brown and golden again under the mighty magic of the melodious extravaganza "Once upon a time—"

It was a great night for Victor Herbert and Barry Lupino at the Alvin.

Coffman to Keep Minnesota Post

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 29 (AP.)—President Lotus D. Coffman of the University of Minnesota, disputed reports that he might resign by declaring that he intends to remain at Minnesota. Announcement that President Coffman had an offer from another school was made Saturday. The offer was said to include a much higher salary than he now receives.

PITT CAP AND GOWN SHOW SCORES IN NIXON

By J. FRED LISSFELT

The Civic Club of Allegheny County last night added another good deed to its long list of benefices to Pittsburgh by standing sponsor to the opening performance of our university's Cap and Gown Club. An elegant audience filled the Nixon Theater and applauded uproariously all the quips and songs in this gay show, "Manhattan Preferred." Briefly the story follows the lightning career to fame on Broadway of a Pitt graduate, who has just attended his last class in the thirty-second story of Art Cathedral. All hail to the Cathedral if it guarantees so much fun and fame in so short a space of time with the comradeship of so many good chums and to the tune of such good music. There are wise cracks galore and they are fresh enough. The lyrics are aptly written, apropos of the day, and the tunes will be whistled as far as the commuters can carry them.

J. Fred Lissfelt

For quick change in scenery and snappy tempo in dialog the show is to be highly commended, but after all is said, Pitt's dancers are the winners. The "Tiller Girls" are stunningly matched in physique and ability to step. There are tap dancers who tread the boards as lightly as falling feathers. And there is one enticing creature, portrayed by Allen, who knows the wiles of every feminine gesture to perfection. The leading "lady" of Bonner is one of the most beautiful impersonations imaginable.

The singing is above the usual quality of college shows. Lester Cohen, Klate and Levy score heavily, but the octet of male voices is as mellow a stunt as one could find in revusical comedy.

Special features that would take us back to the show were the chorus of riveters and their honest interpretation of "Hearts and Flowers," the grand parade of "Hell's Belles," the spirit of Kleeb, Crawford, Tuft's "Duke" and Cornman, who with the above named, kept the play moving on tip-toe, and the audience in constant good humor.

Louis Fushan and John M. Walker are responsible for the book. G. Norman Reis and Fushan for the lyrics, and Dr. Benjamin Levant wrote the music.

Defy the weather in a good closed car. Bargains in used cars are offered in the Used Car columns of today's Classified Ads.

Toyland

Marcella Swanson is one of the principals in the Herbert operetta, "Babes in Toyland," which is on the Alvin stage.

Diver to Describe Lifting of Submarine

Francis G. Smith, a deep sea diver who helped raise the submarine S-51 from the bottom of the ocean after the submarine had collided with the S. S. City of Rome in 1925, will speak this evening in the Nevin Room of the Fort Pitt Hotel to members of Pittsburgh Chapter National Association of Cost Accountants. Smith will describe the story of the raising.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

This Town of Ours

THE SIDNEY (Lenore Ulric) Blackmers are On the Verge. The John Fields are having the seal shattered in Chi. The Jimmy Spertors were married a month ago, and Frances Cressey is his new honey. The Ferdie Grofes (he orchestrated "Rhapsody in Blue") are being Stork'd. August Heckscher will back Grover Whalen for Mayor. Clark and Helen Twobutrees will be re-wedded in June. Genet of the New Yorker is not Grace H. Conklin at all, but Janet Flanner. So sorreh. Sue Conroy, who was Zieglefeld in "Rio Rita," has been Mrs. Mooney Kaz secretly for a year. The newest nick-tag for Vulture Vincheli is "The Blabbay of Broadway." Al Wohlman, of the Club Richman, went to the race track and beat them for all he had.

Tamara Geva, who was grand in "Whoopee," will bride it this week. Senator Copeland will retire after the present administration. The legend is that Frisco, the clown, started his career in Chicago rathskellers. He was with Sothern and Marlowe when he was little. One of the dirtiest shows, Aristophanes' "Lysistrata," was passed by the Philly censors, chiefly because Philly society is backing it. Courtenay Terrett, one of the better reporters, just finished a book tagged "Only Saps Work." The D. Arenbergs, of Cleveland (Dorothy McCarthy), anticipate their blessed event on May 1. Lee Shubert never eats meat. Norman Anthony, the editor, is still dusting off his clothes after the terrific shake-up in Life's editorial rooms.

Hendrik Van Loon's "S. Y. R." (Liveright) will be the Literary Guild's September selection. Robert Russell, creator of "Diamond Dick," still writes that sort of stuff in his Graybar Building den. The biggest electric sign (RKO's) will cover the front of the remodeled Columbus edifice at 57th. The news will break shortly about the selling of a tanking house because its president is plenty sick. Cosmopolitan, the mag, drops from 35 cents to two-bits with the June number. Margaret Mitchener is "unrupmored." A. E. Solon, of the Eaton Steel group in Cleveland, has five million to spare, so that town will have a tabloid. As columned here ever so long ago, United Artists will not make another picture with Harry Richman.

Ina Claire is in town at the Algonk, but is hiding from Park Rowgers who might inquire about John Gilbert. Leopold Stokowski, the orchestra conductor, who spoke perfect English when he arrived from Britain in 1909, now has a strong Polish accent. Western Electric has perfected a hearing gadget for the deaf which can be attached to any theater seat for a nominal sum. If Etherlind Terry, the new "Nina Rosa" star (who dropped from 140 to 120 lbs. the Tuesday at 126, she will be fired. The ticket broker-managers' pbrwd, which is supposed to function June 1, will not function by Sept. 1, unless every manager comes in, as if they will. "Flying High," a N. Y. knockout, flopped in Boston, which is where F. Stone's show is a smash!

They've just found 113,000 new words by Casanova (in German, French and Italian) at the Castle Dux, where the old gamemper was librarian. Paul Boatner's autographed copy of Geo. Moore's "Story-Teller's Holiday" is being held up by the gov't because it is "obscene." You can purchase the thing at almost any tome shop. Muriel Spring, who was pediculous with charm when she was in the "Follies," ever so long ago, is still being adored in the Sherry-Netherland manner.

The Jack Crosbie-Gladys Bourne marriage has clicked in spite of gossips. John Henry Mears has secretly signed Fred Melchior as pilot for his round-the-world dash. Ed Schwab, brother of the steel man, will be grandpappy soon. Walter Distallaier and Belle (beautiful) Kromberg will middle-aisle it during the Heat Wave. Baby-carriage manufacturers are deluging the Lindberghs with gift go-carts.

At the premiere of "Dear Love" in New Haven, Walter Woolf appeared in the finale wearing a full dress suit and spats! Gil Miller is plotting a revival of "Hamlet" with Bel Geddes sets and Leslie Howard as the star ham. That new book about an African savage's own story is strictly a "Joan Lowell," the author being a Hahlim licorice stick. It's a boy over at the Earl Fabers'. The reason the orchestra leader at the Jewish National Theater on Houston street misses all those cues in that the leading lady, who is necked violently at every performance, is his squaw! That noted lawyer who named his yacht "Jezebel" for his blonde "heart" has lost her, already. Eddie Quinn, who never liked working, anyhow, has married Claire Samuels of Providence, who just inherited a mere six million smackers.

M. Gendel says the reason he never will become a cartoonist for the Sunday Supplements is that he can't take that long getting to the point of a joke. Weitzenkorn, whose "First Mortgage" was scorned by the critics, is in the old country writing a newspaper opus. When will Prohibition Campbell learn that his raids on night clubs only make bondsmen rich? The Ringling outfit shattered the circus record for coin in N. Y. The "Alice in Wonderland" ballet in the "Puttin' on the Ritz" flicker was done in the 4th Music Box revue, note for note.

Robert Garland, Evetelly critic, is in Chicago, where he says he probably will marry Queenie Smith. The most interesting thing about Broadway, is writing about it. Emil Jannings, who wasn't considered for the talkies here because of his dialect, will amaze you in his first German-made chin-ema, which was shown secretly last wk. Crowell has peddled its mag, Mentor, which will marry World Traveler in June. Macy's is selling 100 ft. of home-made movie film at $3.52 while the Kodak firm's price is $5, which will probably start a war like the cigaret rivals. When the breaks go against you on The Grandest Canyon, you get more knocks than a door.

ELINOR GLYN tells "The First Secret of Charm"

ELINOR GLYN
famous writer on romance

"Wonderful colors, soft, shimmering underthings make you feel charming—feminine"

Advising Girls of PITTSBURGH

How many girls write me, asking the key to that riddle—the secret of charm.

"Dear Miss Glyn: What is it that makes a girl popular? I am young and am said to be good looking, but I see other girls not nearly so pretty getting lots more attention than I do... what is the secret?"
EVELYN T———

Girls, there is one sure secret of charm, the most important secret in every girl's life—it is the key to popularity. To romance. BE FEMININE.

A man likes A girl who is a "good sport." Meets him on his own ground. But he ADORES the woman who makes him believe she is utterly, mysteriously feminine.

First of all, you must FEEL your own charming femininity before you can impress others.

One of the SUREST ways for a girl to gain perfect CONFIDENCE in her own dainty, lovely femininity is to wear charming lingerie and negligees.

Wonderful colors, soft, shimmering materials, lace edged underthings! They just make a woman believe in herself—feel her inherent charm as a woman.

Irresistible Charm

If she but keeps all this loveliness at its very best—as BEAUTIFUL as when it came, NEW, from its tissued box, she is captain of her fate, irresistible.

But, girls tell me, it is so difficult to wear lovely underthings always and keep them looking as wonderful, as COLORFUL, as when they were new. Frequent washing, and we must be dainty, takes some of the lovely color and charm out of a dainty garment.

(Right) After 12 Lux washings—every thread in place, silk and lace fibres intact, color intact. Retains the charm of new!

And I always reply, that is too often the case, but it need never be so if women faithfully use that invaluable product, Lux—which is made especially to cleanse without disturbing the vibrant loveliness of the colors.

Pitt Audience Is Given Laugh Fest in Fagan Comedy

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS.

THE PLAYWRIGHT'S old, time-tried, reliable formula, whereby one mate recaptures the meandering love of the other by the simple expedient of having the injured one assume the cloak of indifference and pretend to be amorously interested in someone else proves to be as efficacious as ever in the case of the Nancy with whom "Nancy's Private Affair" is concerned. "Nancy's Private Affair" is the play in the Pitt and it is somewhat concerned with others, too, but mostly with Nancy.

It is a comedy, this exposition of recreant romance, philandering husband and wifely devotion of a young woman who has become dowdy and doesn't even wake up to her own shortcomings when she finds that a gold-digging flapper is stealing her husband.

IS PLENTY OF FUN

You see the basic elements are not at all new, but, as written by Myron C. Fagan and acted by the members of the George Sharp Players, it is oddles of fun for the audience. Although its theme is dated and its technical construction limps even to the extent of calling for the support of the long arm of coincidence, it is strictly modern in the snappiness of its dialogue and attains to the farcical degree in its fun qualities.

And it is strictly new, too, the original production being still in house of its birth in New York where it has been running since January. This bit of information for those who might wish to thank Mr. Sharp for bringing plays that are right up to date to the Pitt. But the first consideration, of course, is its merit as a laugh-provoker and it has that in abundance.

ALL EDITH KING

It just escapes being a one-part play. Except for the exigencies of occasion, when other characters have something to say to sort of develop the plot, the action is almost a monologue for Edith King in the part of Nancy. And she reveals another side of Miss King—at heart she's a cat—or a mighty good actress. They say good artists do not interpret but live their parts. So I say Miss King is a cat. At least the way she "lives" Nancy was most cat-like—smoothly purring, ingratiating, lovely but clawing. How she claws the little gold-digger and her mother! And makes 'em like it! Yes, this play is all Edith King—and nobody regrets that the rest of the cast are mostly decorative.

In her support are Hugh Banks as a young friend of Nancy, a frank young friend, who calls her a "mudhen" in describing her appearance as a loving wife; Mabel Kroman, as her sister; Peggy Dougherty, as the good-looking flapper; Alice Ann Baker, as the latter's mother and co-conspirator in search of gold; Emmett Vogan, as Nancy's husband, rather stodgy for a reputed lothario, and Robert Fiske, as a lord somebody or other, whose playful attitude toward women has a lot to do with the final satisfactory outcome of the comedy.

Money when you need it, in amounts up to $500. See the "Loan Ads" in the Classified Section.

GALA MIDNIGHT SHOW AS N. V. A. BENEFIT IN PENN TONIGHT

Actors and musicians from all Pittsburgh theaters will be featured in a gala midnight show to be held tonight in the Penn Theater as a benefit for the National Variety Artists' fund.

Most important in this drive for funds for maintenance of the N. V. A. Sanatorium at Saranac Lake and to give a helping hand to actors grown too old to be self-supporting is the fact that the spirit of humanitarianism seems to be the keynote behind the movement to make the N. V. A. the strongest theatrical organization in the world. The actor who has helped everybody in the past, whose charities have reached across the country, is awakened at last to the fact that he must help his own kindfolk in the profession.

FEATURED PERFORMERS

Among those to be seen and heard at tonight's performance will be the entire stage show current in the Penn, with Shaw and Lee, Al Evans, Jerry Coe and Bros., Tito Coral, Desha and Samone, Chester Hale Girls, David Poretzki and the Penn orchestra; the "Dancing Eyes" presentation from the Stanley, with Lucille Peterson, Townsend and Bald, Art Kahn and David Broudy's Stanley Orchestra; Phenomena, "the man with a radio mind," from the Harris; Brian McDonald, M. C., from the John P. Harris Memorial Theater McKeesport; Paul Spore and others from the Enright; Peggy Dougherty, Vera Ross and Emmett Vogan from the George Sharp Players in the Pitt, and members of the cast of "Bates in Tuyland," from the Alvin.

The lower floor and mezzanine are reserved and the balcony unreserved. All seats are $1 and can be secured at the box offices of all theaters in advance and at the Penn tonight.

WOMAN FOE OF RASKOB IN RACE

LINCOLN, Neb., April 29.—(AP)—Entering the Nebraska senatorial campaign as the first Democratic candidate to file, Dr. Jennie Callfas, of Omaha, announced she would demand the removal of John J. Raskob, Democratic chieftain, in her Nebraska campaign.

"He's certainly out of place there," Dr. Callfas observed, explaining her withdrawal in 1928 as a national committeewoman was partly because of Raskob's appointment.

Shortly after the Houston convention she resigned as national committeewoman and Mrs. Charles Ryan, of Grand Island, as Al Smith supporter, was appointed to succeed her.

Ingersoll Mansion Destroyed By Fire

MONTCLAIR, N. J., April 29.—(AP)—The Ingersoll mansion, for many years the home of Charles H. Ingersoll, the watch manufacturer, was destroyed by fire early this morning with a loss estimated by fire officials at more than $1,000,000.

The mansion had been occupied by the Ingersoll family until three months ago when it was sold and turned into an inn. The house was of frame construction and built about 40 years ago.

Self-Inflicted Wound Fatal to Clubman

CHICAGO, April 29.—(AP)—Edward H. Yonkers, 58, well-known clubman and head of a wholesale tailoring company, died in a hospital in Evanston, last night, of a self-inflicted bullet wound. No motive for the act was established.

PAIR KILLED IN RENT QUARREL

TULSA, April 29.—(AP)—Charles M. Morton, 42, Tulsa sportsman, and his wife, 40, were shot to death here last night after a quarrel with a neighbor, police said, as a result of his attempt to increase the amount of rent on a garage where the Mortons kept their automobile.

The neighbor, Roy Freeman, 38, was arrested. Mr. and Mrs. Morton's two sons, Melvin, 16, and Bebe, 14, told police that Freeman shot their father as he drove his car into the garage and then shot their mother when she ran from the house. Freeman was shot in the chin.

Freeman was beaten severely by the two boys and police expressed the belief Freeman shot himself accidentally in the struggle.

Morton formerly was a boxing promoter.

Stays At Home, Awaits Census Taker

CHICAGO, April 29.—(AP)—When the census takers started their work, they broadcast the plea:

"The least people can do is remain at home as much as possible during the enumeration."

W. A. Lang is probably the only one in Chicago who intentionally heeded the plea, and look what Mr. Lang wrote to United States Commissioner Edwin W. Walker:

"I am a descendant of John Bradford, Colonial Governor of Massachusetts. I wanted to be counted as a member of Uncle Sam's family. I have remained at home since census taking started. My name is on the mail box. Why haven't the enumerators appeared?"

IMPOSE HEAVY TERMS ON 4

WAYNESBURG, Pa., April 29.—George Greenwood, alias George Rimmell, of Jefferson, was sentenced to from one to two years for burglary and six months to one year for jail breaking when he pleaded guilty to the two counts. The sentences are to be served in the Western Penitentiary. Greenwood was one of four prisoners to escape from the Green County Jail last February. He was arrested last week at Tarentum accused of writing worthless checks.

Long sentences were imposed on three youths when they pleaded guilty to attacking a young Carmichaels girl last month. They were Riley Walter, sentenced to from three to six years in the Western Penitentiary, Roy Gray, from one to two years in the Allegheny County Workhouse and John Mosier, who was given an indeterminate term in the workhouse.

Jury Ignores Bill Over Malt Seizure

SHARON, Pa., April 29.—Although the grand jury ignored the bill against Fred Brown, of Sharon, and Ernest Caldwell, of Sharpsville, on a charge of transporting liquor the June grand jury will be asked to consider the case again, District Attorney Leo H. McKay said.

The two men were arrested when they were found with a truck of malt mixture, which officers say can be used in making beer. McKay plans to make a test case.

Bentleyville Men Face Rum Charges

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., April 29.—Rocco Bondardere and Bruno Yerace, of Bentleyville, were held for court on charges of violating the dry laws. Police claim they were caught transporting 10 gallons of liquor.

FAKE RAIDERS HOLD UP 10

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., April 29.—Two young Texans are under arrest here while police search for a third, believed to be ringleader of a trio which staged a holdup at Nemacolin, early yesterday removing 10 men of $1,000 and valuables. Those held are Charles Burke, 20, of Fort Worth, and John Foster, 22, of Dallas. Police believe the third member of the trio made a getaway from Brownsville with most of the loot.

The three posing as prohibition agents, "raided" a Nemacolin pool hall with the ruse that they were searching for liquor. They produced pistols and lined the men against the wall, rifling them of their valuables.

CALLS BUSINESS CHALLENGE TO BEST BRAINS

Butterworth Tells Leaders Of Need for 'Enlightened Self Interest' in Industry

International News Service

WASHINGTON April 29 —Business is confronted with conditions challenging its intelligent leadership, President William Butterworth declared today in opening the eighteenth annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Industrial leaders of the nation listened while Butterworth outlined "What's Ahead for Business."

"Business has turned a critical eye upon itself," he said. "Out of these frank self appraisals a fundamental fact emerges in its proper perspective, and that fundamental fact is that the primary object of business is not social uplift nor the fostering of the arts and sciences, but is now as it has always been in reality—profits.

ALL ARE PARTNERS

"We are engaging as never before in enterprises upon which millions of people are dependent. Thus we are all partners in this great enterprise which we call American business, and so it is that enlightened self interest very distinctly tends to a same social point of view.

"This is clearly manifest in the attitude of American business toward the American standard of living. It is obvious that an impoverished public cannot buy, and it is equally obvious that business cannot exist if it cannot sell."

Perfection has by no means been attained, and it would be shortsighted for business to dismiss any sound critical analysis of the present system, he said.

LAUDS HOOVER ACTION

The government can most effectively sponsor a joint movement for stabilization of employment and business, and this already has been undertaken by President Hoover through committees of leaders in government, industry and labor, Col. C. O. Sherrill, former city manager of Cincinnati, said at a round-table conference. He declared:

"To make these efforts a complete success it will be necessary for the states and municipalities to assist in stabilization of industry and employment."

Discussing curtailment of oil production, Robert R. MacMillan, president of the California Oil and Gas Association, Los Angeles, said oil producers responded cheerfully to the suggestion of President Hoover that petroleum be conserved.

Civil War Veteran, Ex-Sheriff, Dies

GREENVILLE Pa. April 28 — Thomas Stewart, 85, former Mercer County sheriff, died at his home here after a short illness. Stewart was a Civil War veteran and was wounded twice. He served as sheriff from 1899 to 1902 and later was a member of borough council.

Church Papers Sought, Stone Stolen

LOS ANGELES April 29 AP — Theft of the cornerstone of a church apparently in an attempt to obtain papers and church documents supposedly hidden in it was reported to the police here.

The cornerstone, 2 feet long, 1½ feet wide and 3 inches thick was pried from the foundation of the Mount Olive Baptist Church. The Rev. James Spencer of the church reported that the thieves gained nothing as the documents were buried behind the stone which was found intact in a vacant lot smashed to bits.

DUQUESNE LAW BANQUET SET

The twelfth annual banquet of the Duquesne Law Club of Duquesne University will be held Thursday at 7 p. m. at the Pittsburgh Athletic Association. P. W. Rice, Jr., a member of the first law class to graduate from Duquesne University in 1914, will be toastmaster. All students and faculty members of the law school will be in attendance together with many members of the law school alumni.

Walter C. Douglas, Jr., of Philadelphia, the principal speaker, was for many years secretary of the State Board of Law Examiners. He is an authority on legal education and admission to the bar. Many of the new legislative adopted in Pennsylvania concerning admission to the bar have been the result of his work. The Very Rev. M. A. Hickey, president of the university, will also speak.

Many prominent members of the bar of Allegheny County and judges of the various courts will be present.

PLEA ON ALLEY GRADE ARGUED

A case argued before the Superior Court involved the right of a property owner to fill up a grade as to prevent other property owners access to their garages. The dispute in question grew out of a suit brought by the Commonwealth Trust Company, guardian of the estate of Elizabeth M. McFarren, against Sylvester G. Herr. The complainants were awarded $1,200 by the Common Pleas Court and directed to restore the alley to the grade fixed by the City, from which an appeal was taken.

Other cases argued included Arthur Morris against the McKeesport Coal and Coke Company; Business Realty Company against William J. Schaffer; Max R. Meier against Katherine A. Hatley and Mayme C. Duff; Mabel S. Englert against Charles A. Bergman; George Rondinone, administrator, against the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company; Bode and Heinz against Joe Canjola and Edith Frazier against Mary Jane McIlrath, all of Allegheny County.

COCHRANTON Pa. April 29 — John Kasala, 7, was killed while reading a horse to water at the farm of his parents in Greenwood Township. He tied a halter rope about his waist. The horse became frightened and ran, the boy being dragged across the fields.

NEW PHILADELPHIA O. April 29 — Tuscarawas County Masons lost their fight to secure a minimum scale of $1.37½ an hour in the annual contract beginning May 1. They signed with building contractors at the present scale of $1.25. Union carpenters received their $1 scale.

Father Falls Dead At Bier of Son

WHEELING W. Va. April 29 — William I. Hoose, 74, retired merchant, fell dead at the casket of his son, George Hoose, who died Saturday afternoon. Death was attributed to heart trouble. The father and son will be interred in a double grave.

CHILD SUPPORT CASE HEARD

The question of the County Court's authority to require a father to support a minor child over the age of 16 when the order for support was made before the child was 16 was argued before the Superior Court of Pennsylvania yesterday in the case of Beatrice Remensnyder of the North Side who brought an action against her husband, Floyd Remensnyder, for the support of herself and child, Marietta.

The lower court in 1919 after a decree in divorce had been granted, ordered the appellant to pay his minor child $10 a week. Later it was reduced to $8 a week, but in 1927 raised to $12 a week. On April 22, 1929 Remensnyder filed a petition praying for a rule to show cause why the order for support of his child now more than 16 should not be revoked, the court dismissing the order. The appeal followed.

Millions in Special Taxes

The buyers of insurance in the United States indirectly but actually contribute a vast sum—approximately $80,000,000 annually—through taxes additional to the regular taxes paid by insurance companies in common with other lines of industry. This money is a burden upon the premium of the policyholder, notwithstanding it is collected from the company.

The original purpose of special taxes upon insurance was to maintain state supervision of the business, but such supervision uses but four cents of each dollar, and the balance—about $77,000,000—goes into the general funds of the states.

These special taxes of the state and the taxes which insurance companies pay in common with all other business concerns, and owners of property, as well as their substantial taxes to the Federal Government, are factors in the cost of fire insurance.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has adopted the following resolution:

"... . Special State Taxes now levied on Policyholders through insurance companies should not be considered as a source of general revenue, but should be reduced to the total in each state which will adequately support such state's departmental supervision ....."

The Stock Fire Insurance companies, which transact by far the greater portion of the fire insurance business of the country, want you to realize this condition and its effect upon the cost of your fire insurance.

ROAD BUILDER KILLED ON JOB

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., April 29.—Robert Petriello, 61, South Brownsville, partner in the construction firm of Petriello and Petriello, and a building contractor here for 40 years, was fatally injured yesterday afternoon when he stepped into the path of one of his trucks which was backing into a concrete mixer. The accident occurred at Vestaburg, on the Brownsville-Waynesburg highway.

Death resulted from a fractured skull and broken neck. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Ella Petriello; an adopted daughter, Marie; a brother, Sylvester, with whom he was associated in business and another brother in Italy.

Coming to the United States in 1878 he failed in business enterprises at Philadelphia, Pottstown and Loretta, Cambria County, Pa., before he finally succeeded. Included among his projects was a $100,000 sewerage contract in Philadelphia; another similar contract at Morristown, N. J., and more than a dozen miles of track for the Monongahela Railway Company here.

TIME DISPUTE IN BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, April 29.—(AP)—Mayor Broening last night had not changed his attitude on daylight saving time and after the City Council had withdrawn from the controversy still ruled that the city officials operate on standard time. The Council withdrew its resolution requesting the Mayor to keep the city on standard time.

Many went to work on daylight saving time yesterday, the clocks having been pushed ahead an hour by members of the Baltimore Association of Commerce and their thousands of employes. The downtown traffic rush continued, police officials say, 90 per cent of the city was on the advanced time.

So far the schools are operating on standard time, but the question of changing will be decided at a meeting of the board Thursday. The several parent-teacher associations were quoted as being in favor of changing to daylight saving time.

POE, JR., HEADS CRUSADERS

BALTIMORE, April 29.—(AP)—A Baltimore branch of the Crusaders, a national organization of young men formed to seek modification of the prohibition laws, was organized here. Edgar Allar Poe, Jr., chairman of the executive committee, said for the most part the members of the organization are men who have become of age since the dry law was passed.

The executive committee includes Daniel Willard, Jr., son of the president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad; Eli Frank, Jr., son of Associate Judge Frank of the Supreme bench of Baltimore, and Thomas D'Alesandro, Jr., a member of the House of Delegates.

Haggard and Miller were arrested. Gray reported to police that he was kidnaped and robbed of $7,000 he was taking to a bank.

INVESTMENTS HELD WAR CURE

PHILADELPHIA, April 29 (AP)—Harold Peat, author and writer, told the fiftieth district convention of Rotary clubs last night that international investments were the best insurance against war.

"Kellogg pacts and disarmament conferences," he declared, "help to bring peace, but they do not insure it. It is the varied investments made by capital of all countries in all the other countries that prevent war.

"The capitalists vote for peace when war threatens their investment; they also vote for peace when instead of feeling safe at home through political influence they know that home as well as the front line is a danger spot because of scientific developments in warfare."

Allegheny College Library on List

MEADVILLE, Pa., April 29.—(AP)—Notice from the Carnegie Corporation that Allegheny College is among the American institutions that are to benefit by provisions for college libraries has been received here. Allegheny will receive $12,000 payable in the amount of $4,000 annually.

Coinciden with the receipt of the announcement, there came word through President Emeritus William H. Crawford that William E. Reis of Pasadena, Cal., has increased his recent library gift to $59,000 for the purpose of affording enlarged stockroom space in the present library building.

OPERATOR OFF, CAR CRASHES

LAFAYETTE, Ind., April 29.—(AP)—Running unchecked after the motorman had toppled from a side door, an interurban car last night left its tracks at a turn and rammed into the front of a grocery store at the edge of the city. Eight persons were injured.

Frank Simons, of Huntington, Ind., the operator, was found unconscious where he had fallen a mile from the scene of the accident. The car, estimated by passengers to be traveling 45 miles an hour, failed to negotiate a sharp turn and demolished part of the store building, burying Joseph Moore, 7, in the wreckage. Physicians said the boy would recover.

Among the passengers injured were L. A. Cooper, of Cincinnati, and A. J. Mixen, of Chicago.

Milo Chasey, of Huntington, Ind., conductor, said he was unaware of the motorman's absence and that he applied the emergency brake when he noticed the speed at which they were approaching the turn. This had little effect and he shouted a warning. Two men sitting in the smoker ran to the rear of the car just before the forepart of the interurban was demolished. The car was en route from Fort Wayne, Ind., to Lafayette.

Rash Turned Into Hard, Red Pimples. Healed by Cuticura.

"I tried other remedies without success. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. There was a great change after using it so I purchased more, and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Marcella M. BURGESS WINS IN GLASSPORT

Judge James H. Gray, of Common Pleas Court, handed down an opinion late yesterday deciding that Burgess S. J. Gross, of Glassport, was justified last January in suspending the borough police force for insubordination.

The court also granted an injunction restraining members of Council, of which James C. O'Brien is president, from interfering with the burgess and usurping his powers. The court, however, finds that the burgess did not give adequate instructions to the police as to their duties. The court held that the burgess is partly responsible for the conditions existing at Glassport.

The burgess twice suspended six policemen for insubordination. The Council, through its police committee, ordered the men back to work. Gross asked for an injunction to restrain Council from paying the police from the borough treasury. The court directs that the burgess and the Council proceed with the exercise of their duties.

OLD CUSTOMS ARE OFTEN BEST

Wisdom of Nations Applied in World's Tonic

Old things are often best. Nations have a vast amount of wisdom stored up in the simple customs of the plain people. For instance, over across the water many an old housewife has a simple mixture of herbs, a wonderful medicine, handed down from generation to generation, that makes the neighbors for miles around depend on her when they are run down and feeling sick. Experience has taught several generations what these medicines will do. Probably Old World people who come to America miss nothing quite as much as they do these simple means of keeping well.

A few years ago a great research was made to find a real tonic for use in America, one that would combine the wisdom of Europe with the learning of the new country. The value of these Old World remedies was recognized and they were carefully studied. The world was made to contribute toward the marvel that has proved such a wonderful help to thousands—World's Tonic. Many of the people who use it now say that it even tastes like the remedies they used to get when they were boys and girls at home.

This thing is sure—this remedy has brought hundreds of people right in this neighborhood into better health. Living here in much different surroundings, with differences in air and water and food, and with work in mills and mines that is quite a change from the healthful Old World surroundings, many a man or woman who has felt all run down, and who has suffered from the catarrh that is so common in America, has found in World's Tonic just what was needed to bring back health and strength, to clean up the system and help enrich the blood, and to make life ever so much happier. Many of your neighbors have used it, and you have seen the change in them. There is no reason for you to go on suffering from catarrh and its results—indigestion, sleeplessness, weakness and weariness—when you can obtain World's Tonic from Dow's, May's-Liggett's, Mayflower, or any other first-class drug store. She was dragged into the alley where she was relieved of her purse and threatened with death if she gave an alarm.

BARRED SOLDIER WINS VISA

WINDSOR, Ont., April 29.—(AP.)—The red tape that has made Priv. James C. Harper, U. S. A., a "soldier without a country" for the past month was unwound here and a visa was issued for his return to the United States.

Seven years ago, Harper, a native of Scotland, entered the United States at Buffalo, without paying a head tax. Since then, he served six years in the United States infantry and recently enlisted for a third time.

He made a visit of a few hours in Windsor about a month ago and when he attempted to return was stopped by immigration authorities and sent back here. He was held in jail here for a month because he had no legal right, as an American soldier, to reside in Canada.

The local United States consular office said Harper is expected to rejoin his regiment in Fort Wayne, near Detroit, soon.

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

The story going around is that Pete Higgins, the handsome young Irishman, who has been signed to a long-term contract by Radio Pictures, will be billed as successor to John McCormack, once that gentleman retires. It is plausible that he will not only be billed as such but in time accepted.

Higgins is young and comparatively inexperienced. His voice does not, of course, have the finish of McCormack's, but good judges say that he will acquire this polish. He does have one advantage over McCormack: The ladies see him as a handsome well-modeled young man—and such advantages are important, in these days of Vallee and Tibbett.

Pete was nobody in show business a few years ago, warbling in unventilated cabarets to unappreciative audiences for what amounted to cigaret money (and Pete doesn't smoke 'em). A few years before that, friends discovered he had an unusual voice when he sang in the choir of a local church.

It won't be many months now before Pete comes to town in a talking picture. His picture contract is a good one. He is to make four pictures a year for five years. For his first year he will receive $30,000 and each succeeding year his paycheck will be boosted $10,000 until it reaches $70,000. Pictures will take up only half of his time. In between he will sing in vaudeville.

Sir:

I am a martyr to your cause. You want tonsils news. All right! Rather than see you suffer, I'm going to have my tonsils removed. My tonsils are splendid, but you need tonsils news and I am your admirer. I have already reserved a mill at Jones & Laughlin's for the operation. Bravely yours, ELIM WHEEL.

Except in cases of flood, we would go so far as to say that water is the world's most harmless liquid. All of its qualities are positive qualities. Nevertheless, Mr. H. J. Schlafly, manager of the Mountain Valley Mineral Water Company, has discovered that even in the water business all is not beer and skittles.

Two of Mr. Schlafly's trucks were proceeding along in their harmless way near Pittsburgh the other day when a squad of vigilant police suspected that the trucks were loaded with Canadian rye, if not Scotch. Well, the police followed the trucks for several miles, then insisted that the driver stop. The police opened every one of the water drums and uncovered every case of the bottled wares and sniffed the contents until they were just about oversniffed. The liquid was, of course, merely mineral water.

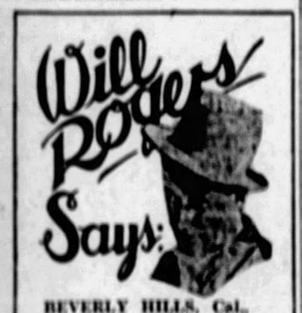
A subscriber writes his disappointment that Andy Park, the new district attorney, did not name as first assistant somebody named Amos. We refuse comment.



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 29.

Passengers on a train in Canada talked by phone with London, England. That's not an invention, that's a pest. This means that you can't go anywhere without somebody saying, "Mr. Jones if you will step to the back end of the plant that automobile salesman is on the phone." There has been more talking and less said over phones, than in Congress.

Every invention during our lifetime has been just to save time and time is the only commodity that every American both rich and poor have plenty of. Half our life is spent trying to find something to do with the time that we have rushed through life trying to save. Two hundred years from now history will record, "America a nation that flourished from 1900 to 1942, conceived many odd inventions for getting somewhere, but could think of nothing to do when they got there."

Yours,

WILL.

GIRL UNAFRAID

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ardeth Carroll, who rooms in her Aunt Stella's boarding house, is being wooed by Neil Burke. While out motoring with Neil, Ardeth sees Ken Gleason. Ardeth has never been introduced to Gleason and the two just gaze at each other. Neil becomes jealous. Later Neil asks Ardeth to marry him, but she refuses. Ardeth goes to work for Jeanette Parker in a new specialty shop. There Jeanette introduces Ardeth to Gleason. The two new friends go on a Sunday outing together to a houseboat owned by Gleason. Ken explains that he is employed by Jeanette's father. They return to the city after a happy day. Ardeth hopes to see Ken soon, but she is disappointed. Ardeth is surprised when she meets Ken one evening after leaving the shop. They have dinner together. After driving Ardeth home Ken says he could not stay away from her. Ken brings Tom Corbett to the shop and introduces him to Ardeth. Ardeth is surprised when she reads that Ken is engaged to Cecile, Jeanette's sister.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVIII.

She was swept by conflicting emotions. She tried to cling to her cold anger, but it was shot through by the sense of warm triumph. Tremulous joy just in knowing Ken was beside her. Her body alive to his nearness. Joy—singing in her heart.

Under her lashes she could see his profile, white and set as he kept his gaze on the traffic ahead. That clean cut profile her fingers itched to draw. Lips tightly pressed together, eyes narrowed between their lashes.

Ken turned the wheel, the car shot down a narrow side road beside a lake. Stopped. He shut off the engine.

He had turned his eyes, drawing her own up to meet his gaze. "So you saw that thing in The Spy——"

Her hands clenched tightly in her lap, then relaxed. And suddenly she was calm and proud—and a little cruel, seeing how shaken he was.

Her gaze was on the bright star. But she felt his intent gaze on her face. He was so close his breath stirred her hair.

"I went wild about you, Ardeth. It was the real thing at last. Oh, darling, there have been times when I just had to bite my tongue to keep from blurting out how much I loved you. I wouldn't—without figuring how I could ask you to marry me."

His Mother
Always a Beautiful and Helpless Woman

"Why?" It was only a whisper through her stiff lips. And still she would not look at him.

"My mother. I didn't know how I was going to tell her. She's just set her heart on me marrying Cecile—"

"Oh—!" There was a thin edge of scorn curling about that.

She felt that he flushed angrily. "No! That's not fair—what you're thinking. I'm no mama-boy. You don't understand!"

"Surely a man has a right to choose his own wife," she said coldly.

"You're right! But you don't understand. I don't suppose anyone else ever had such a mess to face." He drew a long weary sigh. "Let me begin at the beginning. You will have to see, Ardeth! There was just my mother and me left when my father died. Mother'd always been a petted beauty. I tell you this so you'll see how splendid she was—doing what she did. Her parents had spoiled her. Dad spoiled her. One of those beautiful, helpless women everyone waited on.

"And then, all in a moment, the world she knew—the warm safe, easy world—gone. My Dad died unexpectedly. And she found he'd gambled in stocks and he'd lost everything."

"She didn't have a soul to turn to—no relation, that is. And she was too proud to tell friends—even the Parkers. Besides—she was afraid I'd know. That it would affect my future. I'd just entered college, and she was determined that I'd have those four years free of worry or economies. There was no money to send me to college, but she found a way.

Starved Self
Lived in Poverty for Ken's Sake

Ken drew a long breath but his voice shook.

"She sold all her jewelry. She told me she was going to Europe to travel until I finished my four years. She got a miserable hole of a room in a furnished house. She crawled in this hole—cut herself away from everyone—so she'd keep the truth from me. Her letters to me were sent to a friend in England and re-mailed. I never knew the difference until she was taken so ill that they took her to the city hospital. Ill, because she'd actually starved herself!"

His voice was stifled. "Then I learned all about the whole crazy, dreadful splendid scheme!

"Lord—that place she'd been living, Ardeth. A dark hole of a place in a disreputable neighborhood—my poor proud little mother. Wall paper with damp spots of mold. Leaking gas. Ardeth, I sat down and cried like a baby when I saw it.

"She nearly died. I felt as if I had killed her. Even if it was wrong—and unnecessary, she'd done it for me. She's been sickly ever since. And I'm the only thing she has, Ardeth, to care for."

(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

Ken Feels Bad
Ardeth Asks if Story Is True

"Well . . . why not? After all—you have a right to choose . . ."

"Don't talk like that——"

"Nowadays people aren't puritanical. A man can't be engaged to every girl he kisses . . ."

She was hurting him, and she would have been less than woman if she hadn't pressed the advantage home.

"I suppose I should—should congratulate you. Cecile is—is charming. But why you were so reticent about telling anyone—"

"You little devil!" he shook her slightly and his eyes blazed. Then, with a sudden collapse of manner. "Oh—Ardeth . . . if you knew how rotten I feel——"

The pretense between them was swept away on a flood of honesty. "But—it's true, Ken?"

A moment—so deep, so still that the girl could hear a duck flap over the pond below. Flapping — splashing water — flapping. The man's eyes had gone away from her searching gaze. Ardeth felt the blood draining from her face.

Explains
'Engagement' to Cecile Started as Joke

Finally, "No," said Ken. "I'm not engaged to Cecile. "Oh . . . !" he made a baffled gesture. It's so damned hard to put this straight to you! Like a fool I kept hoping things would straighten themselves out. I dreaded just this very happening." His voice was wretched.

"Well—it's like this," he went on more calmly after a moment. "I'll have to tell you everything so you'll understand my position. You see, my mother and the Parkers have always been old family friends. When Cecile and I were just kids, they began planning we'd marry. You know—a thing like that starts as a joke and before you know it everyone expects it's actually going to happen. I didn't especially mind—" He stopped, grew red. "That sounds ghastly conceited. I didn't mean it that way . . . I just never thought much about it. I never said anything serious to Cecile. We did joke about it—but it was only a joke. You see, Ardeth?"

His pleading eyes went to the quiet profile of the girl beside him.

At her short nod he continued.

"Cecile wanted her fun before she married. And I didn't care one way or the other. I see now that I only kept the thing up to please mother. And then I met you."

She would not meet his eyes.

POUND A WEEK OFF UNDER NEW METHOD

Dr. Ringer Gives Second Day's Menu for Those Who Would Shed Weight

How much should I weigh?

Every girl who suspects that she is getting too plump wails that question. She receives any number of answers, all of them different. There are hundreds of standards of weight.

Dr. A. I. Ringer, consultant on metabolism for the Medical Information Bureau of the New York Academy of Medicine, suggests a safe standard for determining normal weight.

HEIGHT RULES WEIGHT

Both men and women, he says, should allow 105 pounds for the first five feet of height. Above five feet, men should add five and one-half pounds for every inch. Women should add four and one-half pounds for every inch over five feet.

The second of a series of daily diet, which will reduce weight sensibly, is presented today to Sun-Telegraph readers. Each diet published is for use the following day. The diets are prepared by Dr. Ringer.

EAT AND REDUCE

One pound a week is the average weight loss under the "safe and sane" diets.

Here is the second day's menu for tomorrow:

BREAKFAST.
Sliced Oranges.
Four tablespoonfuls of cereal.
Dry Toast.

Boiled potatoes.
Coffee, one cup, with milk (No sugar.)

DINNER.

Convicts Balked In Building Still

SAN FRANCISCO PRISON, Cal.—(INS.)—Construction of a homelike bootlegging plant within the walls of San Quentin prison was balked by guards who became suspicious of two convicts who acted "queerly."

Search of the convicts revealed they had concealed on their persons a small length of pipe and other material that was intended for use in a little distillery.

A gunny sack containing potato peelings and other substances from which alcohol could be gleaned was seized by the guards.

It was thought that the lead pipe, potato peelings and other equipment was found just in time to prevent "cooking of a batch of alcohol."

2 DOWNTOWN BOULEVARDS PROPOSED

City Planners Show Model Providing One-Way Travel In Business Section

Plans for a Liberty-Cross-town thoroughfare, a part of the Inter-District Traffic Circuit, that would route through vehicle traffic through the downtown section without trolley interference, was announced today by the City Planning Commission.

Elevated roadways and new thoroughfares are in the plans made public at a private showing of a model in the commission offices for city officials.

TO COST $10,000,000

The plan would call for an expenditure estimated at $10,000,000, though definite details have not been worked out.

Beginning at a point in Bigelow boulevard opposite Sixteenth street, two boulevard levels would proceed downtown. A new shelf would be built in the hillside above the present roadway. The latter thoroughfare, slightly narrowed, would be utilized for one-way traffic to the downtown. The new boulevard level would carry two-way traffic, connecting with the proposed Twelfth street bridge to the North Side. The bridge head would pass over the old roadway level.

The boulevard would be widened between Washington place and Grant street, a depression in the center of the roadway allowing for prsent connection at Seventh avenue.

An elevated structure would permit southbound traffic to pass over Seventh avenue into Telegraph Square. Here traffic headed to South Side would turn left and pass under Webster and Wylie avenues to a new viaduct carrying over Fifth avenue ndae Forbes street onto the Liberty bridge. This thoroughfare would run parallel with Tunnel street.

CONTROL CIRCLE

A control circle is proposed to care for traffic coming from the Liberty bridge at Forbes street, eliminating portions of Watson, Boyd and Shingiss street. A second control circle would be used at the Armstrong Tunnel where Forbes street, from the bridge, would be widened to about 125 feet.

The plan calls for the combined elevated and depressed traffic control circle already proposed for Liberty avenue and Eleventh street. In the widened section of the boulevard, buildings on the North side of Webster avenue from Sixth to Tunnel streets would be eliminated with a traffic control circle at the intersection of Tunnel street. The plans have a ramp from the old level boulevard to connect with the proposed postoffice building for truck traffic.

With plans calling for the Hobart street ramp from the Boulevard of the Allies traffic, a tunnel is proposed under the unimproved section of Shingiss street to connect with the new viaduct.

The plans have been adopted, Frederick Bigger announced, from many studied over a long period of time.

Clouds Conceal Eclipse, Dr. Curtis Foiled

"Had thick clouds at Gerlach. No plates exposed."

The foregoing telegram from Dr. Heber D. Curtis, director of Allegheny Observatory, received at the observatory, tells the story of the failure of the expedition to Nevada to study the eclipse of the sun yesterday.

It might have been worse. Dr. Curtis has made several expeditions to places as remote as Sumatra to observe eclipses, spending thousands of dollars and months of effort on a gamble that the sky would be clear during the few minutes that the solar disk would be obscured. Usually luck has been with him.

He had a pleasant trip, taking Mrs. Curtis and their 17-year-old son, Baldwin, with him, and making the journey by motor.

His instruments consisted only of two spectrographs and a camera, equipment far less extensive than he took with him on the Sumatra trips. He had slight expectation of getting a photograph even if the sky had been clear, as the eclipse was total for only a second and a half.

PINCHOT DARES BROWN

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., April 29.—(AP.)—A challenge to Francis Shunk Brown to repudiate the Philadelphia Republican organization supporting his candidacy was issued here today by Gifford Pinchot, Brown's opponent for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Pinchot's challenge followed the declaration the former governor has made repeatedly that Brown, if elected, will not be able to escape the Philadelphia gang.

It came on the heels of a statement accredited by Pinchot to Brown in Huntingdon yesterday in which the Philadelphia candidate was quoted as saying he had made "no promises to any one." Pinchot has maintained that the Philadelphia organization backing Brown seeks to control the state government.

Declaring his claims against Brown had gone unanswered, Pinchot called upon him to make public his answer at a meeting of the League of Women Voters in Pittsburgh Friday.

Pinchot, Brown and nearly all the other candidates for governor and senator are to address the meeting.

Pinchot arrived here this morning from Huntingdon, where he spent the night after eight meetings in his first invasion of Central and Western Pennsylvania.

PINCHOT ROAD RECORD SCORED

BROOKVILLE, Pa., April 29.—(AP.)—The 1923 road program of Gifford Pinchot, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, was flayed today by Brig. Gen. Edward C. Shannon, candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor on the Davis-Brown ticket. Shannon said:

"Pinchot got the credit for $12,000,000 worth of road construction which was charged as an appropriation liability against the Sproul administration. The $12,000,000 was a part of the mythical deficit which Pinchot harps upon, and it still is."

Francis Shunk Brown, candidate for the nomination for governor, asserted he was not placed in the running by so-called "gang rule" of Philadelphia, and added that he was a candidate with a view of bringing about harmony in the Republican party in the state.

"If I am elected governor, I will go to Harrisburg untrammeled," Brown said.

CITIZENS DEMAND MT. LEBANON COMMISSIONERS RESIGN

RULING FACTION DENOUNCED AT MEETING

Secret Ballot and Safety Bills Bring Rising Vote by Residents That Board Quit

Protesting the attempts of the majority faction of the township commissioners to set aside usual regulations to speed passage of two ordinances, Mt. Lebanon residents demanded the resignation of the board of commissioners by a rising vote, taken after citizens had forced the commissioners to admit them to a meeting last night.

The commissioners opened their session in a small room in the Washington Public School. Commissioners L. C. Clark and Samuel Meneilly, minority members, twice moved that the meeting be adjourned to the auditorium, but were voted down. Finally the demands of the citizens grew so urgent that the meeting was adjourned to the large hall.

MAJORITY DENOUNCED

The majority members of the board, C. W. Scheck, chairman, Charles Clatty and Ferdinand Vitte, were denounced by the citizens, who attended under the banner of the Mt. Lebanon Civic Club. The citizens lauded Clark and Meneilly. John Long, president of the Civic Club, said steps would be considered by the club to oust the majority members.

The two ordinances, which the commissioners passed on first and second readings last Monday, aroused the ire of residents. The commissioners sought to pass the ordinances on final readings at the meeting, but were blocked by Meneilly, who refused to vote. Clark was absent. Clark and Meneilly successfully blocked passage of the ordinances last night. The ordinances in question are for the creation of a safety department and for secret balloting on zoning hearings. The first would oust C. C. Baldwin, who has been police chief many years.

CLASH ON OVERCHARGES

During the meeting Clark accused Clatty of being "a tool of a political gang which sought to run the community in a despotic manner." This featured an argument on "overcharges" of $11,000 in connection with the building of the tow.. hall. Clark said everything should have been included in the bond issue of $225,000, and indicated that the architect should be surcharged with the additional sum.

Robert Boyer, who was chairman of Scheck's campaign committee last fall, apologized to the people for supporting him. Long, president of the Civic Club, who supported Scheck, also apologized, saying he was ashamed of the things Scheck had done since assuming office.

TEACHER GETS WRIT AGAINST BOARD

South Hills Instructor Goes Into Court in Move To Get Maximum Salary

S. A. Ringer, teacher of salesmanship and commercial law in South High School, today was granted a writ of alternative mandamus on the Board of Public Education and Superintendent of Schools W. M. Davidson, to show cause why he should not be granted the super-maximum increase in salary, provided by law.

Judge James R. Macfarlane fixed May 9 for a hearing.

In his petition, filed by Attorney George P. Kountz, Ringer sets forth that he has been employed by the school board for more than 11 years and that for more than eight years he has received the maximum salary of $3,200 a year.

Ringer maintains he has received the high score rating for knowledge and asks that he be given the super-maximum of $3,400 a year, in accordance with an amendment to the school code passed in 1929.

On October 1, 1928, Ringer avers, he applied for the increase that he sought in vain to interview Superintendent Davidson, then was granted a hearing by the school board November 18 last.

A committee was named to investigate, but the committee has never made a report, he declares.

NEW EAST END PUMP PLANT

East End and other sections of the city seem assured of a new electrified water power station.

The obsolete Brilliant plant is to be replaced by the terms of an ordinance which will be considered by Council sitting in committee late today.

The ordinance is two-fold. First it sets aside $700,000 for construction work on the new station.

Second, it turns over $165,000 to the Duquesne Light Company for the construction of six motor driven pumping units. The new plant, according to estimates by Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang, will be ready in 16 months.

The city, by the agreement, will pay the company part of the total cost per month and at the end of 10 years will own the equipment. The company will furnish the power.

ASK CONFESSION OF BLONDE

SCHOOL GARDEN AT WOODS RUN

Pupils of the Woods Run public school have gone in for gardening on a pretentious scale. More than 100 of them, including kindergarten children, have taken upon themselves the task of cultivating a plot of ground adjacent to the Western Pennitentiary, where vegetables, flowers and shrubs will be raised.

So far the ground has been raked off by the children and everything is in readiness for ploughing. Then seeds will be planted, and the children labor until results are achieved. Work is under the supervision of Miss McDonald, school garden supervisor, and Miss Mary B. Ferguson, principal.

Instruction in garden research work and marketing is the purpose of the idea, Miss McDonald said. Last season a crop of flowers and vegetables estimated to have been worth $1,600 was raised. The estimate was made by the pupils from costs prevalent in city markets.

SEE-SAW FOUND IN POPULATION

Enthusiasm over a large increase in Allegheny County's population in regions north of the Allegheny River was dampened somewhat by census returns today from districts in the Monongahela Valley, which show a decrease in the number of inhabitants. The supervisors issued these returns for Monongahela Valley communities.

Forward Township, 3,613, against 4,932 in 1920; Lincoln Township, 678, against 739 in 1920; South Versailles Township, 337, against 303 in 1920. These are coal mining districts where there was said to be exceptional activity at the time of the last census.

Cheswick Borough enjoyed an increase in poulation of more than 125 per cent in 10 years.

The up-river borough, which in 1920 had a population of 471, jumped to 1,053, according to the present census.

Other boroughs and townships north of the Ohio and Allegheny rivers also showed large gains.

Ben Avon Heights lacked just one of doubling its population, the increase being from 130 to 259. Springdale Borough advanced from 2,929 to 4,778, and Springdale Township from 910 to 1,365.

Aleppo Township added 22, making the present population 419. Blawnox Borough, which came into being since the last census, now has 2,187.

Beginning tomorrow the three census supervisors here will begin announcing the population of the various wards in the three cities in the county.

Nan Bunton Becomes Bride

No matter how attractive benefits and theaters and concerts may be, in the springtime no event is quite so appealing as a wedding. Spring this year is surely generous with marriages, and today I want to tell you some more wedding news.

The Charles Clifford Buntons announce the marriage of their daughter, Nan Hendrickson Bunton, to William Wise Whitcomb, son of Mrs. M. Baird Young, which took place yesterday.

The Whitcombs are now motoring to Hot Springs, Va., and will visit New York, too, before their return the latter part of May. Nan made her debut several seasons ago.

Young folks, older folks, and all the in-between folks and even some of the boys and girls not even ready for prep school were at the premiere of "Manhattan Preferred," the Pitt Cap and Gown show, at the Nixon last night.

And the boys in the cast taking the roles of women were as exquisitely gowned as the brilliant audience, filling the orchestra seats and the boxes. Of course you know that the Civic Club of Allegheny County sponsored the Cap and Gowners last night and, of course, its members were there in great numbers.

First of all I want to mention among those present Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, who was chairman of the evening. She looked distinguished in a gown of black velvet and a rope of pearls. Another member of the committee, Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., was entertaining in her box. She wore a gown of dahlia crepe and a wrap of dahlia velvet. And among her guests were the Norman S. Wooldridges, with Mrs. Wooldridge wearing black chiffon and lace. Miss Sarah Dorham, Frank Dorham and Dr. S. Ashbrook.

Another member of the civic committee whom I saw greeting friends was Miss Marie Dermitt in a charming period gown of rose-printed taffeta. And her sister, Miss Lillian Dermitt, was in American beauty taffeta.

Society Attends

I saw Miss Madeline McClintock in a black velvet wrap, collared in ermine, and Kittie Schley with her grandmother, Mrs. Chambers McKibbin. Kittie looked charming in a blue moire dress and a brief black velvet jacket, and her grandmother wore black velvet and pearls. I caught sight of the junior William Blairs in the foyer during intermission, and of Miss Neil Stewart, wearing a flowered chiffon gown. Frances Fitzgerald wore a vivid dahlia chiffon gown, and Miss Edith Cole was there and Mrs. Gale R. Nutty, and Mrs. Robert Withers in blue satin. I also noticed Mrs. Stewart Johnston, Mrs. James G. Pontefract and Miss Martha Jamison. Mrs. William D. Hamilton looked striking in blue satin and rhinestones.

That chiffon frocks, flaunting gay flowers in every hue of the rainbow, will be more in vogue than ever I'm sure after last night. Nearly all the members of the younger set at the show last night chose gowns of this type in lovely pastel shades. Mary Franklin Robinson, daughter of the William Christopher Robinsons, was in flowered chiffon, as was Virginia Wright, a sister bud, and Betty McCance. And Martha Edmondson, another bud, chose a frock of blue crepe. Louise Bickford, another bud, was in dahlia chiffon, and Jean Power, who was there with her mother, Mrs. Edward M. Power, was in gold dust chiffon.

Chiffon Vogue

Mrs. A. P. Burchfield, gowned in black velvet, and Mrs. Thomas C. Jenkins and Mrs. Francis J. Torrance I noticed in boxes, and Mrs. Harmar D. Denny, Mrs. William Lloyd and Mrs. Benjamin Gilbert Follansbee. Other I noted were Mrs. William H. Stevenson in black crepe; Harriet Fickes, another bud, in black taffeta, and Mrs. H. A. Ingram, Mrs. Matthew Taylor was there, too; Miss Sarah Ricketson, in black lace, and Mrs. Harmar D. Denny also in black lace. Black chiffon was worn by Margaret Hagan, and canary taffeta and tulle by Georgia Pearson.

Martha Edmondson, a deb of last winter, is in charge of the aides for the opening of the Urban recitals in the William Penn Hotel, to take place on Thursday morning. I also know who her aides will be. They include Mary Blair Holmes, Peggy Berger, Harriet Fickes, Louise Bickford and Betty McCance, all sister buds. Le Morgan trio, recently a vogue in Europe, will entertain that morning, and there will be a luncheon following the concert.

SILKS PREDOMINATE IN A SEASON OF MANY SUITS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, APRIL 29.—No tailored skirt seems to consider itself complete without pleats. Sensible as to length, comfortable as to width, the golden medium certainly applies to the skirt designed for walking and other ordinary daily activities. And the comfort and smartness that is such a pleasing feature of the tailored suit or frock is achieved by means of strategically placed pleats. Pleats in groups inverted box-pleats, stitched pleats ending in a flare, these are just some of the clever devices used by the couturiers to give the modern busy woman ease as well as smartness in her attire.

IN A SEASON of suits, the silk or light woolen suit of impeccable cut and detail stands out ... a refreshing novelty. It is so cleverly tailored that it hangs perfectly and keeps its air of freshness. Heretofore it seemed to be quite impossible to obtain a thin suit with these desirable attributes and now the perfectly tailored silk suit takes its place in the sartorial hall of fame.

THE TAILORED suit shown is a splendid example of the light weight suit of perfect detail and crisp freshness. It is from the house of Buryere and is of navy blue flamenga patterned with tiny white dots. The coat is belted just above the hip line and has a box-pleated peplum buttoned in front. The box-pleated skirt is stitched well down almost to the knee before the pleats are released. A white handkerchief linen blouse completes the ensemble.

CREPE DE CHINE trails through the mode with the assurance of an old and established favorite, which it is. Its absence from the sartorial scene appears to have had a beneficial effect, for the material now seems to be of a finer but heavier quality that makes it an ideal fabric for a light suit or an afternoon frock. Drecoll-Beer uses it for the frock shown here and the pattern is a field flower print of gay design and color.

A LONG SCARF, knotted just back of the right shoulder is a summery detail. The princess bodice is draped softly at the natural waistline and set-in pieces crossing in front flare in circular godets to lend width to the skirt.

Try This Fast to Reduce

A man at Liverpool recently finished a world's record fast of 65 days. He lost 42 pounds in weight.

CHICKIE By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER LXXII.

The memory of the past went piercing through her again—a long, bright needle of terror. Its sharp point transfixed her though, holding it aghast, moist with apprehension.

And, standing before the bureau, this sunny morning in the end of May, quietly adjusting her hat, Chickie's hands dropped limp to her sides. She sat down suddenly, shaking—her face bloodless.

Life, cornering her now, life that had allowed Janina Amy Heaton, a hundred others, to play fast and loose was now rushing up and overtaking her, shoving this last incredible consequence upon her.

Suddenly she remembered what Janina said of Marjorie. "Lucky for her she has money—so they get married. But if a thing like that happened to you or me, Peggy, the cobbler's daughter, we could sink to the seaweed 40 fathoms deep. Fat chance to catch up with a husband!"

Happening to her, to this Chickie that Jonathan loved so—that he thought sweet and innocent as an angel? No! It couldn't, it couldn't!

And she went back over the days to that fateful one last August. She remembered how doggedly this fear obsessed her in the beginning. Gradually it had passed. Until finally she did not think of it at all. She walked the free road as she did, as men do, forgetting that if toll there were to pay she must be the one to yield it. She lost the fear of consequences.

During the day as she typed, the memory of this fear that had come upon her with such panic returned. Now it was no longer the sharp needle in her brain. It was a heavy hand that had got hold of her heart, pressing it, turning it slowly. She was at sudden moments aware of its weight, its suffocating, unbearable pressure.

Wants Company

The day with its hurry of work over. Getting ready to leave, she was suddenly hot with restlessness. Do something—have sense—get back her poise.

She slipped her arm in Janina's. "Come on, ole thing—do a little shopping with me."

Janina, always facile, answered: "I will if you'll eat downtown and come for a swim. I need exercise. Will you?"

"Yes!"

No matter what Janina asked, Chickie would have assented. She wanted company. Wanted to hide from herself, talk incessantly, at lightning speed. That would hush her mind—that would flout the hand on her heart.

And when she plunged into the tank and felt the slim, ready movement of her body through the cool waters, she put her head under, inwardly laughing. The idea! What a fool she was! Beside herself with terrors. And all because he had written that letter and let her know so starkly that his love was dead.

Why, because of that she began to imagine things! But now—well, she wouldn't. Joy still in the world, fun to be splashing about here with Janina, shouting—getting the water in her ears—in the gold hair—making it all curls about her face.

Afterward they called to each other from the showers, they got weighed! they went into the gymnasium and danced with two other girls who happened to be there.

Discuss Marjorie

But when they took a table in the cafeteria and Janina opened the evening paper, ignoring her—these fears rushed back. Chickie said, in a voice of excitement: "Hear anything more about Marjorie?"

"Give the girl a chance, ole thing!"

"I suppose she'll stay out of the city."

"Any old time, my dear! They're off to California on their honeymoon, and they won't come back till the conventional period elapses. And who knows whether a baby is 6 months of age or 10? Often meet up with precocious infants—especially first ones!"

Janina, folding the paper, must have seen the blanched, driven look in Chickie's face. She smiled. "Shocked? Thought that was rather a pleasing bon mot! 'Scuse, babe. I'm crude, but not unkind, as you've learned."

"No, but I was just thinking, Janina, a thing like that could happen to any one, no matter how free or bold or clever they are."

A pitying smile. "Yes, innocence, quite coldly certain! Nothing can happen to me that I can't meet, my dear!"

"But suppose it did. I wonder what you'd do?"

Praises Courage

"I can never prove that to your satisfaction, because it's not going to happen. But at that, I could brazen it out. I could be the woman who dared! You can get away with murder if you think you can!"

Chickie laughed. "Yes—you can get away with murder in theory. But if you've got the blood of murder on your hands, you're not so cool, I imagine. And then you can't get away with it!"

"Well, I know a girl who did. She just said to people: 'I wanted this. I'm going to have it!' What about it?" And she stayed right here in the city and she has a son five years old and supports him and doesn't give a hang who knows it. Her friends stuck with her. But of course that's rather bizzare and startling. At first they all held off, but when they saw her getting away with it, they shrugged and came back. If all women had courage like that and wouldn't allow themselves to be hounded off the earth we'd have a better world, and we'd soon have a single standard. But of course, it would be rather hard on the pioneers—"

Chickie was now breathing noisily—her cheeks blazing. She said in a faint tone: "It would be a rather hard choice, wouldn't it?"

Riding home in the trolley car, she stood on the platform letting the cool breeze blow down her throat. She kept saying to herself: "Stop now—you'll only make a fool of yourself. It's not this—oh, have sense."

She woke up in the middle of the night, her whole body clammy—the hand pressing now with a ton's heaviness.

She couldn't bear to look at Jonathan or at Jennie. One evening Jonathan said: "When is Barry returning?"

A Promise

For a moment the pulses froze. Then she heard herself answering: "I don't know."

And she saw the astonishment in her father's eyes. She answered hastily: "He won't come till his mother is better. And then he may open his office down South."

Jonathan stared at her, his face turning gray. Afterwards he followed her to her room, closing the door in his mysterious way.

She bent over an open drawer, began sorting its contents. Finally she could laugh—she ran over and buried her head against his shoulder. "Old cutie love, no. Old Jonathan—want me here? Cutie wants his little lamb?"

"Chickie—you won't go? Promise me that?"

His seriousness affrighted her. She answered in a high, false note: "Oh, I might ask, would you want me though I should get all pock-marked with warts on the end of my nose? If I promise to stay, will you promise to want me for better or worst—for the worsest worst?"

And suddenly tears flew into her eyes and were wet on her father's rough neck. He took his great palm and wiped her face, laughed at her, caring with a hard anxiety. "Then you don't mean to go, Chickie? Not thinking of that?"

"You haven't made the promise! Why, you haven't said for better or for worse, ever so worse." She ran from him into the kitchen, calling to the dog, and calling back to Jonathan: "All right! All right!"

JUST ONE GIRL

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

"BUT HOW MANY persons I won in just that one!"

An astonished husband speaking. How many sides to the pretty creature that he thought had just one face. One soul. One LOOK. One line. One wish—to be an angel to him.

"There's just one girl in the world for me," sang he before going up the old gray stone church steps.

And now each day he wonders which of the many he mated with will sit at dinner with him TONIGHT.

Will it be cool snow-queen, hurt over something that poor John is in a stage of total anesthesia to, so far as he knows? Or jus' naturally cool because sometimes she feels chilly toward the whole world? And that's one personality.

Will it be mou'nful? A bedewed, clinging vine, a tearful baby who needs a fellow, and needing him so makes his heart turn a double cartwheel with sympathy?

Will it be kitt'nish, that which there is no more delicious-er time at the dinner table when a pretty wife decides to flirt with her own husband in exactly the manner she might with a handsome stranger? If she was the kind to do that, of course.

Will it be meek an' mil'? Adaptable. Amiable as fresh cream. Tickled to do anything he likes to do? A charming little person this!

"Just one girl in the world for me! Who—how many in one?

"Still and all, life would drag with a girl with only one face after this little feminine Lon Chaney I've gotten used to!" —NELL BRINKLEY.

Madge Has Difficulty Wording Telegram to Marion

Over and over in my mind, as I sent my car along the road to Southhampton at the moderate pace my father had enjoined, I mulled the perplexing question of the telegram I meant to send to Marion. Indeed it was not until I reached the very door of the telegraph office that I decided upon the wording of the message. It must not startle the girl it must not betray anything of its real meaning to the eyes of the school authorities, yet it must be imperative enough to gain the permission I desired from Lillian's winsome young daughter.

I wrote it slowly, and when I had finished, read it over four times before turning it over to the agent.

"To Miss Marion Morton, Whitney Hall, Sackettsville, New Jersey," it read when I had finished. "Emergency not connected with you or your mother, makes it necessary for me to show to my father the parcels you left with me. Will not break seals, but wish to explain things to him. If I have your permission for this, please wire collect the farmhouse the one word 'yes.' If not, wire 'no.' Please answer immediately. This imperative. Love.

"Auntie Madge."

"Will you please have the answer to this telephoned out to me as soon as it comes in?" I asked as I paid for the telegram and gave the attendant the telephone number of the farm.

"Yes, I will have it phoned immediately," he replied, and I went out of the office mentally visualizing the progress of that message over miles of humming wires until it reached the almost cloistered corridors of Whitney Hall.

There was no use of worrying over it, I reminded myself, for I already had completed every detail of the task that I could attend to, and with this sensible determination, I went back to The Larches, timing myself so that I did not arrive before the 50 minutes which my father had specified as the least possible time I ought to take for the trip.

I found him sitting in the room of The Larches where the burglars of the farmhouse or other miscreants had eaten—and drank—the night before. Jim was sitting opposite him, apparently stolid, but I noticed that his eyes were watchful and that his attitude was tense. The idea of any of the marauders being around at this time was, of course, only a fantastic—even hysterical—notion of my own, I realized that, but faithful Jim was taking it seriously, and his attitude said plainly that no intruder would have any chance to get near my father.

"Ah! Margaret!" My father looked up at me as I came into the room. "I want to congratulate you upon your insight, or your deduction, or whatever you wish to call it. But we found an abandoned car with license plates stripped off in just the spot that you said there would be one."

"Better call it a lucky guess," I said flushing. "What have you decided about this — that the men at the farmhouse were also here?"

"It's the only possible theory," he said. "They ate and drank here before they came to the farm, and they made their getaway from here. That isn't what's bothering me now. It's how soon I can report this to the police. Of course, the sight of this little trinket—" he turned over the lapel of his coat, disclosing the tiny badge of the diplomatic secret service, which he always wears, except in time of great danger, when his identity must not be suspected—"has made them tractable, but there's no use offending their dignity more than is necessary, and of course, our coming in here like this is very irregular. But I also do not want to get them in here milling around until I have all the threads of the things in my hands. If I only knew when the answer to your telegram would arrive!"

"I know," I said despondently, and his eyes were instantly filled with contrition.

"I'm so sorry," he said. "Do not think of it again. We'll simply lock up here again, and go home until the wire comes. Then I can go over things again and see what two and two ought to make."

I hoped he did not see the panic which I was afraid sprang into my eyes. Suppose Marion's telegram should read, "No!"

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Sweet and Low-Down

Many a beautiful love will endure through long years of absence, that would not survive three hundred and sixty-five tete-a-tete breakfasts a year.

Breaking off a love affair used to be a matter of finesse; but nowadays a man disentangles himself from a woman with all the gentleness and patience he would employ in pulling off a piece of adhesive tape.

You can't make a young man believe it, but the girl who would, sometimes, "rather stay at home and read a book," will be a lot easier on the nerves after marriage, than the one who never slows down long enough to dust off the bookcase.

The last resort of a feeble wit is the scintillating retort discourteous.

Many a girl tempts a man to make love to her just in order to brighten up his conversation, when she feels herself about to doze off from sheer boredom and lassitude.

A few girls are born wild, some assume wildness, but most of them appear to have wildness thrust upon them by the exigencies of modern competition, and the masculine demand for "pep."

There is as much difference between an engagement ring and a wedding ring as there is between a promissory note and a certified check.

A man turns over a new leaf in Leni—and then, along comes spring! And, behold, he blots it all up again!

The average man seldom considers putting love on a mental and spiritual plane, until he has tried working it out on all the other planes without success.

When a man marries a successful business girl he is asking her to step out of the chic tailored suit of independence into the bungalow apron of domesticity. Yet, he never hesitates to tell her how badly it fits her.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Introducing Mother

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Is it improper for a child to say "Yes'm" and "No'm" to his or her mother?

2. Can the engagement ring be worn before an announcement in the papers?

3. Is it correct to eat pudding with a spoon, or should a fork be used?

4. Is it necessary to have an entertainment to properly "introduce" your mother to a neighborhood to which you have just moved?

THESE FORMS ARE not so good as the mentioning of the words "Mother" or "Father" after the "Yes" or "No." "Yes, Mother." "No, Father." There is something so wondrous about the words Mother and Father that they should be given their full charm by teaching little children to use them when they address their mothers and fathers. And certainly they sound infinitely better than "m" or "ma'am." Don't you agree?

2. Usually the engagement ring is not worn until the public announcement of the engagement is made. And this is as it should be, I think, for the wearing of the ring is the symbol that the announcement has been made.

3. This depends on the consistency of the pudding. Usually the spoon is more convenient.

4. It is not necessary, but it is a charming and gracious thing to do, and suggests a fine spirit of hospitality. And an interesting social sense.

Two Errors

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Kindly tell which one made the mistake in this instance.

The stewardess came in to get the wife's order. The husband was sitting in the room and when the stewardess glanced at him the wife said: "This is my husband." The man remained seated and made no reply.

A READER.

I THINK that both made social mistakes.

In the first place, I think that the wife made the social error. Why should she think that she had to present her husband to the stewardess? But, since the wife did do something so entirely uncalled for, the husband should have made the best of it and, of course, should have said, "Good morning."

Household Hints

The juice drained from a can of pineapple makes a good foundation for a tasty pudding sauce. Thicken and sweeten with flour and sugar mixed together and added to the boiling juice diluted with water.

When laundering sash curtains, or any curtains to be hung on rods or poles, do not starch the upper hems. You will find this saves time and temper, as the rods will slide through the unstarched hems more quickly and easily. Nor will this detract from the appearance of the curtains in any way.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Ladies of substantial weight can eat steaks and chops, soft boiled eggs, fish and fowl, all vegetables that do not grow under ground (like potatoes and turnips) and fruits that are not excessively sweet. Alligator pears are almost solid oil and should be avoided. Pastries and bonbons are taboo, also cereals, butter, cream and white bread.

Fuzzers on the legs should be removed with depilatories. These preparations are better than pumice stone, which acts the same as a razor, only doesn't do the work as well or as neatly. To bleach superfluous hair apply peroxide to which a drop of ammonia has been added.

Good general health bolsters up the health of the eyes. Women of endurance and vitality have strong eyes, as a rule, and their orbs have more natural brilliancy than is usually seen. Their expression has greater power of variation and change. Headaches, nervousness and digestive disturbances dim the luster of the eyes.

Hair tonics likely to contain alcohol must not be used on the eyelashes to encourage them to grow long and curly. Vaseline can be applied lightly. It imparts a glisten to the lamberquins of the soul windows. The ends of the lashes should never be clipped. Very bad business, that.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Live Wisely for Good Health

"Everyone ought to be able to understand his own pulse and to recognize those things which are harmful or beneficial to him." These words have come down to us from Plutarch, that great Greek moralist who lived in the first century after Christ.

DR. COPELAND

Those words are just as true today as they were then, and even more so. In our enlightened time, with benefits of education, modern science and medical skill, free to everyone, man should know far better how to live, and live so that the body may be kept in health.

Most of the diseases of civilization are the inevitable consequences of our mistakes and misdeeds. Many of them are caused by faulty living.

Faulty methods of living gradually lead to degenerative changes which affect the various glands, tissues and organs of the body. Then are we at the mercy of the disease germs which gain a firm foothold in the system.

We enjoy hearing about how to live and how to avoid disease. The trouble is it is difficult to come first to the point of giving up practices which lead to sickness and disease.

I am far more interested in prevention of disease than I am in curative medicine. I always say that when you are really sick consult the doctor. It is the business of the trained physician to give the personal examination and treatment for any serious ill.

But right living and right thinking can keep the body in health. The palate, and mental desire, and vanity, to say nothing more of the weaknesses of the flesh, are too much for the most of us. We do not take heed when we know full well that we shall have to pay the fiddler.

How often do you eat more than your judgment approves? How many nights are there when you rob yourself of needed sleep, well knowing that you will feel miserable the next day? How often do you go out to a party in cold weather wearing garments too thin for wintry blasts?

You do these things, and worse, perhaps. Over-indulgence in alcohol, in smoking, or any other form of over-indulgence, takes a tax from your vital forces.

There are certain things which you cannot neglect if you are to guard against disease. There are certain conclusions of science that are accepted by all well-informed persons. Vaccination against smallpox is one. Inoculation against diphtheria, scarlet fever and typhoid fever are others.

Nations and empires were destroyed by malaria. Not until the world found that a certain type of mosquito carried the disease, was it known how to prevent malaria.

Today it is my single effort to recall to your mind the importance of doing those things which you know are necessary to your good health. I beg of you to observe the rules of health.

It has long been established that a proper diet will do much to prevent the degenerative diseases. With the right sort of food, and right methods of living, plenty of sleep, fresh air and exercise, you build for yourself. These will give the sort of body and mind without which life is hardly worth living.

BUCS SET FOR HOME STAY

SPORT COMMENT

Clearing Title Muddle.

BUCS FIGHT CREDITABLY IN DEFEAT

TOO BAD THE Pirates didn't have another relief pitcher like Steve Swetonic hanging around to take the place of Jess Petty in Chicago yesterday after they had overcome the Cubs' early three-run lead in the fifth inning and fought their way to the front in the first half of the sixth. Had Glenn Spencer been able to flash the kind of finishing form that Swetonic has been showing this spring the Bucs might have kept their winning streak from being stopped at seven games and slid into first place while the Giants, also halted at seven straight, were suffering their first defeat of the year.

Glenn Spencer

However, in view of what the Rovers have accomplished since the season opened nobody has any room to complain about the loss of a single ball game. That cluster of four home runs and a triple out of a total of eight hits indicates that the Cubs simply had "one of those days" and that it wasn't in the cards for them to be beaten. The Pirates made a game and creditable uphill fight before they lost out in the late innings, and there is no cause for discouragement in their defeat. They can't be expected to win all the time.

NOR IS THE failure of Spencer to hold the game safe to be taken as an indication that the young right-hander is going to fall short of big league requirements. The circumstances under which he made his first mound appearance of the year were by no means favorable and he is likely to do a lot better in his next time out. A pitcher has got to have more than luck to win 24 games out of 33 in a circuit as strong as the Western League, as Spencer did last year.

There is some consolation in the fact that the Giants also went down, the Dodgers lending a helping hand to the Bucs and preventing the McGrawites from making any gain while the Ensmen were losing. That defeat also kept New York from beating Pittsburgh's spring record of seven straight victories. Incidentally, another club has come up to share consecutive winning honors with the Rovers and Giants. The Washington Senators hung up their seventh straight triumph yesterday and also gained the distinction of being the only club in the majors that has won more games than the Pirates.

CLARENCE MITCHELL, LEFT-HAND spitballer of the Cardinals, who suffered a severe injury to one of his ankles while running bases in the game at Cincinnati yesterday, is one of the oldest active players in the majors. He stands out as a rarity in that respect, for whereas not a few pastimers have been accused of forgetting several years in giving their ages, Mitchell is of the opposite type.

John McGraw

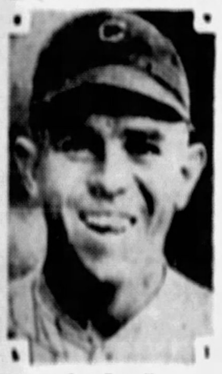
The record books say he was born February 22, 1891, but the veteran southpaw steps to the front with a voluntary correction. He says he was born in 1890 and that he is 40 instead of 39. Once it was said that spitball pitching involved a strain on the arm, but the length of time that Mitchell, like Jack Quinn and Urban Faber, has survived would appear to upset that theory.

AND MITCHELL ADDS some testimony of his own. "Keep away from curve-ball pitching as much as you can," is the advice he gave Dick Farrington recently to be passed along to young hurlers. "The curve has ruined more arms than the spitter or knuckle ball ever will. I use a knuckler now and then, but throwing one curve is harder on the arm than a dozen spitballs. That is because the spitter is thrown with a natural motion, while a curve racks the muscles. Look at your curve-ball pitchers today. Their arms are drawn up and crooked. Even old Grover Alexander has a crooked arm, and the same goes for all the others. John McGraw's curve ball demands have ruined more arms than the methods of any other manager. I believe that McGraw curves the juice out of all the pitching arms that come under his command. For that reason I can't see much of a future for some of the young fellows now operating for the Giants."*

ONE BRIGHT RAY in the gloom of Pirate defeat was the evidence produced that Lloyd Waner is about ready to start. Making his first appearance of the season as pinch-hitter for Petty in the fifth inning, he cracked out a clean single that drove in a run, sprinted to third on another single immediately afterward, and in general acted like a player who will be able to begin regular work at any time.

So with George Grantham back on the job and Pie Traynor almost ready, it won't be long until the real Pirate lineup is on the field for the first time this year. The subs have done remarkable work, but the chances, of course, are against their being able to keep it up. If they could do that, they wouldn't be subs.

JOE SEWELL, for eight years shortstop and now third baseman of the Cleveland Indians, yesterday completed another lap in his pursuit of one of baseball's most notable records. He played his eleven hundredth consecutive ball game in the big show.



Joe Sewell

When the present season opened, Sewell had participated in 1,099 straight contests played by his club. Yesterday's engagement in St. Louis was the tenth of the year for the Indians and rounded out a total of 1,100 games for Joe without a miss.

THE ALL-TIME RECORD that Sewell seeks to break is that of Everett Scott, who played in a total of 1,307 consecutive major league games, his starting on June 20, 1916, with the Red Sox, and ending on May 5, 1925, with the Yankees. Joe would have passed Scott's mark some time ago if he had not been benched one day for a rest almost at the end of the 1922 season. He has played in 1,414 big league games all told, not counting seven world series contests. He must play in 208 games more in a row to set a new record for continuous play, which will require him to go beyond the middle of next season without a lay-off. Lou Gehrig, of the Yankees, is next in line in the chase after Scott's record. He has played in 753 consecutive games up to date. The National League record is 618 games, set by Eddie Brown, former Brooklyn and Boston outfielder, from June 5, 1924, to June 7, 1928.*

SYDNEY WEIL, the new owner of the Cincinnati club, announces that he will go to Des Moines to observe how the Des Moines Western League club's plan for the playing of baseball games at night works out there next Friday, and intimates that if it meets with his approval he may start something of the same kind in Cincinnati.

It might be well for Mr. Weil to consult the playing rules of his own league before he proceeds to rearrange the Reds' home schedule. For the code will have to be changed before any night games will be permissable in the majors. Rule 22, of the official regulations, stipulates that "every championship game must be commenced not later than two hours before sunset."

TOMORROW NIGHT'S RETURN bout between Maxie Rosenbloom and Larry Johnson in New York is expected to open the way for the final clearing up of the light-heavyweight championship

W. VA. CARDS ARMY

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., April 29.—(A.P.)—West Virginia University's track team will meet the U. S. Military Academy track team in a dual meet in Morgantown May 10, 1931, and at West Point in 1932, according to an announcement last night by H. A. Stansbury, director of athletics.

PRIMO IN EXHIBITION

ABERDEEN, Wash., April 29.—(A.P.)—Almost 800 boxing fans paid to see Primo Carnera, Italian giant, in action against Jack Sharkey of Portland, Ore., and Tom Moore of Los Angeles, both heavyweights, in an exhibition appearance here last night. No one was hurt.

W. P. I. A. L. TEAMS RESUME CAMPAIGN

First place in Section I of the City League is the prize for which Schenley and Peabody high schools will battle this afternoon in the feature contest of the day's scholastic baseball card. The game will be played on the East Enders' diamond.

Schenley, with a close 3-to-2 triumph over Ralston and one-sided 20-0 rout of Vocational to its credit, expects to run into trouble a-plenty against Peabody. The East End nine has defeated Westinghouse and Ralston in its contests to date, downing Ralston with more ease than did the Bellefielders.

VOCATIONAL, RALSTON MEET

On a second Section I contest, Vocational and Ralston meet at Ralston, with the loser bound to fall heir to full possession of the section cellar.

In Section II, Oliver, unbeaten to date, meets Langley at Langley. The Corliss Station nine has always been a factor in the City League race, but this year, appears to have slipped. Carrick downed Langley last week. South Hills and Allegheny complete the Section II card with a clash on the North Side.

In the junior division, in Section I, Arsenal and Baxter meet at Baxter and Peabody and Liberty play at Liberty. In Section II, Oliver battles Herron Hill.

W. P. I. A. L. IN ACTION

W. P. I. A. L. competition will continue with action carded in four sections. Turtle Creek meets McKeesport in Section I. In Section II, Edgewood and North Braddock and Rankin plays Wilkinsburg at Wilkinsburg. Section III has Mount Lebanon playing McKees Rocks and Dormont meeting Crafton.

The Aliquippa at Monaca game in Section IV completes the day's card.

In an independent tussle, Sacred Heart High will clash with Shady Side Academy on the Academy grounds.

INJURED STAR UNCHANGED

The condition of Leo Murphy, Pitt gridder, confined in St. Francis Hospital with a broken neck which he suffered in scrimmage last Thursday, has undergone no change during the past 36 hours. The Pitt star, fighting for his life, passed another quiet night. The hospital reported this morning that his condition was unchanged.

Aside from members of the immediate family, no one has been permitted to visit his room. Completely paralyzed, and at times unconscious, his condition is extremely grave.

Murphy was injured when he cracked into Franklyn Hood while leading interference on a line play. He collapsed immediately and was rushed to the hospital, where an X-ray examination disclosed broken sixth and seventh cervical vertebra.

Courtney Stopped By Leo Williams

HOLYOKE, Mass., April 29.—Leo (One Punch) Williams, Negro light-heavyweight, of Harlem, scored an upset here last night when he knocked out George Courtney, Oklahoma light-heavyweight title contender, in the fifth round of a scheduled 10 round bout.

The knockout was the first suffered by Courtney during some 75 bouts.

Nick Altrock Says:

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Folks, pipe that National League standing. The season is only two weeks old, but already the second division consists of six teams. I don't know what McGraw has been giving his Giants, but I think it's cocaine. But Pittsburgh is the real surprise package. If the Pirates were weakened when they sent Burleigh Grimes to Boston, they got over their convalescence quick. Barney Dreyfuss should trade the Waners for Amos and Andy and weaken his team some more. Well, Babe Ruth started slabbing homers into the stands, but the Yanks are going down hill so fast I can smell their brake bands burning.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE MOST EXTRAORDINARY SOPRANO OF ALL TIME WAS A MAN—Carlo Broschi Farinelli (1705-1782), a native of Naples, Italy, was the most extraordinary soprano the world has known. As a boy he sang in the male soprano choruses of ecclesiastical courts. It is difficult to imagine the furore which his appearance caused in London in 1734. His fame reached the court of Spain, where Philip V was about to succumb as a victim of black melancholy. The exclusive services of Farinelli were engaged, and for 10 years he sang the same four airs for the King, night after night. It is claimed that Farinelli had seven to eight notes more than the ordinary voice, and that they were sonorous, equal and clear.

Though he isn't a handicap man, and may never gain such a standing, Lieut. Tommy Ward is doing right noble as he rides at No. 2 position on the One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery trio.

Lt. Tom Ward

The One Hundred and Seventh is gaining a queer reputation. It appears to be the only polo team in the world that can't win a game but still draw 'em at the gate. The Artillerymen are doing their best to build the game here in Pittsburgh, and despite the fact that they take them on the button each Saturday night, each appearance serves to attract a slightly bigger crowd.

RIDES WITH COLOR

Lieut. Tommy, who wears his hair a la Prussian, clipped to a short pompador, and rides with color and dash, has been the mainstay of the Artillery team. He isn't the leading scorer—but his all-round polo has been of a high order, considering the fact that he isn't thoroughbred mounted and lacks experience.

His riding in the third game of the Shady Side series, which his team lost by a one-goal margin, was the best of the night. Against the Three Hundred and Eighth Cavalry Saturday, he held Lieut. Madden, No. 2 man of the Cavalry scoreless until the final chukker, and then, Madden only scored in a melee in front of the goal.

A FINE DUEL

Young Bob Pusch, of Beaver, and Windy Moore, Beaver Falls, are staging a fine pole vaulting duel, which has extended over two years. These high school lads, a

Bucs Cause Bruins To Out-Roar Lions

By THE BENCHWARMER.

CHICAGO, April 29.—Well, folks, we took one on the chin, but, as Pie Traynor was saying to some of the boys after the game, it's the fella who can get up off the floor and win, like Gene Tunney did, that is the real champion. Anyhow, the gang is gonna be in there swinging again today and every other day this year.

Larry and a bunch of us took in the big Zoo in Lincoln Park. It's just close by the hotel and you can hear the lions roar at night sometimes, but they don't squawk as much as those Bears when the Pirates are beatin' 'em.

There was a little more dustin' off yesterday, but it was accidents when Petty hit Hornsby and English. These pitches were down around their belts and Jess was just trying to keep the ball close to the handles. He wasn't throwin' at nybody.

Pie was telling some pretty good stuff about dust-off balls. Pie is against it, but he doesn't say much when a pitcher takes a shot at him, unless they carry it too far.

PIE SPINS YARN

Traynor and the boys were talking about the way Burleigh Grimes likes to loosen up a good hitter. Pie says that Burleigh doesn't care who you are when he's trying to win. He lived all winter in the woods with Grimes when Burleigh was with the Giants. The first time the Giants met the Pirates, Pie stung Burleigh for two hits in a row and the next time he come up, Burleigh left one fly at Pie's hair cut. As Pie started out to the diamond after the inning, he said to Burleigh:

"It's a cinch to get out of the way of that slow ball of yours." Grimes just laughed and that's all there was to it.

I was kinda hopin' there would be an exhibition game next Wednesday when we have an off day in Pittsburgh, but all the older fellas on the club is tickled because they say the team needs

CHICAGO, April 29.—The merry month of May just around the corner, the Pirates today eagerly awaited their long home series with eastern clubs and the attendant rest which the home stay is sure to bring.

Traveling farther than any team in baseball in the past six weeks, the Freebooters also were glad to know that the coming Sunday would see nothing but relaxation for them, there being no exhibition game.

Eastern clubs await the Pirates at Forbes Field, beginning Thursday, when the Braves reach town to start the intersectional stuff.

JUMP TO BROOKLYN

The only break in this enjoyable home stay is noted one week from Sunday when the Buccos and Robins hustle to Brooklyn for one of those single attractions that have recently crept into the Pittsburgh playing cards. It is a bad piece of work, the Pirates being the principal victims. The Buccos had enough of those Sunday jumps to Cincinnati and Chicago without sending them the other way.

The Braves will play three games with the Ensmen at Forbes Field. On Monday the Giants will arrive in town for four clashes, these to be followed by the three with the Robins, with

NO. 27

JOHNNY CAPEBIANCO
Meadville Country Club

J. Capebianco

Johnny Capebianco, who is serving his first year as professional at the Meadville Country Club, is one of the best young golfers we've ever had in Western Pennsylvania. It was back in 1920 that Johnny started to caddie at the Tornburg Country Club. In 1923 he was promoted to the assistant caddiemaster's job, Jimmy O'Donnel being caddie-master, and in 1925 he was made caddiemaster and assistant pro to Fred Baroni at the Chartiers Heights Country Club. He served Chartiers four years, resigning last year to become caddie-master at Edgewood, again working under Jimmy O'Donnell. This year, in taking the Meadville berth, Johnny is making his first stab as a sure-enough, fullfledged professional. With O'Donnell, Johnny helped organize the West Penn Caddie-Masters Association, and was elected secretary, holding the office three years. He set a golf course record of 68 at Chartiers, and a pro course record of 67 at Edgewood; finished second and third in caddie-masters' tourneys in 1926, won two of three of the same tourneys in 1927, and copped the championship in 1928 and last year, as well. For three years he was medalist in the caddie-masters' title play. Golfing in Florida and Scotland pool are his winter diversions. He should make good.—VERN SWARTSFAGER.

COLLEGE NET TEAMS PLAY HERE TODAY

JACKETS FACE DUKES; W.-J. MEETS TECH

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The local varsity tennis campaign swings under way this afternoon—April weather permitting—With Grand Stander Duquesne host entertaining Waynesburg in the Tri-State Conference net opener on the Bluff and the Carnegie Tech affair set to mingle with Wash-Jeff on the Tartan lot. Both contests loom as hard-fought affairs, though little is known of the real strength of any of the quartet of contesting outfits. So great have been the inroads made by graduation and defection since the close of the 1929 season.

The Dukes and Skibos have not announced definite line-ups in advance of their tussles but word from the Red and Blue camp lists Capt. Andy Smeaton a certain starter at the number one post with brother Bill Smeaton reasonably assured of the second assignment and Regis Bullion, clever Homesteader likely to break at third position. From among Jimmy Campbell, Frank Casey, Ray Boland, and Joe O'Neill, coach Siverd will select his fourth and fifth singles contenders while the Smeaton boys will cavort at top doubles and the number two duo will be chosen at the final moment.

TECH LINEUP UNCERTAIN

The Tartan troop will stack up with Capt. Russ Kambach at or next to the head of the list, but beyond this fact Coach Hoover is disclosing no plans. The Plaid, however, is pretty sure to place a capable and well-balanced combine on the courts, though outdoor preliminary practice has been virtually nil. No data whatever is available on the President and Yellowjacket entries.

Following their W. & J. affair the Carnegie performers will engage Johnny Hecker and his powerful Genevans on the Morewood Cut rectangles tomorrow and on Saturday they will visit the Bison lair at Bethany. Duquesne will be idle the remainder of the week, but Dr. Billy McElroy's mighty Pitt proteges will break into home competition on Saturday with Wash-Jeff providing opposition for O'Loughlin, Jacobs and the rest.

MEETING TODAY

Another important feature of today is a special noon conclave of the Western Pennsylvania Tournament Committee. Chairman Ed Seitz has called his cohorts together in session to nominate committeemen for various labors in connection with the West Penn championships, slated for the Stanton Heights Golf Club the week of Saturday, June 21.

Meanwhile J. Howard Moore, chairman of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association smoker and buffet supper, scheduled for the P. A. A. a week from tonight, is arranging final details for an soiree that will set the 1930 pellet rolling with a crash.

GLENNA, PARTY IN ENGLAND

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., April 29 (AP)—The largest contingent of American women golfers ever to land in England arrived today when the Berengaria docked at Southampton with Glenna Collett and her team aboard.

Miss Collett, the American women's champion, headed a party of 20, including Virginia Van Wie and Helen Hicks, who she declared "are just as good at golf as I am."

Maureen Orcutt, the other member of the American "Big Four" arrived several days ago.

The squad started for London on a boat train which Miss Collett said would halt near Sunningdale so that the girls could inspect the course today and motor to London later. It is at Sunningdale that the Americans meet an English team on Thursday.

JACK IN CLINIC

ROCHESTER, Minn., April 29.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion, has entered the Mayo clinic here for examination. He arrived Sunday night from Fargo, where he refereed a bout Saturday night. Dempsey planned to stay here a few days and may undergo a minor operation.

CROWD JEERS LOUGHRAN'S 'DEFEAT'

PHILADELPHIA, April 29—(AP)—Tommy Loughran's heavyweight championship aspirations have received another severe jolt, this time at the hands of Ernie Schaaf, 21-year-old Boston sailor boy.

Schaaf belted his way to a referee's decision over the former light-heavyweight titleholder in a sensational 10-round battle here last night. One of the judges scored Loughran as the winner and the other voted for a draw.

The verdict of Referee Leo Houck precipitated a noisy demonstration on the part of the fans. Police were called to disperse the crowd, which stormed about the center of the arena for several minutes after the final gong. Most of the fans declared that Loughran should have got no worse than a draw.

Coming on the heels of his knockout at the hands of Jack Sharkey last summer, the defeat, in the opinion of experts, has lowered Loughran's heavyweight prospects materially. Loughran won a decision over Schaaf in Boston last year.

A riot call was sent in during the furore following the announcing of the decision and more than 20 minutes were required to empty the arena after the police arrived. The crowd was in an ugly mood and cries of "Burn down the hall," and "Tear down the place" echoed through the building.

All of the local newspapers today were unanimous in stating that Loughran deserved the decision. It was the first he has lost here in three years.

Chocolate's Purse Held Up in Toronto

TORONTO, April 29.—(AP)—Officials of the Ontario Athletic Boxing Commission today were holding up the purse of Kid Chocolate, Cuban featherweight, as a result of his showing last night against Johnny Erickson, of New York.

Chocolate was awarded the decision after the 10-round bout by vote of the two judges, but Referee Lou Marsh declined to cast his ballot. The Cuban gave Erickson a thorough trouncing and almost knocked him out in the last round, but the officials were dissatisfied with the Cuban's showing in the earlier rounds.

Referee Marsh warned Chocolate's manager, Luis Guiterrez, between rounds to order Chocolate to open up. Guiterrez said the Cuban had injured both hands in the first round and was disinclined to extend himself when he could win easily, anyway.

SENATORS CONTINUE FAST PACE

ROBINS SERVE GIANTS FIRST SETBACK

Associated Press.

In the face of expert opinion that said they would be lucky to finish any higher than seventh place, Walter Johnson's Washington Senators continue to set a dizzy pace to lead the American League.

No one can say, of course, where the Senators will finish but the fact remains that they are playing heads-up baseball, taking advantage of every break and winning consistently.

JOE CRONIN STARS

Yesterday's 6-5 victory over the New York Yankees was the Senators' ninth in 11 games and their seventh in a row. Washington took an early lead, thanks to some spectacular hitting by Shortstop Joe Cronin, and then held on to it in the face of a Yankee rally in the later frames. Cronin drove in three runs with a home run, triple and double.

The Chicago White Sox moved up into second place with a 9-7 triumph over Detroit. Carl Reynolds hit a home run, triple and single, his homer with Lyons on base in the seventh really deciding the contest.

The St. Louis Browns could get only five hits off the offerings of Pete Jablonowski, American Association recruit, and Cleveland won, 3 to 1.

Wildness on the part of Mac-Fayden and Morris and fielding errors by O. Miller and Regan enabled the Philadelphia Athletics to score four runs in the ninth without a hit and beat the Boston Redsox, 5-4.

GIANTS LOSE

In the National League the New York Giants lost their first game of the season, bowing to Brooklyn, 6 to 4, when Harvey Hendrick doubled with the bases filled in the ninth. The defeat broke Bill Walker's string of 11 straight victories run up during the latter part of 1929 and this season. Travis Jackson hit his fifth home run of the year.

Four home runs, two by Gabby Hartnett and the others by Charley Root and Cliff Heathcote, enabled Chicago's Cubs to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-4.

CARDS BEAT REDS

The St. Louis Cardinals took advantage of eight bases on balls and whipped Cincinnati, 8 to 3. Clarence Mitchell, Card pitcher, suffered an ankle injury in the fourth inning and had to retire.

The Phillies concentrated their hitting in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings to beat the Boston Braves, 7 to 4.

Yarosz, Down Twice, Beats Young Rudy

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 29.—(AP.)—Ted Yarosz, 145¾, Monaca, defeated Young Rudy, 145, Charleroi, in 10 rounds here last night. Rudy knocked the Monaca boy down twice for no count in the opening round, but Yarosz came back strong to win the unanimous verdict.

Cowboy DeLuca, 146, Pittsburgh, won an easy eight-round decision over Harry Devore, 151½, Wellsville, O., Sammy Paris, 127, Pittsburgh, drew in six rounds with Roy Ryan, 130, Ellsworth. Kenny Davis, 128, Wellsville, O., won a six-round decision from Jimmy Warner, 127¼, Pittsburgh.

Kent Greenfield Returned to Robins

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 29.—(AP.)—The Forth Worth Baseball Club has returned Kent Greenfield, right-handed hurler, to the Brooklyn Robins. He reported here before the Texas League season opened, but was unable to get started, largely due to lack of control.

THOMAS NINE STRONG

BLOOMFIELD CLUB LINES UP TALENT

By TOM BIRKS.

In keeping with the high class of baseball served up for Bloomfield sandlot followers by J. L. Thomas, the popular East End sportsman announced last evening that the aggregation tabbing his name in the league this season was a tough nut for all the other contenders to crack.

The team will consist largely of Pip Confessore and Al Zappa. Thomas has given the team orders to go out and win. Plenty of talent will be on show under the shadow of the Bloomfield Bridge.

While Thomas has been the mainstay of sandlot baseball around the Bloomfield section for a number of years there was a movement on foot early this spring to have the Board of Trade back the club. This idea however, fell flat and again J. L. as he is called by the fans opened his pocketbook to give the section a representative club in the City League.

Most all of last season's players will be on hand with many newcomers in the fight for berths. Sammy Leon, Earl Fritz, Heiky and Gus Bahr will carry the pitching burden.

Eddie Ritter, one of the real favorites in the City League and a hard worker, will be behind the bat, with Kennedy in reserve.

The infield will line up with Porko on first, Henry Jones at second, Quido or McCullough at the shortfield berth and the veteran Dan Shade covering third.

McCrocy, Polly Brown, Donett and Pelfover will roam the outfield. This quartet can hit the ball and cover plenty of territory. Zappa has many other candidates working out this week, but the roster named will give Bloomfield a good representation in the league fight.

Bunts

Pleasant Valley and the A. eighth Ward Legion will clash in the opening game of the season at Pleasant Valley this evening. This battle is rated as an unfinished affair and will bring together the second and third City League champions. Last year's Legion champions topped the Ward in 1929.

Tony Lazzeri, Yankee star, is going to be one of the most closely watched players in baseball this season. A great deal depends upon the showing this sensational player, with plenty of critics, the Yankees may or may not have a wonderful season, playing with power in the City League and Homewood in the West Penn. Some of the best all-around ball players in the business, North, Bonomo, Homewood and Whitaker.

The Buckman Motors have Thursday evening open for a first game with Manager Linton is priming his outfit for the Cardiac League championship.

Harry Powley is still with the New York Giants, and the former Verona star writes he will be with Pittsburgh with the Giants next Monday. It will be gratifying to local sandlotters to know that Powley is staying up. It seems as if the hitting ability he flashed has made an impression on John McGraw. He is working at the outfield.

The first week's schedule for the City League as released last evening is as follows: Monday, Oct. 13 at Bon Air, St. Johns at J. L. Thomas; Tuesday, Oct. 14 at Howe; J. L. Thomas at Bon Air, Pleasant Valley at N. S. Clubs at Howe; Thursday—Howe Clubs at St. Johns; N. S. Clubs at Bon Air; W. O. W. at J. L. Thomas; Pleasant Valley at Howe Clubs; Friday, Bon Air at Pleasant Valley; Saturday—

The Lincoln Clubs, most talented at Universal on Thursday evening, Manager Butterick wants a game with the fast players to meet at Lansing and Monterey streets at 3:30 P. M. Sunday. Any first morning team clubs of the Lincoln and West Penn leagues.

Sport Vignettes

Smart boxing men will tell you that the ringman who can follow instructions from his corner is one who is apt to get somewhere in his chosen profession . . . Such a performer is Andy Martin, the extremely clever featherweight, of Boston, who turned in another classy job in defeating Johnny Dunn, best of the local 126-pounders, in their 10-round bout at Duquesne Garden a few nights ago . . . It was a pleasure to this writer to sit near Andy's corner and watch the remarkable co-operation between the boxer and his chief second, Billy Henderson, as the bout progressed . . . Coaching from the corner is barred under present-day rules, but so cleverly did the pair work that they never were interfered with . . . Throughout, whenever Martin lagged in his work for a moment, Henderson would pep him up with sharp, succinct commands to "Get in there now, FAST!" or some other similar admonition, spoken in the soft, musical tone peculiar to New Englanders and not likely to be confused in the hubbub of the crowd . . . Never did Martin, much more capable than the ordinary ringster of fighting his own fight, question the judgment of his mentor, but almost immediately he did what he was ordered to do . . . It was a delight to see Andy obey without hesitation such commands as "Right to the pit of the stomach!" "One two—NOW!" etc. . . . Dunn must have heard the orders as well as Martin, yet so speedily and cleverly did Martin execute the commands that Johnny was unable to defend against or frustrate him . . . The man in the corner, if he knows boxing, always can see more openings than the man in the ring, but few boxers are able to do as they are told as well as Andy . . . I repeat, it was a treat to watch the co-ordination of second and boxer in this instance . . . Martin now is a stablemate of Jack Sharkey, the American heavyweight champion . . . If Sharkey were as amenable to advice from his corner, he would have turned in victories that he muffed in several of his big fights due to his impetuousness and self sufficiency . . . Did it ever occur to you that Bob Shawkey is in a tough spot with his New York Yankees getting off to such a poor start, and that the worse they go the more the fans will appreciate the labors of little Miller Huggins, who led the Ruppert Rifles to three consecutive pennants and really worked wonders and found his way to an early grave as a reward? . . . The veteran Ray Caldwell, former Yankee pitcher, and his son both are pitching for Birmingham in the Southern Association this year . . . Quintin Romero-Rojas, who still is "tanking" for a lot of heavyweight hopes, first came to this country seven years ago as the champion of Chile and holds the proud distinction of having knocked out Jack Sharkey, now the outstanding big man in the game . . . He also boasts victories over Jack Renault and Johnny Risko and has fought virtually all of the "big names" in the record books . . . His friends say he still can fight, but is satisfied to go out quickly in his bouts to keep from taking excessive punishment and wind up "walking on his heels" . . . They add that he really doesn't need the money, but is remaining in the ring for the exercise he gets out of training.—HARRY KECK.

a rest after the long barnstorming trip. I guess some of them thought I was gonna coax the management to book a game because I was told that there'd be another left-hander on the hospital squad if I started to pop off about playin' exhibition games this early.

CUBS NEEDED WIN

Well, I think it is a good thing for the Chicago players that they won a game from the Pirates. The fans was beginning to get on them awful. They're ready to hop on poor Jack Wilson and nearly every time he come up he chases one of our outfielders. He almost hung Flaggie on the centerfield pickets with a liner once. Flaggie made a great catch of this ball. He looked like Speaker all afternoon. If he is slowin up I'd like to know what he did when he was a kid.

another game carded for the intervening Sunday in Brooklyn.

LLOYD WANER READY

Manager Ens announced this morning that he felt he could use Lloyd Waner any time now, but did not wish to make any change as long as Ira Flagstead was playing such brilliant ball. Brother Lloyd told the Sun-Telegraph today that he could play in a pinch.

He is getting back his strength slowly. Lloyd yesterday made his season's debut. He batted for Jess Petty and singled to right.

Skipper Ens is a little doubtful about Traynor.

The pupil of Pie's bad eye is still dilated. Otherwise Pie is close to top form. The ailing optic does not give him normal vision, but he hopes it will clear up soon.

The Pirates lost their second game of the season yesterday as they took a setback from the Cubs. The score was 7 to 4.

Marse Joe's boys contributed four homers to the contest, Leo Hartnett coming through with two round-trippers. Cliff Heathcote and Carley Root also made four-baggers.

Jess Petty started for the Bucs but he was wild and generally ineffective.

Glenn Spencer went to the mound in the fifth. The rookie made a low third to third in the seventh that opened the way for the home success.

Blue Ridge League Cut to Four Clubs

HAGERSTOWN, Md., April 29.—(AP.)—The Blue Ridge Baseball League this season, for the first time since its founding, 15 years ago, will operate with four instead of six teams, according to an official announcement made by James B. Jamison, league president.

The Hanover and Martinsburg teams have been unable to secure sufficient financial backing for the season and today wired the league offices they would be unable to carry on.

The four teams left are Frederick, Hagerstown, Waynesboro, and Chambersburg. The teams will operate May 8 and close September 6, playing a split season of 120 games.

MEYERS BOWL TO PROMOTE WRESTLING

By HARRY KECK.
Sports Editor.

Rasslin' is comin' back in the Pittsburgh district.

The Meyers Bowl, in North Braddock, will sponsor the mat sport under restricted conditions laid down by the boxing commission, it was learned today.

Apples Meyers' week-end trip to New York for the purpose of lining up boxing bouts for his Bowl, which opens May 19, also included a visit to Jack Curley, big chief of the rasslin' racket, with whom he will arrange for the appearance of the big names of the sport here during the summer months, it has been divulged.

It is the plan of the Bowl management to mix up the wrestling bouts with boxing matches, continuing to stage a boxing show every Monday night and using some other night in the week for wrestling. There are only so many Monday nights in the outdoor season and the Bowl feels it is entitled to operate oftener than once a week if it can provide the attractions.

Hitherto, the commission has frowned on wrestling shows in this end of the state, although they have been encouraged in the Eastern sector to the point where they now outdraw the boxing bills in the matter of attendance and gate receipts. It is understood the commission will not permit the Meyers Bowl to advertise the bouts as such, but will insist that they be labeled "exhibitions," which is in keeping with a rule recently adopted by the New York commission.

Between Rounds

Tommy Ward of the South Side and Teddy Welsh, of McKeesport, 145-pounders, have been signed to box the second preliminary of six rounds on the Jackie Rodgers-Johnny Dundee card at Motor Square Garden next Monday night. Moose Butch and Jackie Wilson are in the opener. The semi-final will be arranged today. The ticket sale for this show has opened at the Garden and Spalding's.

If Young Sayler, of Charleroi, wins his bout with Freddie Mueller at Duquesne Garden tomorrow night, he will be in line for a crack at Gorilla Jones, Negro star, of Akron, in the windup of the final show of the indoor season at Motor Square Garden, one week from next Monday.

The tip is out that Jim McGirr of Mt. Kennedy will run his north end shows at Butler this summer that town having drawn well last year. McGirr recently announced that he had an offer of another spot under consideration, but would not reveal its location except to say that it was near Pittsburgh.

Billy Holt, the sensational young Negro welterweight punisher of Canton, O., who knocked Frankie Portland, of Ambridge, working in two rounds at the Moose Temple last Friday night, may be lost to the boxing game at least for the present because he is a good high school football player and his coach is urging him to quit the game. Another Frankie Flynn, of the Moose Temple, wants to use him again in his semi-final next Friday night, but must wait until Billy decides what he wants to do in the matter. Jimmy Thomas of the host and the Grays Kid, of Beaver Falls, have been matched for the opening bout Friday night. Farmer Joe Cooper and Harry (Kid) Wallace are in the main bout.

U. S. Carpentier and Billy Scholes likely will box the semi-final of the final show of the season at the Moose Temple, Friday night of next week.

George (Slip) Lehr, 142-pound amateur star, of the North Side, is working out daily with Frank Novak and Billy Scholes and will turn pro within a week or two. Lehr Scholes and Novak to will box under the management of Cy Perkett.

Ray Fay, of Charleroi, boxes Peter Perosh, of Canton, O., at Marcellus, O., tonight. Freddie Edwards battles Jackie Herman with Jackie Wilson meeting Rose Fields. Kenny Davis engaging Young Rodney and Skinny Lee clashing with Eddie Lane in preliminaries at East Liverpool. O. Johnny Farr boxes Andy Callahan at Boston. Abie Wolff meets Georgia Deacher in Brooklyn, and Jack (Kid) Berg tangles with Tommy Jarrett at New Haven, Conn.

Mickey Duris Wins Over Smackey

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., April 29.—(AP.)—Mickey Duris, 137 pounds, Johnstown, won a 10-round decision here last night from Johnny Smackey, 135, Canonsburg. Joe Stuchinsky, 142, Beaverdale, won a six-round verdict in a bout with Toots Gentile, 146, Portage.

Jimmy Dontella, 127, Bakerton, substituting for Charlie Adams, of Johnstown, won in six rounds from Charlie Monroe, New Kensington. Matty Biehl, 132, Johnstown, knocked out Steve Lanne, 134, Barnesboro, in the second round of a six-round bout.

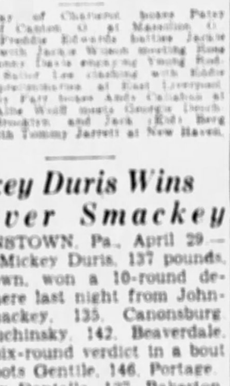
muddle. Jimmy Slattery is recognized as the title holder by the New York commission at present, but Rosenbloom is accepted as the champion in those states in which the National Boxing Association has jurisdiction.

The plan is to have the winner of the Rosenbloom-Johnson tilt meet Slattery for the crown. This may work out all right if Rosenbloom is victorious tomorrow, for Slattery believes he can beat Maxie, an opinion that is not shared by the great majority of fight followers, but if Johnson wins the project may strike a snag, as it is rumored that Jimmy wants none of the Chicago Negro's game.



Maxie Rosenbloom

THIS ISN'T THE first time that the world light-heavyweight leadership has been in dispute. Wilbur Wood recalls that there has been confusion in the division almost since its inception in 1903, when Lou Houseman, manager of Jack Root, proclaimed Root champion at 175 pounds. Houseman put up a belt and announced that Root was ready to defend it against all comers. George Gardner was the first to challenge and defeated Root, but five months later lost the title to Bob Fitzsimmons. Two years afterward, or in 1905, Fitz lost to Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, and in 1907 O'Brien was dethroned by Tommy Burns. Then Burns claimed the heavyweight honors and paid no further attention to the 175-pound championship. For several years the latter title was in abeyance, but finally Jack Dillon claimed it and was accepted as champion until Battling Levinsky beat him in 1916. Georges Carpentier defeated Levinsky, and in turn was toppled by Battling Siki. From Siki the crown passed to Mike McTigue, from McTigue to Paul Berlenbach, and from Berlenbach to Jack Delaney. There was another squabble when Delaney relinquished the title to enter the heavyweight class, Tommy Loughran finally winning recognition as champion after defeating McTigue and Jimmy Slattery. Loughran entered the heavyweight class last year and the 175-pound title has been the subject of a wrangle ever since.

Security Owners Almost Equal Total Families

By B. C. FORBES

TODAY THERE are almost as many owners of securities — stockholders and bondholders — in this country as there are families. That's the main reason why so much greater attention is devoted to finance and business by all up-to-date newspapers than was devoted 10 or 20 years ago. Also that is the main reason why stock speculation last year reached a volume theretofore unimagined and unimaginable.

Securities, once confined to the rich, have entered into the life of almost 20,000,000 families. Nor has the 1929 panic dulled the appetite of the typical American for owning securities, especially stocks. He may have had his fingers badly burned, or he may have made money in the last long-sustained upward movement. In either case, the probabilities all are that the next full-steam bull market will draw into its train even more people than got aboard last time.

IT IS NOT AT ALL impossible that before 1930 ends the activity in securities will match if not exceed that of 1929. And it is also possible that many quotations will advance as spectacularly as they then advanced.

STOCKS HAVING developed a practical interest for so many individuals and families, it is logical that many books should have been published on the subject. The very latest, "Watch Your Margin," although anonymous, is among the most pungent. Concerning the writer, W. E. Woodward, well known author, says, in the introduction:

"The basic idea of J. H. B.'s operations is that he looks upon stocks simply as merchandise. 'The same qualities that make a man a good grocer might make him an excellent stock operator,' he has told me many times. 'I mean the same fundamental qualities. You buy at a low price and sell at a higher one. You buy stocks that are in fashion, just as a grocer puts in a lot of pickled pineapples, let us say, because the housekeepers in his neighborhood are asking for them. It's simple.'"

THE AUTHOR says:

"The panic of 1893, as severe as it was, did not make a dent in the basic conditions of American industry, and the World War, for all its billions of waste, left us richer at the end than we were at the beginning. The underlying reason for all this is that we are still a young nation. We have hardly explored our natural resources; the land is still filling up with people. In any sensible consideration of industry, or of stocks which represent industrial conditions, this fact is vital. It means that America is fundamentally on the upgrade and will continue so for a long time to come.

"I venture to say that the stocks of many long established, settled, well-managed national enterprises may be bought at the very highest prices reached in their history, and in time—not so many years away — they'll show big profits. These concerns will grow up to meet hose prices."

Again:

"Your best bet is always to string with quality stocks.

"Don't buy stocks in unnecessary concerns — enterprises that the country could just as well get on without, and wouldn't miss if they vanished overnight. Buy stocks that have been selling themselves to you since you could walk—stocks of companies that have been toting you and your friends around for years like Southern Pacific, N. Y. Central and Santa Fe; partnerships in business enterprises that have been on the receiving end of your check book, such as Liggett & Myers, Lambert, Simmons Bed and Gold Dust. Isn't General Electric bigger than any market reaction or trade depression? And the same for the Standard Oils, for Macy and for Pennsylvania.

"I have always gone in for stocks that are definitely tied up with American progress. I bought stock in the Union Pacific R. R. when it was described in Congress as a 'streak of rust' running across the continent. I bought U. S. Steel Common when many of the leading economic authorities were weeping over it. I began to buy Standard Oil stocks about the time the automobile appeared— and I am still buying the Standard Oils."

ALSO NOTE this advice:

"Buy the best stock in its class; it will make more money for you than a cheaper stock in the same class and without a comparable risk. Buy the best with the sure knowledge that it is expensive only because it is very good. In the long run high prices and high quality go hand in hand.

"If it's safety you want, ask for that and pay the price of a good bond. If you want profits, buy the right stocks. But if you call for the whole shebang—profit, safety, a fat return and plenty of liquidity, you're asking for too much for your money. In that case, prepare to be trimmed!"

Gains Reported by Two Local Companies

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

FAVORABLE EARNINGS STATEMENTS were made public today by two of Pittsburgh's leading industrial organizations. Both the Westinghouse Air Brake Company and the Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Corporation reported greater net profits for the first quarter of the present year than in the corresponding period of 1929.

Both are carriyng good volumes of business on their books and have prospects for continued earnings at satisfactory rates.

Westinghouse Air Brake reported net profit for the quarter of $2,187,450 after taxes and depreciation. This was equivalent to 69 cents a share on 3,172,111 shares of capital stock. It compared with $1,924,893 or 60 cents a share in the first quarter of 1929. Profit was greater than that of any quarter since the first three months of 1927 with the exception of the final quarter of 1929 when net profit was $2,658,683 or 84 cents a share.

Screw and Bolt Profit Gains

FOR THE FIRST QUARTER of the year the Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Corporation reported net profit of $778,763 after interest, depreciation and taxes. This was equivalent to 52 cents a share on 1,500,000 shares of stock. It compared with $643,528 or 43 cents a share in the preceding quarter.

No statement was published for the first quarter of 1929 but company officials state that the net profit this year represents a gain. Operating profit was slightly below a year ago but other income more than compensated for the decline.

Screw and Bolt reported exceptionally satisfactory results in the full year of 1929, the first of its operation following a merger with the Garham Bolt and Nut Company and the Colona Manufacturing Company. Net profit for the year of $3,271,749 or $2.18 a share was more than $1,000,000 in excess of the earnings of the three individual companies in 1928.

Cash Increased

A STRONG FINANCIAL position is shown by the balance sheet of March 31. Current assets of $10,908,189 were 10 times current liabilities. Between December 31, 1929, and the end of the first quarter of this year cash increased from $2,800,502 to $4,131,572, a gain of $1,331,070.

This was accounted for by the sale of a large portion of the company's investment holdings. During the same period investments decreased from $4,243,083 to $3,069,070. The sales of securities were at a profit and contributed substantially to the non-operating income for the quarter of $207,417.

With such large holdings of cash and investments it would not be surprising if the company should reduce its funded debt in the future. During 1929 $76,000 in bonds were retired and since the beginning of the year $13,000 have been bought. This left $3,929,000 of the sinking fund debenture 5½s outstanding.

Propeller Passes Tests

OFFICIAL TESTS on the company's newly developed airplane propeller have been completed and the product has proved satisfactory. Both the United States Army and Navy departments have approved the propeller for official use. The next step will be for the development of production on a commercial scale. This will probably take place late in the year.

The propeller is made of pressed alloy steel sheets which are welded together. Exceptional strength is claimed for the product in addition to a lower cost for materials than on propellers now in general use.

The propeller can be made with holes in the trail edges of the blades. In this type of equipment the exhaust from the motor is expelled through the hollow blades. The vacuum formed by the blades increases the efficiency of the motors by removing the back pressure which ordinarily curtails the speed. The handling of the exhaust in this manner also muffles the sound of the motors.

SALES OF FUEL OIL EXPAND

LOS ANGELES, April 29.—Steady and substantial increase in the demand for fuel oil is indicated by the fact that during March shipments of fuel oil from Los Angeles Harbor headed the list of petroleum exports and totaled 3,875,470 barrels, according to the California Oil and Gas Association. The fuel oil market has lagged for many years, but a steady increase in facilities for cracking heavier oil into gasoline, kerosene and diesel oil, coupled with the growth of the oil heating business, has started the California fuel oil on the upgrade.

An unofficial estimate of the amount of fuel oil used in the United States during 1929 for heating buildings and residences is given as 15,000,000 barrels, which compares with 13,967,000 barrels in 1928 and 11,709,000 barrels during 1927. As indicating the magnitude of this increase, it is pointed out that only 3,000,000 barrels were used for heating purposes in 1923.

AD MEN GLORY IN AROUSING DISCONTENT

Dissatisfaction With One's Possessions Creates New Market and Aids Trade

By MERYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, April 29.—Modern advertising is a gigantic adventure in making the public discontented with what it has.

A southern editor—W. O. Saunders, of the Elizabeth City (N. C.) Independent—finally has risen up in behalf of the harried consumer and complained that he has grown tired of being made discontented. To which Theodore F. MacManus, Detroiter, who heads an advertising agency which bears his name, retorted that only lazy people are contented.

The nub of the defense of advertising as a human force, as set forth by Mr. MacManus, in the forthcoming issue of the Nation's Business, is:

"Sales and advertising men are glad to take credit for a large share of the prevailing 'discontent' and glory in it. It is this very discontent, created largely by them, that is responsible for mass production and mass selling, which in turn have brought about not alone a propsperity such as no people have ever known before, but have spread wealth more widely than ever before, so that there is no longer the sharp and painful distinction between those that have and those that have not.

"When this era of advertising intensive salesmanship and mass production began, there were probably not 2,000,000 holders of industrial and corporation securities in all this vast country. Today, there are probably 20,000,000, all the result of 'discontent.'"

Big business bids the public to act in accordance with the doctrine of the Poet Louis Untermeyer who chanted:

"From sleek contentment, keep me free."

LAMENT OF DISCONTENT

In making his complaint, Mr. Saunders lamented:

"They (business seekers) actually contrive to make me so discontented that I spend beyond my income; and that's what ails this country today. I, for one, am getting tired of being made discontented.

"They made me discontented with my old style phonograph and persuaded me to put in a motorized talking machine that I didn't have to wind. Before I get that paid for they made me dissatisfied with my phonograph and I bought a radio. But they sold me the wrong kind of radio and in six months they had me all dissatisfied again and I had to buy a brand new and different type of radio to get myself satisfied."

From the standpoint of the national economy, business progress has been stimulated by the development of new wants. Dissatisfaction has taught energetic men to redeem idle time and turn it into productive moments. As a matter of fact, the relatively low degree of prosperity in Europe reflects the relative lack of dissatisfaction with low living standards on the part of people in the old world.

As for the individual, his problem is to strike a happy balance between spending and saving. Saving means storing up, instead of exhausting, purchasing power. It entails deferring the satisfaction which comes from spending. It involves transferring present claims on society for goods and services into future drafts. It signifies holding a blank check for subsequent use.

Elementary desires and passions conspire to advise, "spend now." Likewise, every merchant and manufacturer, with every show window and advertisement contributes to the forces urging the individual to spend his money. The frailities in the direction of the head of the family are frequently intensified by the pleas of other members of the household.

GOOD TIME TO REPAIR

At the present stage of the business cycle, this is no time to urge unusual caution in spending. The general situation will be fostered if each family with an income will spend normally, without retrenchment. Likewise, as President Hoover has indicated, this is a good time to clean up the house, paint it, and do other repairs that ordinarily would be done within the next year or two. The person who acts now can take advantage of the labor situation, and get the work done more efficiently than when the pot of industry is boiling over.

U. S. Senator Jesse H. Metcalf, of Rhode Island, who is a textile manufacturer, predicts a substantial economic setback in New England. His comment is timely, as the season approaches when universities and high schools will turn out human crops eager to find careers.

"What are the opportunities for a young man today in the New England textile industry," Senator Metcalf asks. "I believe they are good, provided he enters the industry determined to succeed.

"I have always liked to see a young man in my employ taking courses in textile manufacturing at night. A man who works in the mill during the day and then spends a couple of hours in a textile school at night, gaining additional knowledge upon which a promotion pends, is pretty sure to make a mark in his chosen profession. Except hard work and the will to get ahead, there is no royal road to success."

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP)—The curb market continued to encounter heavy liquidation today, although it showed fairly good powers of absorption. The more active stocks generally sold off a point or two before encountering good support.

Leading utility shares continued to encounter heavy liquidation such issues as Electric Bond and Share, American Superpower, American and Foreign Power warrants and American Light and Traction new stock sold off a point or so. North American Light and Power dropped more than 3 points. A few shares displayed a firm undertone, notably United Light A and the United Gas shares.

In the oils, Gulf was bid up a few points during the early trading, but soon lost its gain. Such issues as Vacuum, Cities Service, Standards of Indiana and Kentucky sagged a point or so. Industries were highly irregular.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

STOCK PRICES EXPERIENCE SETBACK

Early Morning Rally Fails to Follow Through; New Year Levels Reached

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP.)—Stock prices experienced another sharp set-back today when the rally, which started soon after the opening, failed to follow through.

Selling pressure was particularly severe against the coppers and rails, more than a score of which were hammered to new low levels for the year.

WEAK SPOTS SHOW

Weak spots also cropped out in nearly all other leading groups, the declines running from 1 to 7 points in the active issues, and as much as 19 points in some of the specialties.

Unfavorable earnings and trade reports, including unconfirmed rumors of a shading in steel prices, probably stimulated the selling movement, although there was a rather widespread feeling that the reaction was nothing more than a correction of speculative excesses which had taken place earlier in the year.

SHORT ACCOUNTS

Much of today's selling was reported to be for short account, with indications of excellent scale buying in a number of issues, current earnings and prospects of which are favorable.

One of the large commission houses, which urged the liquidation of stocks three weeks ago, today recommended the purchase of high grade issues.

Dow Jones & Co. reported a slight decline in steel operations during the past week, estimating current activity around 77½ per cent of capacity as against 78 per cent a week ago. The quarterly report of the U. S. Steel Corporation, due after the close of the market, is expected to show earnings of between $3 and $3.25 a share, as against $5.04 in the first quarter of last year.

Peoples Gas broke 19 points on a relatively small turnover. Diamond Match, which recently recorded a spectacular advance, fell 14 points and Auburn Auto 12¼. Extreme declines of 4 to 7½ points were registered by J. I. Case, Vanadium Steel, Eastman Kodak, Sloss Sheffield Steel, A. M. Byers, Worthington Pump, Dupont and Electric Auto Lite.

COPPER HITS LOW

New low records in the copper group were registered by American Smelting, Anaconda, Cerro De Pasco, Magma, Calumet and Hecla, Calumet and Arizona, Andes, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, and Granby.

Rails were again liquidated freely as a result of the extremely poor showing being made by most roads in their March income statements. Atchison dropped 6 points to 218⅝, Nickel Plate 4½ to 126 and Lackawanna 3½ to 128, all new 1930 lows. Other rails to break into new low ground were Southern Railway, Rock Island, Missouri Pacific preferred, Baltimore and Ohio, Chicago Northwestern and Reading.

Prices continued to fall in the final hour as impaired margin accounts were liquidated and bear operators put out extensive short lines. Several counter movements were started by the bulls to halt the decline, but traders took advantage of the higher levels to sell more stock. The close was weak. Sales approximated 5,500,000 shares.

SLIGHT DIP IN INGOT RATE

There has been a slight reduction in steel ingot production in the past week. The average for the industry is around 77½ per cent, compared with a shade over 78 per cent in the preceding week and 76 per cent two weeks ago.

For United States Steel Corporation the rate is a slight fraction over 80 per cent, against around 81 per cent a week ago, and between 78 per cent and 79 per cent two weeks ago.

Independents are 75 per cent, against a shade over 75 per cent in the week before and 74 per cent two weeks ago.

Beam Treasurer of Grain Corporation

CHICAGO, April 29.—(AP.)—Walter I. Beam, of Chicago, today was appointed treasurer of the Farmers National Grain Corporation and assumed his new duties immediately.

The new treasurer was comptroller of the United States Grain Corporation throughout its war-time existence. Later he came to Chicago as rerpresentative of a group of New York and Chicago banks to take charge of a group of grain companies, then in financial difficulties, and also became vice president and treasurer of the Nye-Jenks Grain Company.

U. S. Held Safe for Foreign Investment

NEW YORK, April 29.—Charles Munro, president of Scottish American Investment Company, of Edinburgh, Scotland, one of the oldest investment companies in the British empire, when interviewed on his arrival here on the S. S. Leviathan, said that the United States is still the safest place in the world for investment of European capital.

Munro stated that the object of his visit to the United States was to look over the investment situation.

Bank Sees Gain In Business Activity

An increase in industrial and commercial activity during April, with business in basic industries holding its own and consuming demand tending to expand, is reported by the Bank of America N. A. in its current review of business conditions. Influenced by the coming of spring weather and the late Easter, retail trade also gained during the month, with wholesale business sharing to some extent in this improvement. Favorable signs for further improvement in industrial activity are seen in low commodity prices and easy credit conditions, the cut of four cents in the price of copper which is expected to result in an increase in construction by public utilities, and the gain in the flotations of new capital issues in this market, foreshadowing more active business resulting from the spending of funds so borrowed.

Thompson Planning $1,000,000 Expansion

CHICAGO, April 29.—(AP.)—John R. Thompson, Jr., president of a company operating 121 restaurants in 42 cities, announced a $1,000,000 expansion program today. Besides constructing three more Chicago restaurants, a new $100,000 establishment will be opened in Pittsburgh, where negotiations are pending for additional sites. New York, Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati and St. Louis are included in the program.

The new Pittsburgh restaurant will be in the Keenan Building, at Liberty avenue and Seventh street.

Southwest Mine Wages to Be Cut

NEW YORK, April 29.—Effective May 1, wages of miners in the Southwest will be reduced 5 per cent, according to a notice to be posted tomorrow by Arizona mine managers. Another wage reduction of 10 per cent will go into effect on June 1, notice of which will be posted on May 26. This follows announcement made a short time ago of a reduction in wages of miners in Montana as a result of the lowering of the price of copper 4 cents a pound to 14 cents.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, April 29.—Notable rallying power in the wheat market developed today after price downturns that were associated with favorable weather conditions. Active buying, however, resulted from belief in various quarters that, with spring wheat seeding virtually completed, Farm Board allies would be more inclined to help lift values because no increase of acreage could thereby be encouraged. Opening ⅛@¼c off, wheat afterward declined further but then rose in some cases to above yesterday's finish. Corn and oats followed wheat, with corn opening unchanged to ¼c off and later showing gains. Provisions were easy.

Relative weakness of Liverpool quotations today counted at times as a drag on prices here, although the action of the British market was ascribed largely to auspicious weather for crops on this side of the Atlantic. On the other hand, arrivals of wheat in continental European countries were reported as light, and for the first time the disturbed political situation of India was mentioned from Liverpool as being a source of disquietude for speculative sellers.

Bears in wheat put considerable stress today on railroad advices from the Southwest saying that the winter wheat crop situation, which up to a week ago looked bad, is now very cheerful because of widespread beneficial rains. In this connection, it was being predicted by railroad officials that the 1930 domestic winter wheat crop movement as a whole would probably equal last year's volume. Under such circumstances, early rallies failed to hold.

Inland Steel Co. Earns $2.26 Share

CHICAGO, April 29.—Inland Steel Company reports for quarter ended March 31, consolidated net income of $2,721,318 equal to $2.26 a share on 1,200,000 shares of common against $3,007,242 or $2.50 a share in corresponding 1929 quarter.

Disappointing Earnings Cause for Decline in Railroad Issues

Railway shares, particularly the seasoned dividend payers stood out as the weak group during yesterday. Recessions ranging from 1 to around 5 points were the rule in stocks like New York Central, Atchison, Norfolk and Western, Rock Island, Chicago Northwestern, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific. The decline in that quarter of the list was amply explained by the keenly disappointing nature of the operating statistics now coming to hand. The selling was undoubtedly accelerated to some extent, moreover, by the remarks of C. A. Donnelly, head of the Northern Pacific, who said among other things that he expected April earnings of that road to be off proportionately with the first quarter. He finds no signs of an immediate pick-up in business in the Northwest, holding that grain is moving slowly and the lumber business is quiet.

The general market was disposed to take its cue yesterday from Steel common, and with the industrial bellwether yielding to new low ground for the reaction, most other recognized leaders were heavy and inclined to lower levels. The street has been not a little disappointed with the action of Steel which closed last week with a net decline of 7 points and yielded for a further 2-point loss yesterday. The corporation's directors will meet after the close today to make public the results of first quarter operations and to act on quarterly dividends. No special dividend action is being anticipated at this time, but unofficial estimates indicate earning will show the equivalent of better than $3 a share for the common stock rolled up in the period.

National Cash Register slipped into new low ground for the year under weight of steady selling, showing a net loss of around 3 points or so at the bottom yesterday. The stock has been slipping steadily back since the first quarter report showing net equal to 57 cents a share on the combined A and B stocks. As applied to the A stock, earnings were equal to 76 cents a share, just about covering the dividend requirements on that issue for the period. Second quarter results are expected to be better than those for the March quarter, but will probably make poor comparison with the same period last year. It is believed the final half year will bring sufficient improvement in the business to assure earnings of better than $3 a share on the combined capital stock for the year.

Inasmuch as the market is likely for the immediate future to chart its course according to the state of its technical conditions, close observers are watching the character of the selling closely. The reaction from the high levels of a fortnight ago along with the suggestion that the market had gotten too far ahead of business reflected the lack of the usual backlog of support buying which is under stocks when a goodly-sized short interest is in the market. Many of the leading stocks have lost 5 to 15 points in that interval, but the decline has been effective in rebuilding of the short position, until it is now believed that a very heavy short account has been established particularly in the steels, coppers, motors and the more active specialties.

The present confusing series of price movements in the market makes it useless for the trader to enter commitments in stocks based on ratio of market price to earnings. The market is evenly divided between two powerful speculative factions and the action of the individual stock should be watched for the clue to its particular trend. Despite the somewhat precarious levels at which General Electric is quoted, it has held its ground in determined fashion in the past fortnight, and close market observers predict that this stock will continue to reflect the wealth of potentialities which its dominant world wide position in many fields of endeavor give to it.

There has been some quiet accumulation of Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit in recent weeks, based upon the steady upward trend of earnings of the company, and the attractive yield offered from its annual $4 dividend. Net earnings for the current year are expected to approximate $7 per common share, a considerable margin over results of previous years. In addition there are speculative possibilities arising from the favored position of this company in the plans for the unification of the New York City Rapid Transit Lines.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP.)—Cotton opened steady at a decline of 4 points to an advance of 5 points. May notices were reported amounting to about 22,000 bales and their circulation caused some liquidation of near months. There was also some selling of new crop positions on reports of further rains in the Southwest, but the offerings were light and apparently well absorbed. The early selling of May was taken by spot houses and the price rose from 15.97c to 16.04c by the end of the first half hour, when active months generally ruled about 2 to 3 points net higher. The new October sold at 14.75c.

Liverpool cables reported fair calling and covering in the near months with liquidation of later deliveries owing to the rains in Texas. British home trade in cotton goods was said to be improving, but yarns were reported dull and freely offered.

Northern Gas to Serve 120,000 Homes

The new Northern Gas Company, in which Lone Star Gas will have a 50 per cent interest, will start business about August 1, L. B. Denning, president of Lone Star, indicated yesterday. There will be 120,000 connected consumers at the commencement of operations the end of which 40,000 will be supplied by a direct subsidiary of Northern Gas. These latter customers are in towns where there is no gas service at present, but where franchises have been secured.

Northern Gas will sell natural gas to the United Light and Power Company at Lincoln and Beatrice, Neb., and at Shenandoah, Red Oak, Mason City and Fort Dodge, Iowa, to Lone Star Gas at Council Bluffs, Iowa, and to North American Light and Power at Des Moines, Iowa, and surrounding territory.

About 10 miles of the line from Stevens County, Kan., to Council Bluffs have already been laid.

In Memoriam 1-B

In loving memory of our dear mother, Maria Evelyn Jones, who died one year ago today, April 29, 1930.

A dear one from us is gone
A voice we loved is still
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
In silence she suffered
With patience she bore
Until God called her home
To suffer no more.

Sadly missed by husband, daughter and grandchildren.

DAILY TRUE STORY

"But what is your real name?"

"Smith. John G. Smith."

"The John stads for 'Jack,' I suppose?"

"I'm not broke—if this is a gold digger's touch—"

Mr. John G. Smith reached inside for his dinner jacket.

"As you were, John G. Smith. This is not a gold digger's touch. We'll start it now and wait the answers."

Viola Varney, in the chorus but Mae Wilks to private life, watched her friends dancing and then turned to the man. He wasn't old enough the girl thought to be classed as a Butter-and-Egg Man or a sugar-Daddy. Dighton of the Hurlburts theatrical producers had introduced Viola to this Mr. Smith.

"What about questions and answers?" the man asked her.

"Oh, the usual stuff such as don't I know I'm too beautiful to be in a chorus and wouldn't I like a nice little apartment on Park avenue. There, don't I seem to feel how you are misunderstood by your wife, that stuff."

The man laughed and turned rather red at the same time.

"I hit it right, didn't I?"

"Not exactly, young lady. I never had a wife. I have a hunch that it is your beauty that gets you the jobs in the chorus and no girl can be too beautiful for the stage. As to the apartment, when I fit up one for a girl there'll be a marriage certificate along with the piano and aluminum kitchen ware."

Viola stared at this Mr. John G. Smith in undisguised amazement.

"Either you are a swell actor, Mr. Smith or I'm dreaming."

"You're a pretty rotten idea of men, haven't you little girl?"

"Ah ha. You're calling me 'little girl.' That shows that you've been around."

Been Around

"I've been around a great deal most of these girls here. I suppose you've been around a great deal?"

"I've met a lot of rich men—they all give me a decided pain—they're all alike. When I marry the lad will be some hard-working poor boy."

"I'm a hard-working boy myself, Miss—Varney—is that the name?"

Viola nodded and laughed.

"You haven't worked hard dancing tonight."

"I like to dance but it struck me that to ask a chorus girl to dance would be a good deal like asking a letter carrier to go on a nice long walk."

"You're a queer guy—and rather nice," said Viola.

"You are a nice girl and rather queer—"

"I am not queer!"

John G. Smith got very red and then he laughed.

"Don't get me wrong. I meant that you were queer because you haven't started any gold-digging tactics."

"I get seventy-five nice dollars every week. I live with my married brother and pay my board and have plenty left, including my self-respect. I am darned tired and I don't want to dance and you're a mighty nice boy to think of such things."

"Thanks—I—er—know Petersen well. I'm often in here. I hope I'll see you again. I've got a hard day tomorrow, so if you don't mind I'll run along."

"I'm ready to hit the hay myself—"

"I'll put you in a taxi."

He did. He paid the taxi man in advance, he shook hands nicely. He didn't pat her knee or stroke her arm or try to kiss her.

At breakfast next morning Viola said, "Gee, I met a regular guy last night, level as a floor, didn't have busy hands, didn't try to date me."

"Let me know of any slob gettin' busy with hands with you, Mae, and I'll—"

"Mae has always taken care of herself, George," said his wife, Mrs. Wilks.

"Listen, sweet sister-in-law, George is one swell brother. I'm for him. He meant all right and he's got troubles of his own just now, so lay off, please. Gosh, I never even remembered my people, and George brought me up."

Brother Worries

"Stow that chatter, Mae. You're my baby sister. What could a guy do?"

"How about the Quinn estate folks, George?"

"Won't come down on their price—say they want to sell the whole corner and not rent. That's why they ask so much. Gee, if I could land that corner and run my store out I wouldn't care if it was true that the Sunshine Stores people are coming down my way with a big store!"

"Tough, George! Wish I had the price of that corner for you."

"Three hundred and fifty thousand? Be yourself, Mae."

At home they never called her Viola Varney. They weren't very proud that she was on the stage.

When Viola went down in the street car for the matinee she passed the corner of Main and Grant streets. There was her brother's provision store, one door in from the corner. How he did want to run his sign right out to the corner and enlarge his store! With the big assembling plant to the meadows just below, with seven thousand on its payroll, a big store such as he planned would prove a gold mine.

It was a month later that Viola was in at Peterson's place with some of her chorus friends and some wealthy men. Dighton took them around to meet the men. They were always doing that, it entertained the men and the rich men could do wonders for the Hurlburts.

"May I sit down?"

"Hello, John G. Smith—or is your name Johns tonight?"

Still John G. Smith. Miss Varney. What do you want to eat—pardon me—and drink?"

Steak and Onions

"I want to go to Beefsteak John's for a thick steak and onions and I want a pot of tea and there's no lunch and no dancing there."

Come along.

They went to Beefsteak John's. Mr. Smith pounded off a steak and ordered as well as Viola.

"You aren't strong for that syncopated, boom, night club stuff are you?"

"No, I like a restaurant where the food is good but I don't like their boom food and their robbers' prices. I hate to see a good guy like you slung around $40 for three drinks and a sandwich."

They enjoyed the meal.

"I'm going to arrange to meet you, pretty soon, and make love to you, Miss Varney, in—"

"I knew it. I knew you couldn't be true. It was just acting."

"And when I start love-making it will be understood that there is but one goal in view."

"Little love-nest, eh? Well, that's out."

"Yes, a love nest and you in it along with me and the marriage certificate I mentioned before."

"For Pete's sake, are you proposing?"

"I'd like to meet you in some more auspicious place than over steak and onions and make it clear to you that I feel you are the one girl I want to marry."

"Listen, John G. Smith. I believe you are a nice guy all right but I also believe a girl is a fool to marry a rich man she meets in a night club—he'll keep up his night club habits right along after marriage, but with some other girl."

Mr. Smith shook his head.

"Look here, Viola—"

"Well my real name is Mae—Mae Wilks."

"Only you matters to me, my dear. I've got to be away for a month. Now—" He consulted a calendar in a pocket memo book. "Now make it Thursday night, right here after the show, four weeks from tonight. I want to see you. I want to convince you that I'm no sugar-daddy type—and I want to convince you that you really ought to marry me."

She laughed gaily.

"And you are a mighty nice boy, Jack Smith, but still I think the marriage stuff is out."

So they parted.

The time had almost arrived for Viola to meet Mr. John G. Smith, and she was decidedly unhappy. So was her brother George.

"Tough break—tough break," Mae," he told her. "Those damn Sunshine chain stores have handed me the squeeze-out."

Viola Offers Help

"Aw gee, that's tough — move some other place. I got $1,500 saved you can have——"

"No damn use, they'll put in stores everywhere. They got money, they bought the Quinn estate corner, they'll rent offices overhead and get store rent free—they buy a trainload of stuff where I buy a crate—no use—they'll squeeze me out. Guess I'll have to go back to the old pushcart where I started."

Mae began to cry. She wanted to help her brother and knew that she couldn't.

Viola had a terrible grouch at the theater that night. She smiled when out front, because it was the old set smile and didn't mean a thing, but her heart was sad and her temper short when Dighton came to her.

"Listen, Viola, you pick 'em, what?"

"No parties tonight. I'm short—"

"He's out there now—the big shot, wants to see you."

"What big shot?"

"As if you didn't know—the Sunshine Chain Stores guy. Says he had a date next week with you but got back earlier—"

"Smith? John G. Smith? Is he the Sunshine Stores guy?"

"The whole works, kid. Didn't you know—"

"Tell him to wait."

Two hours later Mae Wilks, who had that night ceased to be Viola Varney of the chorus, was finishing a dinner at Beefsteak John's with John G. Smith.

"And whatever you say, for a wedding present, dearest," He said.

"All right! I want that property—that Quinn estate property at the corner of Main and Grant streets."

"That's queer, but if I can buy it——"

"Your agents have bought it. They're putting in a store—tell 'em to quit—there's going to be a big store there, with a sign over it:

GEORGE WILKS, PROVISIONS."

"I don't get that."

Then she explained.

"That's a squeeze-out that didn't work, Jack," she told him.

"I'll give you the property and release you from this brand new engagement. You don't have to marry me to save your brother's store——"

"Oh, hush up, Jack—I'm crazy about you—I'd marry you if you didn't give George that corner!"

LYRIC VERGING ON THE COSMIC AND PROFOUND

News Item — When rewarded with food, the white rat can use its eyes and mind so well that it can be taught in only two or three days to jump through a trap door with two dots on it instead of a door with three.

Viewing with pessimistic itch
The very grim persistence
And ingenuity with which
We eke out an existence
So that we may continue at
The process ineffectual,
I feel a kinship with the rat
Who, too, is intellectual.

The rat who labors to exist,
And earns his daily bread
When he proves to a scientist
That he can use his head.

By choosing not the door with three Dots, but the one with two—
Behind which food is sure to be—
And nimbly jumping through.

Postoffice and Traffic Tied Up in Modern Plan

How modern traffic problems impose themselves upon community construction is indicated in the fact that we, as a community, represented in the Better Traffic Committee, are now scanning with critical eye the effect building construction may have in the flow of highway currents. Our grandfathers didn't do that else they would have made streets wider. Our fathers couldn't see far enough ahead or they would have widened the thoroughfares they and we inherited.

The Better Traffic Committee is trying to see ahead. So it has prepared tentative plans for the proposed postoffice and federal building, which, according to Frank L. Duggan, chairman, looks ahead to 1950 from a traffic standpoint. The plans provide for both truck and rail traffic and for storage room for automobiles used by federal officers who will occupy the building.

At a meeting yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce, it developed that the government postoffice plans do not take into consideration suggestions made two years ago and that the plans practically are those decided upon five years ago. Other changes besides those relating to traffic were suggested.

The recently enlarged committee, at its first meeting, also considered the matter of a traffic circle to be constructed in connection with street alterations that are tied up with the plans for the new $20,000,000 passenger terminal of the Pennsylvania Railroad. It appears that the committee favors the traffic separation plan suggested by the majority of the special committee named by Council to make a study of the situation. This provides for traffic at two grades.

The study given these matters is for the eventual benefit of the public, which, however, would like to see both the postoffice and federal building speeded up. The Pennsylvania officials have announced they are ready to go ahead but wish to have the traffic question definitely decided, as the plan adopted will have an effect on construction details.

Though we make haste slowly in these matters we seem to be looking ahead.

Model Primary School For Educational Tests

The Little Red Schoolhouse of many a cherished memory of juvenile days is to be placed in the test tubes, retorts and crucibles of the laboratory. Not actually, of course, but figuratively, although the result will be the same. That is, through the generosity of Leon Falk, Jr., and his sister, Mrs. Marjorie Falk Levy, there will be established a model elementary school to be operated by the School of Education, University of Pittsburgh. The sum of $325,400 has been donated for this purpose.

"It will furnish a laboratory school in which progressive methods of education are discovered and tested," asserts Dean Gow, of the School of Education, commenting on the gift, made in memory of the mother of the donors, Mrs. Fanny Edel Falk.

This should be an important aid to the cause of primary education throughout the nation, as well as an addition to Pitt's importance as a university.

Passage of Bills by Senate Will Aid Prison Conditions

Shocked by the horror and shamed by the disgrace of the awful holocaust in the Ohio penitentiary at Columbus, the Committee of the United States Senate on the Judiciary has recommended to the Senate the passage of seven bills to relieve the appalling conditions existing in FEDERAL penitentiaries today.

All these bills passed the House some time ago. Their passage by the Senate will certainly not longer be delayed.

To relieve the intolerable overcrowding in federal prisons is the first objective of the legislative program awaiting action by the Senate. The population of these prisons has been increasing at an alarming rate. Many of them are now housing more than twice their normal capacity. Additional institutions must be provided if this emergency is to be relieved.

To alleviate the idleness among the inmates of these prisons is the next objective. That is why Congress is asked to authorize the establishment of shops and factories where prisoners can be taught a trade. TRAINED IN HONEST WORK AND HELPED WHEN THEY LEAVE PRISON TO GO STRAIGHT.

So large has the number of federal prisoners become that it is impossible for the superintendent of prisons and his small staff to pass promptly and fairly upon the applications of prisoners for parole. That is why Congress is asked to create an independent parole board whose sole duty it will be to pass upon these applications.

A third objective of this program is to provide an adequate organization under the Department of Justice to supervise the care and treatment of the 20,000 men in prisons and jails today for the violation of federal statutes.

There is no co-ordinating force at Washington now to supervise the education, medical care and industrial activities of federal prisoners in 900 local jails throughout the country, many of which are unfit to house cattle.

So overcrowded is the government hospital for the criminally insane and so many of the inmates of federal prisons are defective mentally and physically that a hospital for the care and treatment of such cases has long been urgently needed. This is also provided for in the pending program.

Many inmates of federal prisons are known to be suffering from physical handicaps which were the cause of the crimes for which they are confined. These handicaps must be removed before it will be safe to society to release them. And one of the pending bills places at the disposal of the prison bureau the highly trained personnel of the Public Health Service. Its doctors can then aid the penal authorities in removing the physical handicaps of prisoners and extending the use of psychiatry and mental hygiene.

And last but not least the legislative program awaiting action by the Senate provides for the establishment of an adequate system of probation "TO REDUCE THE PRISON POPULATION, SALVAGE HUMANITY" AND HELP MINOR OFFENDERS TO GET AND MAKE GOOD USE OF A NEW AND BETTER CHANCE.

Its Committee on the Judiciary under the leadership of its able chairman, Senator Norris, of Nebraska, has been quick to learn the lesson of the disaster at Columbus that has disgraced the state of Ohio and made the American people blush with shame.

Undoubtedly the Senate will be no less quick to follow where the Judiciary Committee has led the way.

Some Wheels of Traffic -:- -:-

Drawn by Nelson Harding

Not all the wheels of traffic turn
Upon the city streets,
For there are wheels inside the head
Of him who wildly beats
His zigzag way among the cars
At risk of life and limb,
And now Jaywalker must be shown
There's traffic law for him.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Difficult to Digest

Astronomers are interested in the dry city discovered by the Literary Digest.

They didn't know the Digest had such a powerful telescope.

"Bugs" Baer Horace Greely, who told young men to go West because he hated competition.

It is naturally dedicated to good old

Horace's habits are now important to everybody but himself. We forget whether he was a dry or a wet.

If Horace didn't drink he certainly should have assassinated his photographers.

His picture is that of a benevolent old pedestrian with white chin sluggers and a full set of wrinkles. His eye is as watery as a lily pond at high tide.

Greely is a town of about 4,000 human binks. It has a lovable climate, very affectionate railroads and soothing traffic cops.

Once in a while they strike oil in a salad. We do not know how the town happened to vote dry. The Chamber of Commerce must have been asleep.

It is going to astonish the town clown when he reads this and discovers that his constituency has repudiated him. Well, into all lives a little soda water must fall.

The Digest has taken the stomach measurements of thousands of cities. All except the village of Greely voted for bigger and more dependable evasions.

The only trouble with the Digest's hopeful census is that the vote in many cases exceeds the population.

There must be a reason for this. Maybe some of the voters have bicycles.

We are glad there is one municipality in these coagulated domain which objects to being shaved by a soused barber.

We accept the Digest's figures as authentic and at least two stages beyond reproach. Of course, all the voting was done by postcard which meant a poll of the educated.

Wait until we hear from our more progressive people who can neither read nor write.

THE BYRD EXPEDITION

By Archibald Henderson

Until the publication of the book now in preparation by Admiral Byrd, the significance of the achievements of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition cannot be fully grasped. But it is well enough to take account of the major discoveries of the different parties on their various flights and exploratory journeys.

The mountains, given the name Rockefeller Mountains, were discovered on January 27, 1929; Byrd Land, February 28, 1929; Charles Bob Mountains, discovered on the depot-laying flight, November 18, 1929; the discovery of a new mountain range on the south polar flight, November 28, 1929; the conquest of the South Pole by airplane, November 29, 1929; and the discovery of Barrier Inlet and a vast coastal mountain range on the flight to the northeast, December 5, 1929. This lofty range, last mentioned, running at least 250 miles to the southeast, is suspected to form the east side of the Ross Sea. It is now known that the Ross Barrier extends much further to the eastward than was hitherto known. It is now thought probable that this is a connection of some sort between the Ross and the Weddell seas.

From a scientific standpoint, the findings of the geologists will be studied with the greatest interest. Late last season Dr. Gould made a flight to the Rockefeller Mountains, and from the granites and associated rocks which he found there concluded that these mountain formations were of much the same character as the Alexander range. This preliminary exploration was but the prelude to the extended southern expedition to the Queen Maud Mountains. It is believed that this was one of the longest expeditions, using sledges for transportation, ever carried through. In all, the preliminary trip included, 1,500 statute miles were covered on the journey.

A singular phenomenon observed on this trip was the number of small cylinders of snow, observed in a restricted area, rolling across the snow surface under wind pressure. Instead of being hard and icy in constituency, these cylinders were composed of snow so light and fluffy that they could be crumbled up in the hand. Somewhere in his writings Amundsen speaks of seeing fluffy balls of snow rolling across the surface.

To come to the important scientific results, first Dr. Gould visited the very spot where Carmen Land is located on former charts; and so confirmed, from his plane, that Carmen Land was a myth. The beacon sandstone found on Mount Nansen indicated a connection with the mountains on the western side of the Ross Barrier. Detailed studies of the various rocks and other geological specimens found on these trips will eventually prove of great scientific interest.

From the findings of Dr. Gould and party, the definite conclusion was reached that the geology of the Queen Maud Range totally differs in character from that which characterizes Graham Land, and the Andes in South America. The known length of the great mountain range in the Antarctic, through these studies, has been extended some 350 miles. It has finally been determined, also, that there is a lack of resemblance, structurally and geologically, between the east and the west portions of Antarctica.

∴ LISTEN, WORLD ∴

By Elsie Robinson

Smarties—wouldn't you like to strangle the breed?

And yet—hang it!—you act smarty yourself, sometimes, don't you! Makes you all hot n' bothered to confess it. But it's true. Why? Darned if you know! But you catch yourself Showing Off—Acting Up—and even while you do it, you wish the floor would open under you. And after you get home you almost pass out with embarrassment, thinking what a fool you've made of yourself. Yet chances are, you'll do it again the very next time!

Smarties—Show Offs—Cut Ups—how do decent, intelligent people get that way? For a perfectly natural and proper cause. We all want admiration. We not only want it but we need it as we need food. Admiration is a food—food for our pride. And a man's pride is to him what a furnace is to a ship. Wreck a man's pride—wreck a ship's furnace—and the result is the same. Pride must be fed, and so we try to win the admiration and respect that will feed it.

But sometimes we try too hard. Sometimes, in our loneliness and fear we make an uncouth gesture. We fear we aren't making the grade. People don't seem to like us as much as they should.

They're paying more attention to others. They're overlooking us. Unwillingly, we're being pushed out of the picture—and so we make a desperate effort to stay in the picture by showing off—acting smart.

This is peculiarly apt to happen when we're young and bewildered—before we've found our bearings in life. Young smartness isn't funny. It is often very tragic for it hides a deep hurt and hunger. And many of us stay smarties all our lives for we never discover the secret of that popularity which we so deeply need.

If you want to attract people, don't try to show yourself off—show them off.

Don't try to mak yourself important—

Try to develop their importance.

Realize that there is a hunger for admiration in them just as there is a hunger for admiration in you. Realize that they are lonely and bewildered and exasperated and frightened, just as you are. Then act in that secret knowledge.

An ounce of sympathy is worth a ton of smartness.

Help the other fellow's need and he'll help yours.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

"I ain't going to Chicago any more," a kinda sick-looking guy says to his neighbor in Iowa when he got back from a visit.

"Oh, ain't you? What's the matter with Chicago?"

"Well," he says, "maybe it's me and maybe it's Chicago, but I ain't fit to take the risk. I went down there last week and got my leg broke in four places."

"Well, that's like you," says the neighbor. "It's time you'd learn to stay out of them places, or anyhow to stay out of the fourth one after they'd broke your leg already in all three of the others. I'd say it's just as much your fault as Chicago's."

Blue

When God roofed all the world with blue
He chose the fairest color made,
And in that tender, melting hue
His love betrayed.

For, bathed in blue of sky or sea,
Of morning or of midnight hour,
Most surely man's tranquility
And gladness flower.

There is a magic in the tint
That deep in darkling sapphire wakes,
And in the paler, colder glint
Of turquoise lakes.

But loveliest of all things blue,
Blue seas that sing, blue hills that rise,
Most wonderful, serene and true,
Are your dear eyes!

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

Africa is characterized by no such primitive types of animals as either South America or Australia. It seems to have been cut off from the main centers of mammalian evolution by the Sahara for a long time. It received its first land-mammals in the Oligocence, (V B) after marsupials and the first clumsy Eocene (V A) placentals had disappeared from Asia and Europe.

After this irruption the way was again closed, to open again (probably on the eastern side of the Sahara, across to Asia by Arabia and Syria) only in the Pliocene (V D).

H. G. Wells

The second and larger irruption which then followed gave Africa the bulk of its existing animal types; since then there has been evolution in many details, but no great changes.

The door was then again closed, or at most left ajar, so that Africa thus became an Ark for a large sample of the Pliocene Old World mammals. Some like deer and bears, had failed to find the door before it shut again, and there are none of them in Africa; but the rest throve and multiplied in the broad, equatorial stretches, while the drought and cold of the Ice Age dealt hardly with their congeners who had stayed in the North.

Just as stretches of sea act as barriers to purely terrestrial animals, so stretches of land bar the migrations of the inhabitants of the waters.

The upheaval which in Miocene times (V C) created the Isthmus of Panama and the land-bridge between the two Americas, put an impassable barrier between the marine animals of Atlantic and Pacific, at least between those which could not face the cold of southern seas.

As a result, no fewer than 600 cases are known of pairs of fish-species from the coasts of Panama, one member of each pair from its Pacific, the other from its Atlantic shores, the two closely related, but different in some trivial but constant character.

Original identity explains the similarities; independent evolution for some 20,000,000 years has produced the differences.

Another example, very similar in its watery way to the case of the Australian land-masses is provided by Lake Baikal, the great, isolated sheet of fresh water that lies in Southern Siberia.

Since it was formed, apparently in the Mesozoic Era (IV) certainly before the earlier part of the Cenozoic (V), it has been without any close connection with any other large body of water, fresh or salt.

The huge lake, over 400 miles long and in some places nearly 5,000 feet deep, holds out the most varied opportunities to water-living animals; but most of the kinds of animals which elsewhere take advantage of similar opportunities, were absent in it from the start.

As a result, other types, which elsewhere remain monotonous and feebly developed, have here blossomed out in extraordinary variety and fill the most important places in the economy of the lake.

This is so with certain kinds of fish, but preeminently so with a particular crustacean family, the Gammarids. To this belongs the familiar sand-hopper which swarms under moist seaweed on our sandy beaches, together with a goodly number of other types, fresh-water as well as marine. Members of this group were in Baikal from its beginnings.

Finding there what was denied them in all other parts of the world, a large and friendly home where there was no competition from more developed crustacean types, such as crayfish and crabs, and shrimps and prawns, they have done their best to take the place of higher Crustacea.

In this single sheet of water they have evolved into over three hundred different species—more than as many as are to be found in all the rest of the world, and many of them belonging to purely Baikalian genera.

They have launched out into the most varied occupations. There are deep water Gammarids, blind but with long feelers to compensate for the loss of sight living at three hundred fathoms; there are Gammarids which swim all their life in the open water deep below the surface, and are transparent as any jelly-fish; there are large shore-living Gammarids, four inches long—sand-hoppers doing their best to be lobsters, and so on.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, APRIL 29.—New York dance halls are reaching new peaks of infamy. They compose one social evil that seems successfully to resist the power of the police and clouts of the raiding ax. Street walking has been curbed, houses of call are under control, but the dance hall survives.

On Fourteenth street, Broadway, in Harlem and the Bronx they attract with their jazzy pretensions and flashy outside electric glitter. "One hundred beautiful hostesses!" they announce. Thus youth is ensnared before they know it. In the lap of Delilah the locks are a horn.

Many are merely camouflaged bagnios. Cheap gin as well as dope are peddled. Gang murders are hatched and it is not reportorial fancy that innumerable girls have been trapped into white slavery and shipped off to Rio and other infamous far away infernos.

In many ways they are more sinister than the famous Haymarket because, unlike the Haymarket, they wear a mask of respectability while breaking almost every law of the land. Indeed few are comparable in decency with one of New York's shadiest resorts—Harry Hill's dance hall.

This was situated on Houston street near Broadway and run by an unusual character known as Harry Hill. His widow, a gentle, sweet-faced old lady, now lives quietly in uptown New York. Hill, despite his calling, was regarded as an honorable trader, a fellow who kept his word, and generous in charitable impulses.

He permitted no loud talking or profanity. An intoxicated man or woman was immediately ejected and indecent dancing was taboo. Yet it was one of the most notorious resorts in the city. An editorial of the time pronounced it incongruously "a reputable vile house."

Hill plumed himself on his piety. He closed promptly at midnight on Saturday and, unlike neighboring resorts, did not open on Sunday. His manager was a bona-fide doctor of medicine with the haughty manners of a floor walker. Prominent people mingled there with underworld riffraff.

The wealth of Trinity church corporation is estimated at more than one hundred millions. Originally the vast holdings consisted of a farm, given in fee to the church by a governor. On this leased out ground today stand wharves, ferries, depots, immense blocks on Broadway of marble and granite, stores, hotels, theaters and private mansions.

New York has a claim against Trinity which has never been settled and which many believe may cause a forfeiture of some of the land one day. Great lawyers have been working on the case for years. In the Revolution the estate became the property of the state, but later got back in hands of Trinity. This is the basis of proposed contests.

* * *

Trinity's property is managed by a vestry of five with plenipotentiary power. It is one house of worship where services are held and a surpliced choir of boys sings daily. Its adjoining graveyard, so gloomy in the lower Broadway hub-bub, represents potential millions in reality values. The great facade of Trinity looks broodingly down upon Wall street from its foot. Its dolorous chimes of bells peals out the hours, halves and quarters as though announcing to worshippers of Mammon in Wall and Broad that life—ding, dong, ding—is passing.

Trinity is thoroughly High Church. It introduces into services all the pomp, display and ritualism that Episcopacy will permit. There are white robes, mumbled intonations and chants, which, even to those who decry ecclesiasticism, somehow prove soothing.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You often fail to carry out good impulses because you are afraid you will not receive full credit for your act. Isn't that so?

If you think some other person might be credited with the honor or even a part of it you refrain from doing what you know you should do.

You have heard of those who get a lot out of life but have little to make them happy, in the way of money.

At least to have money is your idea of being happy.

Anyway they get a lot out of life and it seems to be derived largely from their joy in doing for others.

They are not so selfish that they want every one to know what they have done.

And so the brightness they have brought into other lives reflects upon them, rather than shining directly.

There is a peculiar glow about reflected light.

It is not glaring, and unpleasant.

It is mellow and softly radiant and attractive.

Throughout your life you have been all for yourself—all for number one.

Why not get out of the lime light and do a few good deeds and feel the inner radiance?
